Wanderers Back In Ketch Powindah

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

WELCOME sign was posted above the Inner Harbor as John and Pat Manning sailed home from two-year voyage.

Ben Gunn had his first sight of Victoria today.

Ben, a sprightly green-feathered parrot from Panama screeched from the deck of the 30-foot ketch Powindah — and more than 200 Victorians shouted back as the two-masted, weather-beaten vessel tied up in the Inner Harbor.

It was a really heartfelt welcome for voyageurs John and Pat Manning returning from a voyage covering two years and three oceans.

"Congratulations — wonderful!" exclaimed Rear Admiral J. C. Hibbard, former Flag Officer, Pacific Coast, as he exchanged handshakes with John and his wife over the rail of the brown-sailed craft.

Deeply tanned, in yachting cap and blue jersey, 31-year-old John smiled and waved to the crowds lining the harbor and packing the landing stage.

The Powindah danced on the sparkling waters as customs and quarantine officials climbed aboard. John and Pat were not allowed to land until the craft was cleared — and Ben Gunn the parrot was ordered to stay on board for a medical.

"Give us a kiss!" screeched Ben, repeating a phrase he has often heard at sea.

"It's grand to be back," said John, a former Times reporter who has related the odyssey of his journey in The Times' weekend travel section over the past two years.

"Would you do it again?" John was asked.

"Not for a long time," he replied, "but I wouldn't say never."

He and his wife have travelled 18,000 miles in the Powindah.

"Will you go back to newspaper work?"

"No — just writing," John said. He plans to settle in Victoria and write a book on the voyage after a reunion with his father, Victoria businessman Fred Manning, and numerous relatives.

"The roughest spot on our trip," he said, "was in the Hawaiian Islands when we ran into a 60-knot gale, but we rode it out in style.

●

"Another worry was being run down by big ships. We used the automatic pilot when we went below decks for a meal and there was just the chance a big ship would get in our way.

"But we were lucky."

Mrs. Pat Manning, 27, formerly of Winnipeg, said they took turns at the wheel when the night winds were fierce.

Were their relationships strained by living in close quarters?

●

"No, I think it strengthened them," Mrs. Manning said.

They bought the nine-ton Powindah in Southampton from a retired army colonel, who had planned to sail round the world.

"We paid $8,000 for it," John said, "and I would say it was well worth the money."

"Have you had any sickness on board?" asked the quarantine officer.

"None at all," John replied.

She Swept All the Dust Out And Her Husband Went, Too

LONDON (AP) — John Hatch, 39, a veterinarian, was granted a divorce from his wife Jean, 37.

Hatch complained:

—When he watched television he sat on the floor as she didn't like her chair cushions crumpled.

—When he undressed at night he used the bathroom as the bedroom curtains were nearly always kept open to preserve the folds.

—He was not allowed to take off his jacket in the living room "because it would cause dust."

—She insisted on washing his hair—in case he splashed soap on the bathroom floor and walls.

—He normally handed her his pay envelope unopened and she allowed him $12 a week. If he wanted more money, he had to ask her for it and give an accounting for his spending.

Hatch eventually had a nervous breakdown.

De Gaulle Flying Home As French Strikes Grow

Quick Bomb Halt Pact Asked

PARIS (AP) — North Vietnam demanded today that the United States stop being "elusive" and agree "rapidly" to end all bombing and other attacks on its territory.

The United States, striking back at North Vietnamese pressure on this issue, demanded in turn to know whether the government of President Ho Chi Minh is "prepared to acknowledge the presence of North Vietnamese army personnel in South Vietnam."

U.S. Ambassador W. Averell Harriman was reported to have pressed the troop issue on North Vietnamese Ambassador Xuan Thuy in a 2,400-word statement, delivered from time to time in angry tones.

The two demands highlighted the sharp exchanges at the meeting which ran for more than four hours. Harriman and Thuy agreed to meet again next Wednesday.

The session was their third this week. They initially met last Monday.

PROPOSED BY U.S.

The three-day delay before the next session was Harriman's proposal, a North Vietnamese spokesman said. This set off speculation that Harriman would use the interval — longest yet of the sessions — to fly home for consultations, but U.S. sources said the speculation was not correct. They offered no explanation for the delay, however.

In today's session, Thuy focussed his 5,000-word statement on the bombing issue, reminding Harriman that the purpose of the talks at this stage is, from Hanoi's point of view, to arrange to end the bombing and all other attacks on the North.

"In order that these official conversations conclude with results," he said, "the American side must rapidly give a positive response on this subject; it must not be elusive much longer."

North Vietnam has denied any of its troops are operating in the South. Thuy made such a statement earlier this week. Harriman, in effect, demanded a retraction and admission of their presence.

ASKED RESTRAINT

"You have said a great deal about bombing cessation," Harriman told Thuy. "The president of the United States has said that the present limited bombing could come to an early end if our restraint is matched by restraint on the other side.

"And so, I would like to ask you again a question which you have not yet answered: What restraint will you take to contribute to peace in Vietnam?"

The Harriman and Thuy statements were released by their offices, and their spokesmen gave correspondents their respective accounts of how the meeting had gone.

Harriman said that when he had earlier put the question of North Vietnamese troops in

Three-Way TV Debate Proposed

OTTAWA (CP) — New Democratic Party officials called today for an election campaign television debate featuring Prime Minister Trudeau, Conservative Leader Stanfield and their own leader, T. C. Douglas.

In a telegram to Liberal and Conservative election campaign officials, the NDP suggested the three parties get together as soon as possible in a "joint approach" to the CBC and CTV networks to try to arrange such a debate.

Copies of the telegram, which noted the breakdown in talks Friday aimed at arranging a Trudeau-Stanfield debate on CTV, were sent to CBC President George Davidson and Murray Chercover, a CTV president.

The breakdown of the talks on the proposed CTV debate emphasizes the desirability of a three-party approach to CBC and CTV, the telegram said.

The telegram was addressed to Senator John Nicol and Manpower Minister Marchand, co-chairmen of the Liberal cam-

Big Crowds Greet PM In Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau was followed by huge crowds that pushed and buffeted him today when he officially launched his campaign for the June 25 federal election.

In a 2½-hour whirlwind tour of three Toronto-area ridings, the prime minister spoke to an estimated 2,000 persons at a north-end shopping plaza and campaigned on main streets in two other areas.

Everywhere he was met by large crowds. The always-smiling Liberal leader shook hundreds of hands and got almost as many hugs and kisses from frantic teeny-boppers.

The highlight came at Crang Plaza, his first stop, where the crowd pressed against Mr. Trudeau in such numbers that he was stopped dead in his tracks for several minutes.

He had to be lifted bodily from the throng onto a small platform, his hair and clothes dishevelled.

In all of his stops, his short speech could barely be heard above the noise of the crowd.

It couldn't hev happened t' a nicer Powindah.

PARIS — President Charles de Gaulle cut short a state visit to Romania today to fly home to a country facing near-paralysis as wildcat strikes spread into public services.

De Gaulle had not been scheduled to return to Paris until Sunday night from his Romanian visit, but French sources accompanying the president said he will fly home tonight to be in close touch with the situation.

Strikers occupied more than 100 factories as students and workers defied the government in the greatest social upheaval in France since the end of the Second World War. Red flags flew from some of the factories.

Agitation seemed at a peak in southwestern France and around Paris.

Information Minister George Gorse, in a surprise television broadcast today, said that "steps will be taken so that citizens will suffer the least possible from this attempt at pressure on the government." But he gave no details on what the government planned to do to stem the unrest.

The state railway management said early today that traffic was stopped on most suburban lines around the capital. Subway and bus traffic in Paris appeared to be diminishing.

USE ARMY TRUCKS

The government hastily put a fleet of army trucks into action between the capital and the main suburbs.

Although labor union federations have refrained from issuing a general strike order, workers went on strike spontaneously throughout the country.

Hardly an hour went by without word of a new factory being occupied by striking workers.

Premier Georges Pompidou called an urgent meeting with ministers of the interior, defence and transportation, along with top police officials.

The post office checking system stopped paying out money in Marseille because of a shortage of funds and residents were reported withdrawing money from the state savings bank. Unusual activity in food stores indicated some housewives were laying in extra supplies.

Orly airport near here was expected to be almost idle. The state-run airline, Air France, cancelled all flights.

The unrest was spreading in the postal and telecommunications services. Workers in Paris mail-sorting centres walked out Friday night and reports came today from Le Havre and Rouen that all postal workers were on strike there. Similar news was expected later from other centres.

There were about 300,000 men out Friday and managers and executives were held captive in many factories.

OBJECT TO HEADLINE

As some workers walked off their jobs, others took indirect action. The independent newspaper Le Figaro announced that only part of its circulation was run off the presses because pressmen objected to a headline.

Secretary-General Georges Seguy of the powerful, Communist-backed trade union federa-

Thieu Names New S. Viet Premier

SAIGON (AP) — President Nguyen Thieu announced appointment today of Tran Van Huong, 64, as South Vietnam's new premier.

Thieu made the announcement in a prepared nationwide radio and television address nine hours after he accepted the resignation of Premier Nguyen Van Loe at an emergency cabinet meeting.

The announcement put a quick end to the threat of a long government crisis which could have undermined the position of the U.S. delegation in the Paris peace talks. But it did not necessarily heal the widening split between Thieu and his strong-willed vice-president, Air Vice-Marshal Nguyen Cao Ky.

Loc is a close associate of Ky, who is opposed to the American effort to end the war by negotiation and compromise. Thieu's attitude has been more flexible.

In his resignation statement, Loc declared that South Vietnam faces "grave danger" from the Paris talks.

For the last three days, Ky's friends have passed the word that Huong, a former premier, is unacceptable to the vice-president.

Informants said Ky suspects

. . . TALKS

South Vietnam, Thuy's reply "was evasive."

Since that meeting, Harriman went on, "your spokesman, Mr. Nguyen Thanh Le, is quoted in the press as saying that my statement concerning the presence of North Vietnamese army troops in South Vietnam is a 'perfidious calumny' . . ."

"I am particularly astounded, that you should seek to evade acknowledgement of a simply and utterly verified fact."

'NO COMPROMISE'

A spokesman for Thuy said Friday there could be "no compromise" on the demand for total cessation of all U.S. bombing attacks.

The entire series of issues centring around the bombing appeared to be wholly deadlocked until one side or the other was ready to make a major breakaway move. Without such a move the talks could founder. For the moment, both sides seemed to be fighting a battle for public opinion.

The newest element in the apparent stalemate was a statement by Vice-President Hubert H. Humphrey at the University of Maine Friday night.

"It has now been agreed at Paris," Humphrey declared, "that the North Vietnamese can have whomever they want on their side and we will have whomever we want on our side."

"It's just that simple," Humphrey said.

His statement implied that the way had been cleared for the South Vietnamese government and the National Liberation Front to join the Paris talks.

Humphrey's aides hurriedly told reporters that the vice-president was only stating what the United States position had been all along.

The statement caused a flurry in the American delegation here, however. After first declining direct comment, a U.S. official said there had been no agreement on this matter in Paris.

The ground rules, established during two preliminary meetings between both sides May 10 and May 11, were that only U.S. and North Vietnamese citizens would take part in "official conversations" on the war.

At the last session, Harriman outlined five areas of apparent agreement between Hanoi and Washington ranging from common state support of an independent and democratic South Vietnam to strict application of the military provisions of the 1954 Geneva accord.

Xuan Thuy refused to discuss them Wednesday. And today, an official Hanoi radio broadcast described Harriman's "five areas of agreement" as "five basic differences" which "contrast with each other like water and fire, light and darkness, kindness and cruelty, justice and injustice."

. . . FRANCE

tion CGT said Friday night the chief demand of the workers was that the government cancel decrees increasing social security contributions and cutting benefits.

In Paris, scene of violent student rioting earlier this month, the Sorbonne and the Theatre de France remained under student control.

Some 10,000 reserve gendarmes—semi-military policemen—were called into the tense capital where North Vietnamese and American delegates were continuing negotiations on the Vietnam war.

Meanwhile, personnel of the state-run radio and television networks threatened today to call strikes that would cut off de Gaulle's main communication link with the French people. But they did not decide when or how to launch the strike.

WARNING ISSUED

The gravity of the situation was underlined Friday night by Industry Minister Olivier Guichard, who warned that France risked losing valuable export markets with the final European Common Market trade barriers scheduled to come down July 1.

French stocks fell sharply on the Paris stock exchange Friday as reports of work stoppages poured in.

Premier Georges Pompidou called together the ministers of the interior and the armed forces and police service chiefs for a strategy planning session Friday.

Student demonstrations, however, seemed to be losing steam. About 1,000 marched on the senate early today but gave up at the first security cordon.

Strike leaders around the country said they did not rely on students to achieve success for them.

The radio-television personnel announced a seven-point complaint list. They objected to everything from "government interference in the objectivity of news reports" to the attachment of the facility to the ministry of information. But they gave no date for a strike.

Militant students had planned to occupy the state's television studios but changed their mind after cordons of gendarmes surrounded the building. Police also circled the Eiffel Tower and the opera.

SURROUND PALACE

The students nevertheless kept up their occupation offensive by trying to occupy the historic Luxembourg Palace where the French senate meets.

But by the time the student march reached it early today, a double hedge of helmeted gendarmes had surrounded the palace.

Sizing up the police opposition, the students decided to merely parade in front of the building.

About 1,000 students marched to the suburban Boulogne-Billincourt plant of the Renault auto works.

But the workers told the students they could not come into the plant, where the workers are staging a sit in. The students, many from well-off families, mumbled that the Communist-led labor unions were too conservative and bourgeoise.

Some strikers interrupted air and rail traffic and mail distribution.

HALT TRAINS

All trains that pass through Dijon, in southeast-central France, were reported to have been halted.

At Valence, in the south, workers occupied a rail depot and stopped all trains, including the Geneva-to-Barcelona trans-European express. In nearby Avignon, the station was occupied by railway men who stopped trains and ordered passengers to disembark.

As usual during such times, army trucks were used for hauling commuters to Paris.

Mail distribution workers were walking off the job in post offices all over the country, causing late deliveries.

Apology Sent Premier Over Pickets

The international representative in British Columbia for the International Union of Operating Engineers has apologized to Premier Bennett for an incident last Tuesday in a Vancouver strike.

Ed Callan of Victoria said he has apologized by letter for "any embarrassment or inconvenience you may have suffered" with pickets in the area of a school where a Social Credit party rally was held.

The incident was also referred to the union's Canadian director, Rowland Hill of Toronto.

Mr. Callan, however, denied a report that he has asked Mr. Hill to censure fellow trade unionists or to take steps against officers of Vancouver Local 963 of the union.

Pickets at the school were withdrawn across the street but Mr. Callan, who was out of Vancouver at the time, said he would have withdrawn the pickets completely.

Rally organizers decided against holding the meeting inside the school and arranged to have it on the school lawn. A truck bringing chairs was halted by pickets, who were across the street, but the chairs were unloaded.

Mr. Callan also said it was "unfortunate" that the political rally was being held at one of the strike-affected schools.

paign, and Edwin A. Goodman, Conservative campaign chairman.

Mr. Goodman and Senator Nicol represented their parties in talks with the CTV network that broke down Friday after the Liberals said there had to be recognition of the other political parties in any debate in which Mr. Trudeau would take part.

Mr. Goodman said Friday Mr. Trudeau "deviously" scuppered the plans by insisting that Mr. Douglas, Creditiste Leader Real Caouette and A. B. Patterson, acting leader of the three-man Social Credit group, be included in the debate.

"In addition to not having the courage to meet Mr. Stanfield in the House of Commons, Mr. Trudeau does not have the courage to meet Mr. Stanfield in a face-to-face debate," he told a news conference.

Four hours later, Senator John Nichol, co-chairman of the Liberal campaign, issued a statement saying Mr. Goodman would not enter into discussions "as to formats by which other parliamentary leaders could participate."

FIVE AND TEN COUNTED OUT BEFORE NINE

A Woolworth's bazaar proved too bizarre for City Hall Friday.

The sidewalk stalls on Douglas Street near Yates, described by one alderman as "a regular honky-tonk kind of thing," were withdrawn after a meeting between city officials and store manager K. J. Firth.

"It seems that Woolworth's got a little out of line — perhaps carried away by merchandising zeal," said city manager Dennis Young.

Store manager K. J. Firth, who thought the stalls "would add a little gaiety" to the holiday weekend, said the display was removed at the end of business at 9 p.m. Friday.

the canals of Europe to the Mediterranean and the vast hulk of Gibraltar.

Then they crossed the Atlantic, with stops at the Canary Islands and Barbados before making a landing at Venezuela.

They explored the Dutch East Indies, slipped through the Panama Canal and headed south to Ecuador and the Galapagos and the Marquesas and on to Honolulu.

Their sole companion since Panama has been Ben Gunn the parrot.

"Hello little sweetheart!" was another expression he picked up on the voyage.

Mrs. Manning was greeted by her sisters, Mrs. Linda Tibbs of Victoria and Miss Joan Lang from Winnipeg. Many Victoria friends pressed forward to greet the couple as they tied up in the Inner Harbor.

Mr. Fred Manning and his family greeted John and Pat at Race Rocks from their cruiser, Nani Li. But no embraces or handshakes were permitted until they had cleared quarantine and customs.

Nor were friends allowed on board.

But there will be plenty of hugs and handshakes at a reunion in the Manning home at 3225 Ripon Road tonight.

Relatives from Vancouver, Winnipeg and New York will be there and a rare good time will be had by all.

Welcome home, Powindah!

Municipalities Asking Change In Tax Notice

A change in Premier Bennett's "simplified" property tax form is being asked by the Association of Vancouver Island Municipalities.

Saanich Mayor Hugh Curtis told the annual meeting of the association Friday that by calling for a change he was not implying criticism against the department of municipal affairs nor against Minister of Municipal Affairs Dan Campbell.

"A decision on the new form was taken from high up by someone not too concerned with the problems of municipal government," Mayor Curtis said. "It has brought many difficulties to the municipalities because of its over-simplification and it must be very difficult for the taxpayer to understand."

The association voted unanimously to take the matter to the September meeting of the Union of British Columbia Municipalities to seek provincial endorsation.

Fire Damages Warehouses In Vic West

Fire caused an estimated $500 damage to Sidney Roofing Ltd. warehouses on Songhees Road in Vic West early Friday.

Fire officials said the fire broke out in rubbish beside one building about 3:25 a.m. The outside wall of the building and the roof of an adjoining building were damaged.

Three fire trucks answered the alarm. Two were back at the station by 4:30 and the third remained at the scene until 6:30.

Unregistered Guest Fined

A man fined $25 Thursday for causing a disturbance pleaded guilty today to a charge of vagrancy.

George Tracy, 516 Yates, was found asleep in a downtown hotel room Friday. He was not registered in the hotel, court was told.

Tracy escaped a jail sentence when a Salvation Army officer appealed to the court for permission to bring Tracy back to the Harbour Light rehabilitation centre where he previously had been undergoing treatment.

Tracy was fined $25 and given two weeks to pay provided he went straight to the Harbour Light Centre from court.

Huong of a willingness to end the war by compromise. Ky was the only government member absent from the cabinet meeting. He was reported at the South Vietnamese air base at Nha Trang, 200 miles northeast of Saigon.

Huong, a Buddhist from Vinh Long in the Mekong delta, has twice served as mayor of Saigon.

Sources said he had been under "hard pressure from Ky and some generals to refuse the premier's office."

During last fall's campaign when he ran for the presidency, Huong repeatedly hinted that he might be willing to negotiate with the National Liberation Front if this could assure "genuine peace and freedom" for South Vietnam.

There was no hint in Thieu's brief address of the backstage in-fighting of the past week between South Vietnam's politicians and generals. Nor did he mention Ky.

Thieu said Loc resigned because "the situation required it." He confirmed he had asked Loc to remain in office as caretaker premier until the new cabinet takes over.

Group Burns Draft Cards

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP) — Nine persons, six of them present or former members of Roman Catholic orders, grabbed files from a draft board office Friday and burned them in a parking lot.

Two of the group had been convicted last month of spilling blood on draft board records.

"We destroyed these records because they exploit our young men and represent misplaced power, concentrated in the ruling class of America," said a prepared statement by the seven men and two women.

A U.S. commissioner set bond at $7,500 each for the two previously convicted and $2,500 each for the other seven. All nine were held in jail in lieu of bond.

Driver Fined After Chase

David Russell, 480 Admirals, was fined $100 Friday for careless driving.

Police reported they chased Russell at high speed for several blocks in Esquimalt early today.

John Fleming, Work Point Barracks, was fined $40 for careless driving after court was told he was involved in an accident in the 500 block Head Street, April 24.

Both men pleaded guilty.

Trumpet Blast Opens 'Terre des Hommes'

By JOYCE FAIRBAIRN
Times Ottawa Bureau

MONTREAL — Prime Minister Trudeau joined thousands of shivering Montrealers Friday to watch the son of Expo open with a wet but explosive bang.

It was one of Mr. Trudeau's last "non-campaign" appearances, made all the more intriguing because it was the first time he has publicly met Quebec Premier Daniel Johnson since becoming prime minister.

Today he makes his first official political foray to Toronto where he will meet with Ontario organizers and candidates and test his popularity at three large shopping centres.

Mr. Trudeau flew to the Expo islands from Ottawa in a Canadian Coast Guard helicopter which set down on a grassy plain at Ile Sainte-Helene.

A driving rainstorm did little to dampen the good spirits of the 4,500 guests, most of whom were provided with plastic raincoats courtesy of the City of Montreal.

Mr. Trudeau bore a marked resemblance to one of the "Men From Uncle" in a tan belted raincoat with a matching raincap.

His main political foe in Quebec—Premier Daniel Johnson—presented a contrast in a dark overcoat and homburg.

The two men, who have been trading some fairly weighty oral blows in recent days, remained perfect gentlemen for the occasion.

Before venturing into the rain for the opening they gathered indoors with other dignitaries and, according to aides, chatted and "exchanged pleasantries."

Although Mr. Trudeau provided a popular added highlight to Terre des Hommes—or son of Expo as it is fondly called — Montreal's bouncy Mayor Jean Drapeau was also very much front and centre.

The revamped Expo has been a passionate dream of Mr. Drapeau's since the great success last year and nothing, be it politics or weather, could steal the show.

It was all noise and color—and no speeches.

Trumpets blared and drums rolled as the flags of all participating nations were raised at Place des Nations and the crowd joined in a rousing chorus of O Canada in the pouring rain.

There were 2,200 invited guests including Quebec and federal politicians, members of the diplomatic corps and Lieutenant-Governor Hugues Lapointe.

IN FIRST CONFRONTATION with Quebec Premier Daniel Johnson since becoming prime minister, Pierre Trudeau shares pleasantry at signing of "little Expo" guest register. Both attended opening of Man and His World fair on former Expo site in St. Lawrence. Mrs. Jean Drapeau, wife of Montreal mayor, stands between the two.

TRUDEAU JOINS HERD

JACKSON, Wyo. (AP) — Canadian Prime Minister Trudeau has been elected to membership in the Jackson Hole Bachelor Herd.

The invitation said the bachelor premier, "should taste our most special version of the freedom enjoyed by all male animals before the female snare is sprung."

The Bachelor Herd was organized after the weekly newspaper here published a list of eligible bachelors in the area as a Leap Year service to unmarried women.

Militants 'Threat To U.S.'

WASHINGTON (AP)—Director J. Edgar Hoover of the Federal Bureau of Investigation says revolutionary stands taken by militant black nationalist groups and students of the new left in the United States pose a threat to the country's security.

He told Congress the black nationalist groups he had in mind were the Student Non-Violent Co-Ordinating Committee, the Black Muslims and the Revolutionary Action Movement. They are, he said, "a distinct threat to the internal security of the nation."

The FBI chief said the new left, typified by the Students for a Democratic Society, is "a new type of subversive, and their danger is great."

Hoover appeared before a House of Representatives appropriations subcommittee Feb. 23 and his testimony was released today. He seeks approval of a $207,500,000 budget for the fiscal year starting July 1.

He expressed concern over reports that black nationalist groups are stockpiling weapons "for use against the white man. . . ."

HOOVER
. . . great danger

'COULD BE TRUE'

He said these reports could well be true because guns are easily obtained and "in light of the inflammatory urgings of such agitators as Stokely CarMichael, H. Rapp Brown and James Froman of the Student Non-Violent Co-Ordinating Committee."

Hoover also testified:

—Membership in racist groups like the Ku Klux Klan is dwindling in the heart of the U.S. South with about 14,000 Klansmen still in business. But, he added, "there are thousands of sympathizers."

—The FBI investigated 29,228 reported violations of the Selective Service Act last year. While many young people "noisily and brazenly advocated the burning and turning in of draft cards" to demonstrate opposition to the Vietnam war, "many just went through the motions with phoney cards."

—The Mexican Communist party has made plans to store weapons and ammunition in preparation for a revolution in Mexico and already has designated staging areas for the revolt—one unspecified area 150 miles from Laredo, Tex.

—The U.S. Communist party has tried to link civil rights protests with its opposition to the Vietnam war as part of a program "to create one massive movement which they hope will ultimately change our government's policies, both foreign and domestic."

$500 Bail in Drug Traffic Charge

Bail was set at $500 Friday for a man charged with trafficking in marijuana.

Paul Durrell, 21, of 959 Madison, was remanded without plea for one week.

Thursday, the Crown withdrew a charge of possession of marijuana against Durrell and indicated a new charge would be put forward.

Voluntary Service Plan Urged

EDMONTON (CP) — Canada should develop a national voluntary service program that would capture the world's imagination, Alan Clarke, executive director of the Company of Young Canadians, said Friday.

Such a program "could put thousands of young people to work in community projects and socially useful jobs," Mr. Clarke said in an address to the Alberta College commencement banquet.

Mr. Clarke called for a national conference of governments, universities, private groups and interested citizens to study how the program could be started.

The conference could find ways of supporting existing programs more fully and ways of establishing new projects across the country, he said.

"I am convinced that such a scheme would be the most significant social program we could possibly develop in the interest of Canada's young people," Mr. Clarke said.

He said although the work of such agencies as Canadian University Service and the Alberta Service Corps is worthy, it is not enough.

He said he was thinking of projects that could range from helping politicians with research to taking underprivileged children to the zoo on weekends.

"The opportunities are limited only by our imaginations."

Tax Incentives Pledged As PCs Stress Economy

Times Ottawa Bureau

NORTH BAY, Ont. — The economic management of Canada must be the key issue of this election campaign, Concervative Leader Robert Stanfield said here Friday night.

He told an audience of 500 in this under-developed region that the Liberal government had lost the confidence of the investment world and it must be regained.

The Tory leader pledged a Tory government to continue tax incentives to resource-development industries despite contrary recommendations in the Carter royal commission report on taxation.

Stanfiled flew to northern Ontario at the end of a week's campaigning mainly in the Maritimes.

TWO MEETINGS

He spoke at two evening meetings in North Bay and nearby Sundridge.

Each drew audiences of slightly more than 500 people, and they were typical of the other crowds that Stanfield talked to during his first major campaign swing.

They listened attentively to his speech, but there was little applause and no signs of excitement.

In North Bay, his stand-up, tried-and-true joke about Prime Minister Trudeau's age saved the body of his 30-minute talk from a total-silence response.

It drew the usual chuckles, but there was no reaction as he repeated his attack on Trudeau's position on the issue of federal-provincial relations and the confrontation over Quebec's international ambitions.

But Stanfield downplayed this compared with his major personal attack on Trudeau in Halifax Thursday night, and stuck to resource development and claims of the Liberals' inability to deal with regional problems and economic disparity.

KEY FACTORS

He contended that these are the key factors that must be hammered out in the campaign leading up to the June 25 election.

"The urgent and pressing problems of Canada require the constant attention of men of ability and maturity of experience and outlook in the government of Canada," said Stanfield.

He pointed to the continuing problems of inflation, unemployment and high interest rates among others.

"Under these circumstances, I hope the government of Canada will do something more constructive over the next six weeks than attempt to fill the air with legal arguments about contrasting constitutional positions or theories," he maintained.

MAJOR RALLY

Tory officials said Stanfield would have a major policy announcement when he resumes electioneering next week, and the "official" opening of the campaign in Winnipeg Tuesday.

They also hope that the major rally in the priarie city will start to build up enthusiasm for the Tory leader, a quiet, non-flamboyant, serious man.

His crowds during this past week ranged from the anticipated to the disappointing — particularly in Newfoundland where the Tories are hoping for a breakthrough.

Stanfield rode in an open convertible in a cavalcade headed by a pipeband through downtown North Bay before his meeting, but it did not attract much attention.

Old Man and the Human Sea

WITH THE EYES OF THE world on Paris for the peace talks, President de Gaulle's France is revealed as a nation in disarray. Starting with student strikes in apparently merited protest against archaic conditions in the universities, the inevitable organizers of chaos have moved in to help—the international group of professional protesters whose work was recently evident in Berlin and London. In France, the political significance has been augmented by the widespread strikes with which industrial workers have demonstrated support for the students. Street violence in Paris has been met by tough police measures, which in turn will probably evoke further violence. And the involvement of Communist elements—the General Labor Confederation of France is Communist-led—adds further to the seriousness of the nation's situation.

The breadth and depth of the unrest in France indicates that more than surface causes must be in play. But there seems to be a parallel in the student unrest and public ferment which has recently been making headlines in Poland and Czechoslovakia. Here the irony of the situation becomes evident, for the very spirit of unrest which Communist supporters encourage in the West as a means of weakening the democratic structure is that which in the East the Communist regimes must put down.

The Times, of London, notes that in Paris, "the concessions on the basic students' demands were not made until after the street fighting had broken out. The Communists are already pointing that moral. Students elsewhere in Europe who believe that violence pays — there are some — will all too quickly say that their arguments are strengthened."

But the same tactics will not, of course, be condoned in Communist-governed countries. Youthful rebellion is an exportable commodity, not for home consumption.

Such considerations in any case will be of little comfort to General de Gaulle, who, an old man representing a world that flourished two generations ago, must understand and try to guide a youthful force which today has no true form or direction but is concerned mainly with self-expression, reaction to authority, and exploration of an environment that is not understood or even liked.

That this almost universal rebellion takes place in a world which has more material advantages than humanity has ever before enjoyed, faster communications, more ingenious recreations and pleasures, greater access to knowledge, and in many cases wider freedom than in all previous history—this surely carries its own lesson.

Suggestion of an Echo

WITH ALMOST NO OPPOSITION, the West German Bundestag has passed the controversial Emergency Regulations bill and all that is needed now to bring the act into force is the approval of the United States, Britain and France, the wartime allies who still preserve a measure of control over certain German matters. No difficulty is expected in obtaining this approval and the act will probably become effective May 29 after final parliamentary reading.

Although there was little Bundestag opposition—the Free Democratic Party dissented only because it wanted a slightly different bill—the act has provoked wide-spread unrest in other quarters in Germany. The main fight against its passage has come, not unexpectedly, from the militant student groups and other members of the so-called "extra-parliamentary opposition" made up of Germans who feel that the monolithic nature of the coalition government permits little expression of disapproval of government policies.

For anyone inside Germany or outside who can clearly remember the turbulent closing days of the Weimar Republic, or who has studied the history of that period, a degree of uneasiness about some parts of the Emergency Measures Act is understandable. While most of the legislation concerns commonsense precautions for a national emergency, there are areas where a loose definition of what would be an emergency might be a matter for concern. The act, for instance, gives the government the power to use the West German armed forces to support the police in combatting armed insurgency, but without pinning down what this state of affairs would be. There is also a clause which gives all Germans the right to resist those who try to set aside the "free democratic order." Does this mean that if workers go on strike or students mount a protest that citizens could be encouraged to take the law into their own hands?

Much of the bill, in fact, resembles Article 48 of the Weimar Constitution which gave the president of the Republic sweeping powers and which was used by Hitler, supported by the army and other right-wing elements, with President von Hindenburg as their puppet, to establish the Nazi regime. As one opponent of the measure declared: "We are children who have been burned and we have learned to keep away from fire." It was not only Germans who were burned, however, and misgivings about this legislation are bound to be widespread.

Threat of Rural Slums

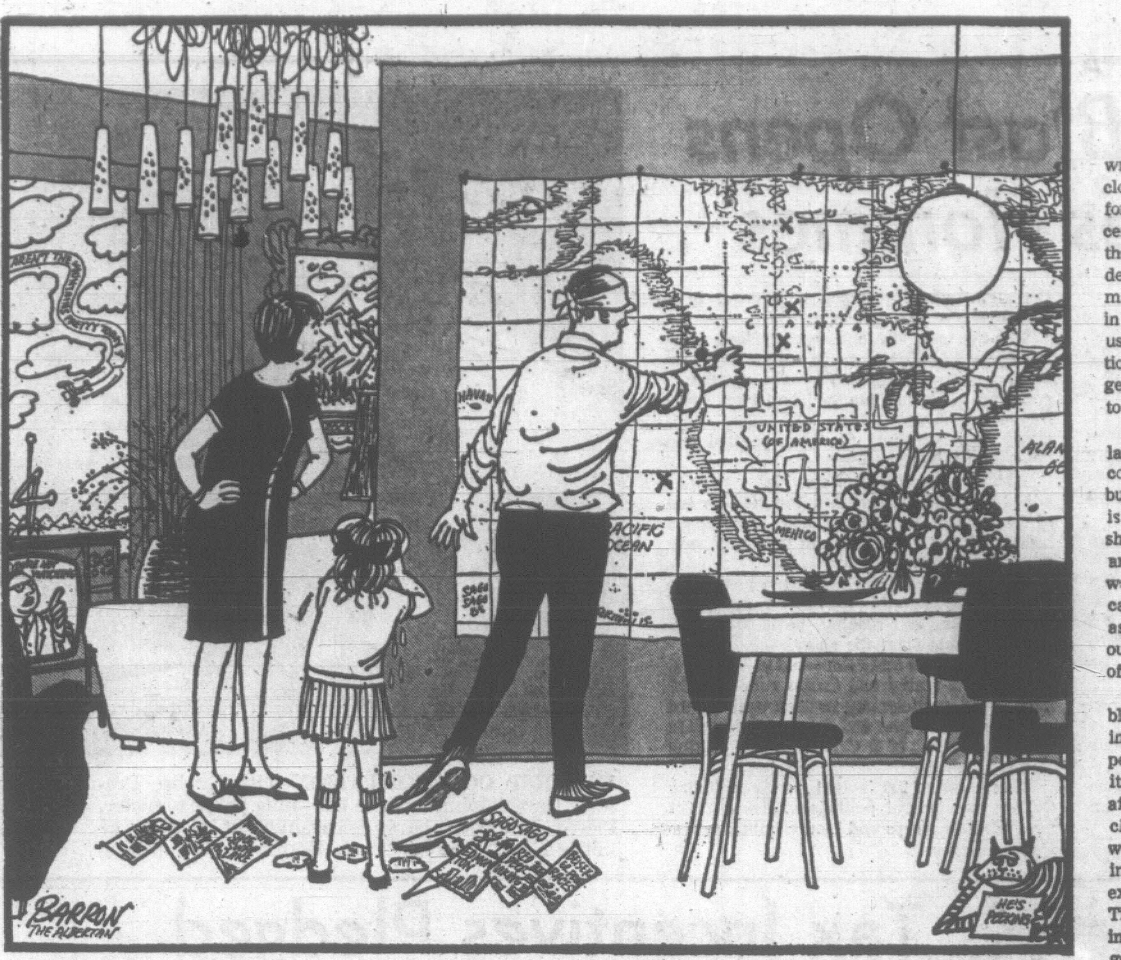
THE SHARP CRITICISM BY Mayor Hugh Curtis of what he considers haphazard and ugly development on Gulf Islands property exposes a trend which could convert some of the scenic areas of this part of the country into rural slums. He reports that a man-made lake around which undersized lots are being used for substandard dwellings is already polluted. Lack of planning, he adds, is causing chaos, seriously alarming residents of long standing and creating conditions which clamor for control.

The Saanich mayor's concern, as well as the concern of others, emphasizes a change from earlier days when a person could build himself a modest cabin in the wilds and make it the centre of outdoor vacations for himself and his family. The property that was once wilderness is, in many cases, becoming land development acreage for real estate operators whose primary concern is making a profit. There is nothing wrong with that objective, provided it is sought along lines compatible with the rights and privileges of others. But if a desirable environment is being destroyed in the process, then something is wrong.

In the years ahead it is conceivable that such questionable land development will increase. More and more urban residents will be looking for relatively uncultivated areas in which to enjoy escape from the tensions of urban living. Accessible property in summer home areas is already high-priced and scarce. As the demand increases, the mayor's argument gains added validity. Real estate deals of the kind drawing his complaint in the Gulf Islands will have to be curbed. If they are not, then the natural beauty of the islands and other attractive locations will be irretrievably lost.



"... that's three times out of five it's landed in Saskatchewan, Ralph ... we'll NEVER decide where to spend our holidays at this rate ..."

Nothing Is Free

A student of St. Ann's Academy writes she is sad and angry at the closing of St. Louis College. Her respect for her own school is refreshing and certainly displays reasoning and thinking that gives one hope there are still a few decent young ones coming along to maintain sanity on this earth, especially in the midst of those marching hordes of useless creatures polluting our civilization. Any idiot can tear down but it takes generations of plain guts and true loyalty to build up.

One item I beg to question the young lady upon, as well as all others who constantly throw up the cry against building dams and roads and such. There is nothing "free" in this world, nor should there be. We must learn the value and price of what we are seeking, our worth to society as a whole, not what we can extract from any given government as a God-given right. Maturity proves our justification for existence, regardless of our respective age.

Free education in itself is not a blessing. There must exist an imbalance in our system of schooling when young people not ready to face the responsibilities of paying for their schooling can afford better, newer and more expensive clothing, drive cars, spend all winter week-ends skiing at far-flung resorts and indulge in selfish pleasures at the expense of the entire wage-earing nation. The contributors to your schools deserve in return, the benefits of dams and a few good roads for necessity rather than pleasure.— Mrs. F. N. Moon, 3335 Lockering.

A Tory Smokescreen to Blur the Quebec Issue

MR. STANFIELD'S latest official statement and his comments at a Fredericton press conference appear to constitute a prudent disengagement from the Trudeau-Johnson controversy over the alleged international competence of provincial governments. In a sense the Conservative leader never actually engaged because his criticisms of the federal performance were tangential and perhaps only intended as a sympathetic gesture towards Mr. Faribault, whom his party had been wooing. Even so Mr. Stanfield has apparently had sober second thoughts; he now concedes by implication that his comments were premature. He explained at Fredericton that he lacked sufficient information to judge whether Quebec's actions at Libreville and Paris fell within the guidelines of his latest statement.

Western

Mr. Faribault, one suspects, will be very disappointed with Mr. Stanfield's paper because it does not seem to differ in any important respect from the policy already stated by Mr. Trudeau. It begins as follows:

"There can be no question that the federal government is responsible for Canada's foreign policy. Under international law, no Canadian province has, nor can it acquire, the status of a sovereign state. Nor can any province speak for other provinces in fields of provincial jurisdiction with authorization from the other provinces."

Mr. Trudeau has not merely made these points; he has acted to ensure that a province does not, through the creation of precedents, acquire attributes of sovereignty.

But Mr. Stanfield goes on to say that it is desirable for provinces to "have contacts and sometimes arrangements with other countries in areas of their responsibility such as education." At St. main difference between his position and that of the government in Mr. Trudeau's alleged insistence that under no circumstances should a province do any business abroad. "I suggest that, under strictly defined conditions, such contacts are useful and beneficial."

Never So Rigid

There is nothing like a smokescreen to cover a withdrawal. Mr. Trudeau has never taken such a rigid position. It would be difficult for him to do so because, as Mr. Stanfield says in his own paper: "Indeed, these contacts and arrangements have been going on for many years and on the part of more than one province. In the first of his documents prepared for the constitutional conference, Federalism and International Relations, Mr. Trudeau wrote: "While there can, of course, be informal or unofficial contacts between provincial agents and foreign agencies or international organizations, there can be no official dealings unless they are authorized or arranged by the federal government."

Mr. Stanfield ignores this important distinction.

But in a press release covering the second document, Federalism and International Conferences on Education, Mr. Trudeau indicated that Ottawa was more than ready to make practical accommodations to facilitate legitimate arrangements sought by the provinces. The relevant paragraphs are the following:

"The question of provincial participation in international conferences raises important questions of principle which are of concern to all Canadians. The conduct of Canada's foreign policy cannot be compartmentalized into certain areas which are within the competence of the Government of Canada and others which are of provincial or local concern . . .

"Within this basic framework there is wide latitude for collaboration between the federal and provincial governments with respect to intergovernmental conferences and other areas of international co-operation which can give full scope to the interests of the provinces and of individual Canadians of both major linguistic groups. This has been shown in the past in connection with Canadian participation in a variety of international organizations, and conferences of interest to the provinces, particularly in relation to the field of education.

Balanced Approach

"The policy of the Canadian government in arranging for Canadian representation in international organizations and international conferences on education is to work closely with provincial authorities to establish balanced delegaions which take account of both federal jurisdiction in external affairs and provincial jurisdiction in relation to education . . . The government hopes that existing procedures of federal-provincial co-operation in this field can be expanded and improved."

Mr. Stanfield is left with the argument that the matter should be cleared up and future difficulties avoided by appropriate amendments to the constitution. That the subject is a proper one for discussion Mr. Trudeau, of course, concedes; otherwise there would be no point in preparing the two documents already referred to for the use of the constitutional conference.

In advance of careful study, however, even this argument may be premature. At present there is nothing in the British North American Act covering foreign relations. The power was originally in the imperial government and was inherited unimpaired by the federal government of Canada.

If it is now to be set out in a written document, subject to later interpretation by the courts, great care will have to be taken to avoid a wording which afterwards appears unduly restrictive.

Mr. Stanfield evidently feels that, as part of the same exercise, a limited provincial competence should be spelled out in such matters as education. In fact, as the two documents show, federal-provincial co-operation has been achieved in recent years by a whole spectrum of arrangements, including indemnity agreements (The Columbia Treaty, which included a separate deal with British Columbia, as executor of the treaty terms), ad hoc agreements (the educational "entente" between Quebec and France) and the accord cadre, which provides an umbrella for future acts of collaboration. Thus there is now a great measure of flexibility suited to the increasing complexity of our relations with foreign states.

How is all this to be reduced to a few clauses appropriate to a constitutional instrument? Mr. Stanfield makes it sound all very simple. In practice it would certainly be difficult; it might also be dangerous and in the long run distinctly less satisfactory than the system which has been worked out over time in response to actual problems and is doubtless capable of further development to meet changing needs.

SPECIAL REPORT FROM PARIS

By WILLIAM R. FRYE

Nudging Saigon Toward Acceptance of Coalition

HOW deep is the rift between the United States and South Vietnam over the Paris peace talks? That there is a rift, only lightly papered over in public, few here doubt. That it derives in part from the possibility of Communists sharing political power in a postwar Saigon is also apparent. What is not clear is exactly how far the United States has gone to nudge the Thieu-Ky regime toward coalition government, and exactly how explosive Saigon's private reaction has been.

Frye

The known facts are these:

1. On the day before "official conversations" between Washington and Hanoi began in the Hotel Majestic here, a highly placed source gave a background briefing in which he said that although coalition was a dirty word there can be ways in which the South Vietnamese Communists can be included in the political picture in South Vietnam.

If they intend to seize exclusive power, however, the source added, the United States is not going to leave things in a state so they could succeed.

Must Settle

In the last analysis, he declared, the political situation in the south will have to be settled between the Saigon government and the South Vietnamese Communists.

It will help if Saigon broadens its present political base, the source remarked.

2. On Monday, May 13, United States negotiator W. Averell Harriman, presenting the initial American position to Xuan Thuy, his opposite number from Hanoi, said South Vietnam had "established national reconciliation as an "objective."

"This means," he said, "that all individuals, regardless of their past actions, may receive the full rights of citizenship."

Later, summing up his major points, Harriman repeated that "all persons should participate peacefully in (South Vietnam's) political life according to the one-man, one-vote principle. This means every citizen should be assured that he can exercise his individual political rights as he sees fit within democratic procedures."

3. On Tuesday May 14, Bui Diem, South Vietnamese ambassador to the United States, called on Harriman and his deputy, Cyrus Vance, at the American embassy here. He emerged in a serious mein.

On Wednesday morning, May 15, a Washington newspaper printed a story saying the United States would accept a role for Reds regardless of the protests of the Thieu-Ky government. The story was given prominence in the Paris Herald Tribune.

Secretary of State Dean Rusk thereupon denied that the United States would "impose" a coalition on South Vietnam. "False reports of this kind," Rusk said, "mislead Hanoi into thinking that their propaganda can divide the United States and its allies."

Harriman said the United States was "not in favor of a coalition government in South Vietnam." William J. Jorden, Harriman's spokesman, meticulously backed away from all discussion of the issue in his Wednesday press briefing, insisting that the political process in South Vietnam was something for the South Vietnamese alone to decide.

Observers thought it was obvious Rusk, Harriman and Jorden were pulling back from the implications of the May 13 statement. Jorden seemed to be adding a possibility of special qualifications for the vote.

Finally, on Thursday evening, May 16, Harriman gave a series of television interviews. In the interview with Marvin Kalb of CBS, Kalb remarked that members of the South Vietnamese observer team in Paris "feel they are going through the early stages of a sell-out."

Propaganda

Harriman responded: "I would say they are being affected by Communist propaganda."

Harriman attempted to explain away apparent inconsistencies in the American position, implying that normal political argument and discussion, without intimidation and violence, would be an acceptable role for Communists to play, and indicated he hoped the South Vietnamese, who would have to decide the question, would arrive voluntarily at this position.

It seemed clear to observers, however, that the United States was seeking to press Saigon further and faster in the direction of political compromise than it wished to go, and that behind-scenes resistance from the South Vietnamese was making it difficult for Harriman to take a coherent and consistent stand in his negotiations with Thuy.

Nature Rambles

By FREEMAN KING

Out on Triangle Hill there is a wonderful view and a fine display of wild flowers.

Here the delphiniums grow in abundance, particularly on the southern slope. See how the leaves are deeply cleft into three or five fingers.

Growing with them are carpets of seablush. If you look closely on the ground, you can find the little cancer root with its single violet-tinged blooms. This plant is parasitic.

Note the two different species of stone crop that abound on the rocks. Both are now in bloom, showing their star-like flowers and thick leaves.

Scattered around the hill you can find many types of clover, some mingled with the fringe cups and saxifrages.

There are a number of hairy manzanita bushes here. A few are over eight feet tall. They are growing beside the arbutus, and are often called dwarf arbutus. Both plants belong to the heather family.

On the top there are some very old stunted Douglas firs that have an extremely heavy cone crop developing this year. The tops of these old trees are broken, so perhaps this is a form of distress crop. Look at the branches and see how gnarled and twisted they are from the ever present winds.

From the summit there is a very fine view of the surrounding country. To the east the sprawl of Greater Victoria shows up, with its new high-rise buildings, with the RCN establishment in the foreground.

Look south across the Strait and see the outline of the shore on the Olympic Peninsula with its backdrop of snow covered peaks.

The shore islands seem to take on a different form seen from above, while the ships standing out to sea seem like toy boats on a pond.

To the west one can see the rugged outline of the mountains which seem to reach back into a blue haze.

Down in the little valley to the northwest a little man-made lake glistens in the sun. Here the water-loving plants have now taken a firm hold.

ONE VOICE FOR CANADA AFTER THE PROVINCES HAVE BEEN CONSULTED

(The following is a summary of the proposals made by the federal government in its White Paper on "Federalism and International Conferences on Education" which was issued by External Affairs Minister Sharp as the result of differences between Quebec and Ottawa arising from the province's participation at the educational conferences in Gabon and in Paris.)

The government considers that the proposals which it has put forward to the Province of Quebec in connection with representation at international meetings of French-speaking states concerning education, together with procedures established in the past for participation in meetings of the Commonwealth, UNESCO and the IBE in this field, represent a sound foundation on which a basis for arrangements acceptable to the federal and provincial governments might be found.

In summary, the federal government's proposals for attendance at international conferences which deal with matters of interest and concern to the provinces, particularly those in the educational field, are based on the following principles:

(1) Delegations to be sent to such conferences should be Canadian delegations. They should speak, act and vote on behalf of Canada.

(2) There should be a substantial provincial component in all such delegations.

(3) In international conferences on education, a subject concerning which provinces have domestic jurisdiction, Canadian delegations should normally be headed by provincial ministers or, as appropriate, by other persons acceptable to all concerned, for example, leading university figures, and should include ministers of education or officials of interested provinces.

(4) Where the meeting is one of ministers from French-speaking countries with responsibilities in the educational field, the head of the delegation should normally be a Quebec minister or, where appropriate, a minister of another province with a large French-speaking population. The delegation should, in any case, include, in the capacity of delegate or adviser, persons from provinces with substantial francophone populations.

* * *

(5) In meetings on educational matters, the Council of Ministers of Education should be consulted in order to obtain agreement on a satisfactory delegation; in the case of UNESCO meetings, liaison should also be continued with the Canadian National Commission for UNESCO.

(6) The role of the Council of Ministers of Education in the process of selecting delegations should be strengthened.

(7) Federal officials should normally be attached to Canadian delegations to international meetings on education to advise on foreign policy and other issues of concern to the federal government.

(8) The general guidance provided by the government to Canadian delegations attending international meetings on education should not deal with education matters as such but be limited to questions with foreign policy implications, Canadian budgetary contributions, and any other matters of federal concern which may be under consideration. The position to be followed on educational matters as such should be for decision by provincial governments, or, as appropriate, by the Council of Ministers of Education.

(9) Canadian delegations to international meetings on education should take into account in an appropriate manner the bilingual character of Canada. At the same time the interests of Canadians whose mother tongue is neither English nor French should also be given appropriate recognition.

(10) Canadian delegations to international meetings on technical matters concerning which both the federal and provincial governments share domestic jurisdiction should follow, in taking account of both federal and provincial interests, the general principles outlined in Federalism and International Relations."*

In putting forward the above suggestions with respect to participation in international conferences and programs of external aid and co-operation, the government wishes to emphasize that they are intended as a basis for discussion.

The government hopes that they will be given careful consideration by all concerned.

It will welcome additional comments and suggestions which may be put forward, and it will adopt a flexible attitude toward all aspects of the problem.

It is not committed to any particular solution and is ready to consider all proposals which recognize Canada as one country and provide opportunities for Canadians from all provinces to share, as part of a united Canada, in the benefits of international co-operation.

---

*(Federalism and International Relations" sets out the Canadian government's proposals for establishing improved methods of co-operation with the provinces in the field of external aid. In summary the main idea is there will be consultation with regard to aid projects financed or supported by the provinces in the interest of coherent policies; and an understanding that any formal liaison with foreign states and any formal agreements which might be required should be undertaken by, or with the agreement of, the federal authorities.)

Fast Quebec Election If PM Wins Mandate

By PETER C. NEWMAN

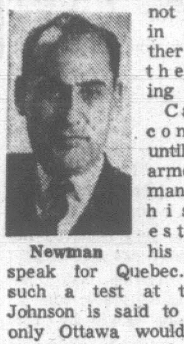
OTTAWA—If Prime Minister Trudeau wins a majority mandate June 25 based on his escalating confrontation with Quebec, Daniel Johnson will probably call an election of his own immediately after the federal contest, to test the will of French-Canadians.



Newman

The Union Nationale premier has told some of his senior advisors that he will not take part in any further talks on the re-making of the Canadian constitution, until he is armed with a mandate of his own establishing his right to speak for Quebec. Without such a test at the polls, Johnson is said to feel that only Ottawa would be empowered to speak for the people of his province, particularly should Trudeau win a majority on what he considers to be essentially an anti-Quebec platform.

The man caught in the middle of the increasingly dangerous squeeze between Quebec and Ottawa is Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield. He is determined to provide a third option by fielding an impressive platoon of Tories in Quebec to carry the anti-Trudeau line into Parliament.

Although most of Stanfield's policy pronouncements have dealt with such economic issues as a guaranteed annual income plan, his personal preoccupation has been with the recruitment of able French-Canadians to contest the campaign under his colors.

Planning Meet

The planning of the Tories' Quebec campaign really began at a closed meeting of top party officials in the Chateau Laurier hotel, February 24-25, a full five weeks before the Liberal leadership convention.

Significantly, the meeting's official minutes included this summary paragraph: "After a discussion it was the consensus that a June election was definitely a possibility and that the committee should plan on being ready."

Plans were laid for a June campaign and one of the most important projects set in train was the recruitment of leading Quebeckers to contest the expected election. Stanfield insisted long before the election was called that he could not and would not form a government without some strong federal Tories from Quebec.

Marcel Faribault headed the list of prospects, which also included Lucien Saulnier, chairman of the executive committee of the City of Montreal, Claude Ryan, editor of Le Devoir, and Julien Chouinard, a 40-year-old Rhodes scholar who is Quebec's deputy minister of justice.

Saulnier was interested, but had to drop out when he became ill. Ryan also expressed the wish to participate, but Stanfield had a long conversation with Andre Laurendau, Le Devoir's publisher, currently co-chairman of the Royal Commission on Bilingualism and Biculturalism, who told him that Ryan couldn't be spared because there was no ideologically-compatible successor ready to take over direction of the newspaper.

Julien Chouinard had been recruited into the government service by Jean Lesage, but when he was approached by Mulroney and Cogger the deputy justice minister was receptive. Stanfield was supposed to meet Chouinard in mid-February during the weekend of the Quebec Winter Carnival, but the government fell and the Conservative leader had to rush back to Ottawa.

PREMIER JOHNSON
. . . 'look after Trudeau'

The two men met in Stanfield's office in April, and Chouinard said he would consider running. He is expected to resign from the Quebec government next Tuesday to announce his candidacy.

At the same time, the main effort of the Conservative recruiters was being directed at persuading Marcel Faribault to leave provincial politics for the federal arena. Mario Beaulieu, Daniel Johnson's chief executive assistant, was one of the most enthusiastic supporters of the idea.

On May 8, John Robarts, priemier of Ontario, telephoned Faribault, urging him to run. The following evening Faribault met with his senior advisors at a private Montreal home and the final decision was made. Faribault phoned Stanfield the good news on the afternoon of May 10. He declared publicly four days later.

Started Chain

The Faribault conversion set off a chain reaction, which had yet to run its course. Faribault's brother-in-law, Andre Gagnon, president of the Montreal Catholic School Board, decided that he would probably become a Tory candidate, as did Paul-Henri Lavoie, a fellow member of the school board and vice-president of the Union des Cultivateurs Catholiques.

The Conservative campaign in Quebec, spearheaded by these and some other candidates the party is expecting to attract, is far different from the lame-duck operation it was during the Diefenbaker years. The party has rented a three-storey building on Montreal's Notre Dame Street West and set up permanent branch offices in Sherbrooke and Quebec City.

Daniel Johnson himself is expected to play no personal part in the federal election campaign, though he will be placing the full muscle of his political machine at Robert Stanfield's disposal.

But his feelings were probably best expressed at the end of a private dinner at Montreal's Rennaissance Club on April 22. The Quebec premier finished a pep talk to a group of his most trusted Union Nationale organizers with the comment: "Gentlemen, let me leave you with this: I can look after Lesage, I want you to go out and look after Trudeau."

NEWS HIGHLIGHTS OF THE WEEK

Reviewed by Peter Murray, Times Wire News Editor

The first meetings in Paris this week of U.S. and North Vietnamese representatives did little to allay fears that peace negotiations will be prolonged and frustrating.

Each side laid down goals the other could find impossible to yield. However this was to be expected in the opening round; now the hard bargaining over details begins.

Some took hope from the fact the North Vietnamese insistence on a halt to U.S. bombing raids was not delivered as an ultimatum. Flexibility was noted in both positions.

Hanoi's position was stated first at the formal opening session Monday by the chief Communist delegate Xuan Thuy. He called on the U.S. to follow up a bombing halt by ending "all other acts of war" against his country.

Thuy, former North Vietnamese foreign minister, claimed the U.S. had been defeated in the war, which had been "condemned by both U.S. and world public opinion.'

The U.S. response was made by Averell Harriman, who made no reference to the continued bombing below the 20th parallel, but challenged the North Vietnamese to show good faith by exercising "restraint" in its war effort.

Harriman charged that in the past six weeks while peace overtures were being discussed Hanoi had moved "substantial and increasing numbers of troops and supplies from the North to the South.

●

Harriman also claimed the use of regular North Vietnamese army troops in the South was "a blatant violation of the Geneva accords," which seemed a pointless debating tactic since neither side has paid much attention to the accords for many years.

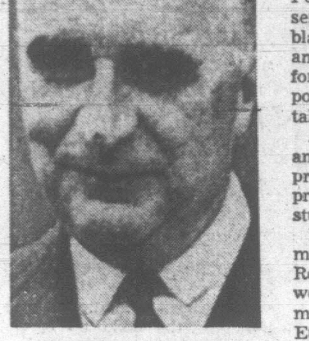
As a first step toward de-escalating the war, Harriman proposed a restoration of the demilitarized buffer zone between the two Vietnams and a "pulling apart" of American and North Vietnamese forces.

Harriman said the U.S. would withdraw its forces from Vietnam "when the level of violence subsides" and if Hanoi withdraws its troops from the south and stops infiltration.

One of the major complications in the discussions is that each side must satisfy allies whose views do not always coincide.

The U.S. is being harassed by the unstable military regime in Saigon, and is being watched closely by Australia and New Zealand, who fear the consequences of an American pull-out from Southeast Asia.

North Vietnam has China heckling in the background, trying to foul up the talks and must also keep in mind the views of the National Liberation Front and Viet Cong forces in the South.



PREMIER POMPIDOU
. . . charges conspiracy

Consultations with all the interested parties is the cause of the two and three day delays between each meeting in Paris.

●

One of the most hopeful developments in the Vietnam situation during the week was the apparent switch in position by the Soviet Union on sponsoring a full-scale peace conference.

In the past the Russians have resisted all attempts to reconvene the 1954 Geneva Conference on Indochina. The Kremlin said the first peace contacts should be made by the actual belligerants.

Now that contact has been made in Paris the Soviets are apparently ready to discuss setting up the machinery for a major peace effort.

Russia was co-chairman of the 1954 conference with the United Kingdom and British Foreign Minister Michael Stewart has been invited to Moscow next week to duscuss the matter.

●

The Paris talks were held this week against a background of violence and strikes.

Thousands of workers and students marched together through the French capital to protest rough police tactics used to break up last week's student disturbances. This time the police stayed clear and allowed the demonstration to go ahead unhindered.

The police also took a hands-off approach to continuing demonstrations at the Sorbonne University and without harassment the protests eased off for a time.

Prime Minister Georges Pompidou, acting in the absence of President de Gaulle, blamed the student unrest on an international conspiracy fomented in Peking aimed at poisoning the Vietnam peace talks.

At the same time Pompidou announced modification of previous Gaullist policy and promise to look into the students' complaints

De Gaulle, meanwhile, was making a six-day visit to Romania, the first by a western head of state to the maverick Communist east European nation.

The French leader, never shy about proclaiming his views while making a neighborly visit, publicly approved Romania's policy of independence from the Soviet Union and made a veiled appeal to Moscow to permit other satellites to follow the same path.

He called for a united Europe made up of truly independent nations and urged the Romanians to join with him in his quest for European grandeur.

Eyes on the Vision; Feet on the Ground

By ARTHUR STOTT

It would be hair-splitting to challenge Charles D. Ovans, general secretary of the B.C. Teachers' Federation on the inclusiveness of his Education Forum assertion this month that "how good an education (the children) get depends on a school system designed and equipped to release all of the potentialities in all of the children."

Stott

Some children have a high potentiality for vandalism and mayhem. Charlie doubtless referred to those latent capacities for useful and desirable accomplishment.

But even if "all of the potentialities" are confined for the purposes of educational development to the desirable potentialities, the assertion raises some issues for the pragmatist. How far can, or should, a school system go in releasing the potentialities?

It is unfashionable these days to suggest that there may be a limit to the means a taxpayer can devote to schooling from kindergarten to graduate study—and I hope I will be numbered among those who prefer expenditure on brains rather than blacktop when a choice is feasible. At the same time, it is possible that there are limits. This does not contradict the argument that money spent successfully on education is a good investment. But, in any man's life, there occur excellent opportunities for investment he finds it necessary to forego because he simply hasn't the money to invest.

In hard, practical terms, is it feasible to diffuse educational funds in an effort to release the potentialities of the individual—desirable as such a release might be—rather than to use money that is available to follow a more basic course in which the individual would be encouraged to release his own?

Mr. Ovans, in his supporting argument, quotes a statistic revealing that 40 per cent of all pupils fail to graduate from Grade 12. At a time when emphasis is laid so heavily on the need for higher education to equip our young people to cope with the increasingly complex problems in store for them, this is a dismaying figure.

But in the back of my mind resides a doubt that all of our young people have the ability to graduate from Grade 12, or its equivalent. It is a doubt supported by points made to me several months ago by C. B. Willis, whose career in education included serious study of intelligence quotients. He does not consider an IQ an infallible test of mental ability. He agrees that young students believing their IQs were higher than they actually were and stimulated by the type of teaching given high IQ pupils frequently achieved more than their honest IQs seemed to justify.

In the course of his years devoted to schools, he had encountered a number of such cases, particularly in the lower grades. He had also discovered that such students, operating under forced draught, usually encountered a barrier when their studies became more demanding and required higher intelligence to achieve understanding. They might, by effort, confidence, encouragement and appropriate teaching, have been B-plus students in classes up to Grade 8. When subjects required better reasoning ability, they could no longer proceed under forced draught because their mental boilers could not generate enough steam.

These, presumably, would be among the 40 per cent who, Mr. Ovans reports, drop out before graduating from Grade 12.

It can be argued, and it has been argued, that lack of academic ability should not lock the door to education for those not equipped to take academic courses, that other forms of education should be found for them. The argument is sound. It does encounter, however, another problem involved in the learning processes: What is education and what is training? How far should the taxpayer be expected to go to provide either?

I think the taxpayer should be prepared to go to the limit. But when this is said, the obvious fact emerges that there is a limit. Imposition of a limit suggests a practical impossibility in freeing all of each child's potentialities, assuming in the first place that anyone can identify all the potentialities.

It will be a sad day if no one ever raises eyes to a vision of perfection in education — different as the vision may be to different people.

But in education, as in other human fields, there is some merit in practising the arts of the possible. If teachers, who are trying, and the community at large, do the best they can for the children with what they have or, within reason, can acquire, then a lot of us will be largely satisfied.

Riotous Saint Willebrord Upsets Staid Hollanders

By SUE MASTERMAN

THE HAGUE — Saint Willebrord is suffering from hangover — not the Roman Catholic saint who is supposed to have brought Christianity to Holland, but the village which bears his name.

On a hot April night, when the temperature broke all records and rose to 87 degrees St. Willebrord exploded. Most of the male population of the village nearly a thousand strong stormed the police station with the intention of razing it to the ground. The battle raged until dawn.

Since then Holland has been asking itself "Why?" During the court case against some of the 17 arrested some of the answers have been given. But there is no guarantee that it will not happen again.

Research Target

St. Willebrord, a village near the Belgian border, has been for years the target of sociologists and criminologists looking for research material. Its chief contribution to the Dutch social system is professional cyclists and professional criminals. The rate of unemployment in the village is 27 per cent compared with 4 to 6 per cent in the surrounding area.

In the past there have been many attempts to analyse what makes St. Willebrord tick. It has even been seriously suggested that the village should be wiped off the map and its population distributed over the more civilized parts of the country.

During the last few years cafes and bars have mushroomed along the village street. Despite the unemployment there is not much shortage of money. Twenty to 30 glasses of beer is considered a normal evening's intake for the local inhabitant. Children of 12 and 13 are regularly picked up off the streets drunk. Anyone from the surrounding rural area looking for the high life makes automatically for St. Willebrord.

Four Police

To keep law and order the village relies on a force of four policemen. No amount of recruiting can get them more.

On that hot Saturday night the trouble started when a policeman new to the area tried to show his teeth. A 25-year-old sergeant, known to the locals as "the moustache" arrested a boy with a motorcycle who would not move on when told to do so. Within minutes the cafes and bars were empty.

A mob nearly a thousand strong marched on the police station and demanded the immediate release of the boy. The police refused. The mob began to tear the cobblestones out of the streets and pelt the building. The four policemen trapped inside telephoned desperately to the nearest large town, Breda, for reinforcements.

The reinforcements, only 35 strong, arrived just in time to prevent a lynching party. Armed with tear-gas grenades and long truncheons they set into the mob. Fifty tear-gas grenades and many hours later the mob began to disperse. Five policemen were taken to hospital, having been hit by cobblestones, beaten up, or affected by tear-gas grenades which the mob threw back.

Holland was shocked rigid by the riot. The minister of home affairs hurried down to the village on Monday, and special arrangements were made for the trial of the 17 who were eventually arrested to be held as soon as possible.

It is normal in Holland to wait about two months before this kind of case comes to court. This time the Dutch wanted swift, hard justice to make sure that it did not happen again.

Many Gypsies

What makes this village different? Perhaps the fact that most of its inhabitants are descended from gypsies and roving families who finally settled there. The immediate reason given for the riot was high unemployment and consequent boredom, but the figures are deceptive. It is quite normal in St. Willebrord to draw unemployment money, and at the same time to do a little quiet work on the side. Such as smuggling butter and cigarettes over the border to Belgium, or brewing illicit gin.

Most of the accused arrested after the riot had the same defence. Why, they wanted to know, had they been arrested and not the others? What had they done that everyone else had not done? Most of them admitted to between 20 and 30 glasses of beer, and said that they had no idea what the trouble was about. It just seemed a good idea to take the police station to pieces. Several of them had been registered as alcoholics before the age of 20.

The public prosecutor has asked for sentences varying between a couple of months and a year, combined with a long period of supervision for all by an organization for the curing of alcoholism.

It will be some weeks before the final sentences are passed. Meanwhile the minister of home affairs, Mr. Polak, has been asked repeatedly what he is going to do about the police supervision in St. Willebrord. "There is not much I can do," says the minister with touching honesty. It just seems that no one wants to be a policeman in St. Willebrord. Can you blame them?

TIPS FOR HOME GARDENERS

Wrong 'Spider' Attacked

By JACK BEASTALL

Jack

Many gardeners have seen red colored spiders on their garden plants, especially when fall approaches and nights are getting cooler.

At that time of year their fine silky webs are spread from leaf to leaf, usually on herbaceous perennials that have passed their prime and are starting to deteriorate.

There are tiny spiders of other colors on our plants. Some are a vivid green, others a greenish yellow, and a few have intricate and delightful patterns when seen under a powerful hand glass. None of these damage plants.

One insect most gardeners have never seen, and probably never will see, is the red spider mite.

Not a Spider

It is neither red in color, nor is it a spider. In size it is smaller than the point of a pin, therefore cannot be seen with the naked eye.

In common with a lot of other mites, this one can do a lot of damage to plants in areas where conditions are right for the build up of a large population.

It is a bad pest to have in a greenhouse where heat and low humidity are needed for the particular crops that are being grown. A dry atmosphere is ideal for the rapid reproduction of this mite.

The red spider mite is not affected by the DDT sprays that have a devastating effect on most other insects, good and bad.

In fact, when DDT was first recommended to greenhouse operators as the surefire cure of all pest troubles, acres of greenhouse crops were lost to red spider mite when all its predators were killed and the mite was able to reproduce without natural controls.

Millions Harmed

Because someone gave it the common name of red spider mite, millions of harmless spiders have been doused with poisons and hundreds of plants damaged or killed with sprays, in an attempt to destroy a pest that was never present.

One thing a red spider mite cannot tolerate is a spot of water, which is fortunate for gardeners in this area.

Our naturally damp coastal climate, generally high relative humidity, and the mornal concentration of predators, keep red spider mite population under control providing DDT, if used at all, is used with discretion.

The only time the mite becomes bothersome is during an extended spell of hot weather and low humidity when the gardener is away for three weeks on vacation.

When the gardener is at home and conditions are perfect for mite infestation, all that is needed is to wet down the plants (usually the conifers) with clear water once or twice a week.

Likes Heat

Only when the mite population is allowed to build up to infestation proportions do we see the damage done to the plants and have to resort to poisons in order to gain control.

It is the hot, dry conditions in the average home, and in unattended small greenhouses, that give this mite opportunity to do so much damage to potted plants.

Recent investigations under eastern climatic conditions indicate that severe infestations of mites can survive an unusually wet July providing no winds accompany the rainy periods, in other words, muggy weather.

This has led to the recommendation that all plants with a tight foliage, such as ornamental garden conifers, should not be planted close to buildings or in wind-free corners.

Pinkish

Even our winds may be instrumental in keeping this area relatively free of the mite.

Botanically, for those who wish to find out more about this pest, the name is Tetranychus telarius, and it would take about 75 of the largest females placed end to end to make a line as long as the printed name.

The young mites are pinkish in color with the usual six legs that identify true insects. By the time they reach adulthood another pair of legs has developed for a total of eight, thus changing the classification to a mite.

At this stage the color has also changed to a range between yellow and green, sometimes with a trace of orange, but never a true red as implied by the common name.

Webs are messy, mealy-looking affairs under the protection of which the eggs are laid and the young reared. There is a new generation every 20 to 30 days. Outdoors the adults overwinter in the soil and in rough bark.

Easily Damaged

A fairly heavy stream of water is needed to destroy the webs, but the gardener must never use a jet sufficient to damage young foliage, especially on the finer ornamental conifers whose foliage is so easily damaged by heavy rains or gale force winds.

The red spider mite feeds by piercing the foliage and drawing out the sap. It does not eat the foliage, therefore is not affected by poisons spread on the surface.

Like the aphides, the mites have to be hit by a contact insecticide, or in districts where no food plants are growing anywhere in the vicinity of the garden, by systemic insecticides which poison the sap within the plants.

Infected foliage has a mottled grey to yellowish look and the entire plant presents a brownish sickly appearance, the foliage lacking the lustre of a healthy specimen.

Root Fungus

Many local gardeners blame the red spider mite for damage to conifers of the Chamaecyparis lawsoniana group which suffer progressive drying and dying of the foliage from the bottom upwards.

This condition is caused by Phytopthora root rot fungus which is spreading rapidly through gardens on southern Vancouver Island.

The Phytophthora fungus is in the soil and follows the flow of soil water from one garden to another, and no amount of spraying with insecticides (or with fungicides for that matter) will save the doomed plants.

The fact that gardeners are wasting gallons of insecticides to control a pest that is presumed to be present when the trouble is a soil fungus, increases the pollution of soil water and streams, and creates an unnecessary build up of poisons in the soil that can have harmful effects on the gardener and his family.

It just emphasizes the necessity of having the pest or disease identified by a trained specialist before reaching for a bottle of poison.

QUIZZING THE GARDENER

Q. How can I bring back a laurel hedge to a lower height after it has been neglected for some time?—H.T.D., Duncan, B.C.

A. Laurel must be pruned with hand secateurs to avoid cutting the large leaves which will die back if damaged. Suggest you start by cutting out the longest pieces first, making the cut well down into the hedge.

Then take out the longest which remain, and continue until the hedge is somewhere near the desired height. A top dressing of compost over the root area and slow watering from a soaker may be needed to start new growth. Do this before midsummer.

WEEK'S WORK

By JACK BEASTALL

As early flowering heathers finish blooming, cut over the plants to remove the portions which bore flowers.

Plan to sow seed of wallflowers, forgetmenots and Canterbury bells by end of this month. Sow outdoors in protected spot, grow during summer, and plant out into flowering places by end of September.

Train in new growths of clematis, honeysuckle, climbing roses and wistaria. Shorten those which are too long for space to be covered.

Harden off tender bedding plants before planting out later this month or in June.

Before putting out house plants for summer, see that they are gradually accustomed to outside conditions, and wait until night temperatures are at least around 50 deg. F. in your garden.

One small application of complete garden fertilizer after vegetable seedlings are well up will give results if soil is watered before and after application.

Tomatoes, squash, peppers, melons, cucumbers and all tender vegetables need to be under cover as long as nights are below around 50 deg. F. Put them out for days and in at night to keep them strong.

Sow sweet corn, pole and bush beans. They will take about 10 days to come through the soil, and should then be safe from late frost.

If tomato plants have been bought, suggest putting into five-inch pots to grow on, putting out in day and in at night as previously described. Then when warmer, remove plants complete with their improved root system from the pots into the ground.

Choose dull days for thinning or transplanting seedlings, or provide temporary light shade for a day or so.

Magistrate Intercedes in Fraud Case—Allows New Plea, Trial

A youth charged with fraud was allowed to change his plea from guilty to not guilty Friday.

Permission was granted Guy Jodoin, 18, of Vancouver, not because police had offered an inducement as the accused suggested in a written affidavit, but because Magistrate Ostler questioned the Crown's original charge.

Jodoin had earlier pleaded guilty to selling an 86-year-old woman 129 years of subscriptions to Macleans and Chatelaine magazines.

He had no counsel at the time of the plea. Subsequently, John Davies appeared as defence counsel.

Mr. Davies said the accused has a defence.

"The charge reads the boy received $147 by fraud. But in fact in the first two of three transactions, the money was turned over to Maclean-Hunter Publishing, and in the third, the bank did not honor the cheque.

"The boy in fact received no benefit whatsoever."

Magistrate Ostler said he considered the affidavit and a subsequent one filed by the Crown.

"It seems there was no inducement. A police officer elected to give the accused advice as he was unrepresented.

"Even allowing for the best intentions in the world, that should be done sparingly," said the Magistrate.

"It is the duty of the courts to instruct an unrepresented individual as to his rights."

He said there was not sufficient evidence to permit a change of plea, "but for quite another reason I must allow him to change.

"The charge says he received $147 in money by fraud, but there is no suggestion in the evidence he received any money."

For that reason, the magistrate allowed the change.

Magistrate Ostler said he could not now take the case because he has read the presentence report.

The case was remanded to Tuesday to appear before another magistrate for plea.

Only the s.s. Maasdam takes you to the 3 big ports. Southampton. LeHavre. Rotterdam.

Sailings from Montreal and Quebec.
May 31* August 5 September 20
June 24 August 28 *From Quebec, June 1

The major ports in Europe. The closest to places like Paris, Amsterdam, and to most any other major cities. And only Holland-America sails directly there from Canada. With the s.s. Maasdam, a two-class, fully air-conditioned, stabilizer-equipped ocean liner.

Holland-America has eliminated tipping, too. So you don't have to rush around trying to decide whom to tip and how much. We thought that might make your trip even more pleasant.

What's more, you can arrive in Europe fully rested and ready for work or sightseeing. You'll soon see why Holland-America says the sea wasn't meant to fly over. And you'll feel what it's like to sit down with a salt-air appetite after a busy on-deck day.

So see your travel agent about Holland-America's direct service to Europe. And if sailing dates aren't right, have him show you our New York schedules. Perhaps we can get you to Europe from there on the Rotterdam, Nieuw Amsterdam or Statendam.

It's Family Fun On Bay Island

Located at the hub of Southern California's varied tourist finery, the sun-and-water world of Mission Bay Park comes highly recommended as the ideal setting for a family vacation.

●

A tropical island paradise just three miles from San Diego's civic centre, the 4600-acre maze of sheltered coves and white sand beaches offers any number of outdoor activities appealing to persons of all ages — from parents to teenagers to the small fry.

Within the vast city-owned Mission Bay Park are five delightful hotels, miles of palm-studded beaches, golf courses, tennis courts, boating marinas, and several sheltered inlets for sailing, swimming, water skiing, picnicking and fishing.

●

One of Mission Bay's top family-fun activities is a day's visit to Sea World. A forty-acre park within a park, this world famous marine circus is the largest and most spectacular aquacade in the country.

No matter what accommodations a budget may dictate, a family can easily spend a two-week vacation, never leave the confines of Mission Bay, and find no end of different things to do.

Undeniable Charm All of Its Own

DUBLIN — To come looking for the sunshine of Madrid, the pageantry of London, the art treasures of Rome or the soohistication of Paris in this Irish capital is to go chasin' after rainbows indeed.

For Dublin's not a bit like any other European capital. It has an undeniable charm and wit of its own that tugs at you in its streets and pubs and a distinctive lilt to its people that you'll never forget. Even in the famed Moore Street market the vegetable mongers speak the English language with more music per metaphor than anyone else in the world.

But it's a mistake to equate Dublin with Ireland. The city's wide, 18th-century Georgian streets with their football field size squares have as little in common with the wild coast of Donegal as Toronto has with Cape Breton.

Look on Dublin instead as the perfect headquarters for touring the country.

It's only 135 miles right across the country to Galway. Only 160 miles to Cork and 126 miles to Limerick where they make the best lace in Ireland if the people in Carrickmacross don't.

There's no urban sprawl to Dublin. You're only half an hour's drive from beaches to the north and south. The woods and the fields and the hills that really are as green as the Irish say come right up to the gates of the city.

The city's name means Black Pool in Gaelic and they say it came from the fact that the River Liffey which it straddles was once stained black by peat.

But today it is brown-tinged and there's no sign of blackness at all as you look down from a bridge at the swans.

Few cities on earth have a prouder literary history. Swift, Thomas Moore, Oscar Wilde, Bernard Shaw, Yeats, Joyce and Behan were born here. There are many landmarks identified with their lives—and fortunately several are the most delightful pubs you'll ever lay eyes on.

Davy Byrnes in Duke St. was immortalized by Joyce in Ulysses and he is said to have hoisted a few pints there himself before he left Ireland.

EVERY PUB

Behan is said to have drunk in every pub in the city (there are more than 1,000) but McDaid's, the poet's pub in Harry St., was one of his favorites. His family still stops for a few jars in Peter's Pub on Johnston's Place. One of the most colorful pubs is the Long Hall which is 350 years old and furnished to match.

If you come to hear the Irish songs, two of the top spots in Dublin are the Abbey Tavern and the International Bar in Wicklow Street.

There's even a pub near Stephen's Green called O'Neill's where the patrons do their best to restore the Gaelic language.

But even here you will find little trouble in joining in the fun. Most of the pubs don't usually hit their stride until after 10 p.m.

There's a sort of ritual you must go through when you enter a strange Irish pub.

Find an affable looking group and tell them you're from abroad and would like to buy a drink. It's not likely you'll be allowed to purchase the first round.

But you'll probably be permitted to buy the fifth. Whisky's 35 cents a shot and a pint of beer less than that so the evening won't probably bust your budget.

Nor will anything else in Dublin with the possible exception of betting on the dog and horse races which are an integral part of life here.

Watering Spot

BERMUDA STUDIES DECIMAL SYSTEM

Dollars May Count in '69

HAMILTON, Bermuda — The Bermuda government has taken the first step toward converting the colony's currency from sterling to the decimal system.

The Governor of the island, Lord Martonmere, has appointed a committee to examine in detail problems connected with the change-over.

The committee is made up of 12 of Bermuda's leading citizens including the Colonial Treasurer, Attorney General, the Chairman of Bermuda's Currency and Exchange Control Board, the Chairman of Bermuda's Trade development Board, bankers and parliamentarians.

●

The group will tackle four main aspects of the switch plus any other pertinent matters. The topics to be discussed will include the unit and sub-units of the adopted currency, the design of the notes and coins, whether or not special coins should be issued to meet numismatic demands, and the date of the conversion.

The change-over could occur as early as sometime in 1969, according to the Hon. W. W. Davidson, Colonial Treasurer and chairman of the committee. "I would like to see it done next year. You have to set a target date and that's the target date. Of course we will give as much advance warning as possible," Mr. Davidson said.

●

Mr. Davidson expects that Bermuda will have less difficulty in adjusting to the switch than other areas would.

"In Bermuda we deal quite commonly in three currencies — U.S. and Canadian dollars and Sterling—so our thinking is already oriented that way," he said.

The Colonial Treasurer said that he felt it would be advisable for Bermuda to decimalise before Britain to avoid being caught in the inevitable rush of orders for new equipment when Britain changes over in 1971.

The appointment of the committee comes in the wake of recent talks in London which won for the colony significant concessions in the area of currency administration. These talks were initiated by the position Bermuda found itself in when the Pound was devalued.

New Landmark In San Francisco

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A new landmark has been added to the San Francisco skyline—a huge ship's wheel attached to the 40-foot piers.

The "sign post" is erected in the heart of Fisherman's Wharf, one of the city's busiest tourist spots.

Our Waltzing Matilda Circle Pacific Holiday will sail away on January 8, 1969.

Care to Dance?

If so, all you have to do is step on board our ship Arcadia, in Vancouver, and we'll whirl away.

Across the Pacific to Hawaii. To Fiji—ever seen anybody walk on fire? Here's your chance. And to Pago Pago, where the traditional Polynesian way of life is still real.

To the geysers and glaciers of spectacular New Zealand. Then, spacious Australia, where you have your choice of land tours. Singapore, the world-famous markets and bazaars of Hong Kong. On to Japan. (Overland tours here, too, to show you Kobe, Mt. Fuji, Tokyo and Yokohama.) Then Hawaii, and back to Vancouver.

Your entire Waltzing Matilda go-round in the Pacific will last two months, and chances are, you'll wish it were even longer.

You may have had your fill of sightseeing, but you'll probably want to spend more time enjoying the luxury of life aboard a P&O ship.

Arcadia is fully air-conditioned, of course. She's got all sorts of amusements and entertainments, dinners and dances ready for you. She also has one crewman on board for every two passengers. And that ratio makes for the kind of superb service that's gone out of style elsewhere.

What does it cost? As little as $1434 tourist, $1795 first class. Which includes special sightseeing, land tours, escorts—the works! Any cash you carry with you will be just for extras.

For more information, see your travel agent, or clip the coupon below. Then, brush up on your waltz.

Did England Conquer or Liberate Quebec?

CHANGING PERSPECTIVES IN CANADIAN HISTORY, by Kenneth A. MacKirdy and others; Fitzhenry and Whiteside; $10.95.

Reviewed by R. H. ROY

In the last 10 or 15 years there has been a dramatic increase not only in the number of students taking Canadian history at the college and university level, but in the interest of Canadians in their own history.

Whether as a cause or a consequence of this, more writers and professors have been turning out an ever increasing volume of books and articles on the subject.

Since the interpretation of historical facts has always been a subjective matter for historians, it follows that many of the old, well-worn concepts which were taught for years have been questioned.

For example, when Great Britain obtained Canada in 1763, is one to say that the French in Canada were conquered or were they liberated?

And what about the United Empire Loyalists?

Did they come to Canada to remain under the British flag or did they fly north in order to escape being tarred and feathered by the triumphant republicans to the south?

Depending on the book or article one reads, one can find facts to support either side of these or numerous other questions.

ANSWERS VARY

The answers will also vary depending on whether you read a Canadian or American source, an English-speaking or French-speaking source, or perhaps a 19th century and a 20th century source.

Professor MacKirdy (University of Waterloo), Zoltvany (McGill University) and Moir (University of Toronto) have taken on 21 such questions in Canadian history in this book and in so doing have performed a decided service to students both young and old.

Using extracts from newspapers, governmental sources, documents, books, articles, letters, and so forth, they have presented arguments both for and against the questions raised. The source of each extract is given, as well as an indication of the prejudice of the writer. Ultimately, however, the authors leave it to the reader to make up his or her own mind on the matter.

TOTAL RESULT

The total result is a delightful and interesting romp through Canadian history from the 17th century to the present.

Those who are familiar already with their nation's past will get more enjoyment from Changing Perspectives in Canadian History than those who are not.

However, it could be that the latter will be sufficiently stimulated by this volume to do some wider reading. Even this has been arranged for since the authors, at the end of each chapter, have listed relevant books on the topic.

Incidentally, this book is also available in paperback at less than half the cost of the hardbound copy.

The Book Page

Edited by Joan Coldwell

IS IT FAIR to label Richard the Third (left) a villain? Vancouver author Marian Palmer (right) in The White Boar, a work of historical fiction, does not answer the question but she presents him as he might have appeared in his own lifetime and in a somewhat less harsh light than in the play by William Shakespeare. (See review of two books on Richard the Third below).

BUT THEN WHAT WAS HE?

King Richard Was No Monster

THE WHITE BOAR, by Marian Palmer; Doubleday; $6.95; 374 pp.
MY LORD BROTHER THE LION HEART, by Molly Costain Haycraft; McClelland and Stewart; $7.95; 320 pp.

Reviewed by Anthony Jenkins

Two books released in the past fortnight provide an object lesson in how to write — and how not to write — an historical novel.

The new novel on the still controversial subject of Richard III, Marian Palmer's The White Boar, is almost completely successful; it is intelligent, balanced, exciting and packed with intriguing sidelights on the troubled reign of the last Plantagenet. It is well worth reading.

Mrs. Palmer has hit on the interesting idea of presenting the events from the point of view of two minor historical figures: the cousins Francis and Philip Lovell. It is Francis, later Viscount Lovell, who is mentioned in the scurrilous rhyme invented by Richard's opponents:

The cat, the rat, and Lovell our dog,
Ruleth all England under an hog.

This device succeeds very well, since the kinsmen are both honorable men and this reflects favorably upon the character of Richard himself.

Defamed King

It has long been felt that Richard was not the deformed monster of Tudor propaganda who has now become fixed in the English consciousness through the vividness of Shakespeare's satanic crookback king.

Only a few years after Queen Elizabeth's death, An Encomium of Richard III by William Cornwaleys, a folio of eight leaves dedicated to the poet John Donne), dared the tradition in order to show Richard as "an oppressed and defamed king."

Since then Richard has attracted a growing army of vociferous supporters whose loud championing has been matched by the disclaimers of the oppostion, and this quarrel has been presented to a wider public through Josephine Tey's imaginative piece of detective work The Daughter of Time (1951).

Indeed, the latest historical study of Richard by Paul Muray Kendall indicates that he was extraordinarily honest and loyal, that his shoulder was only slightly hunched and that he was generally beloved by his family and by his northern subjects.

Mrs. Palmer presents this controversial material indirectly.

Instead of tilting headlong into the defence she lets the facts speak for themselves.

She shows the weak sottishness of Clarence, the sensuousness of Edward IV, the treacherous ambition of Buckingham and the time-serving vacillation of the Stanleys. Richard is not whitewashed; he is seen simply as an honest and devoted servant of the Yorkist cause, pushed occasionally into deeds that are unpleasant but necessary.

Another clever feature of the book is the way that the murder of the little princes is left unsettled.

This is obviously the way the news filtered out at the time, in uncertainties and rumors.

There is a strong suggestion that the Duke of Buckingham was behind the murder — a view that is held by Mr. Kendall—but by the end of the novel the characters are not at all certain whether the princes are dead or alive.

Pattern Shows

Mrs. Palmer has a fine sense of pattern.

She sees a shaping force amongst the confusion of characters with the same names — the many Margarets, Elizabeths, Henrys and Edwards — and helps the reader through the tangle by such illuminating remarks as her comment that Buckingham sought to set himself up as another Warwick the Kingmaker, so that the events at the beginning of the book seem to come full circle by the book's end.

She is a very skilful writer and never thrusts the labors of her thorough and detailed research down the reader's throat.

At times her descriptions are beautifully poetic: "Venice showed a slattern autumn face, rich and grim, and along the Rialto the courtesans leaned naked from their windows, shouting for trade."

Only occasionally does this fall into the romantic cliche that is the stereotype of so many historical novels: "His sudden smile had a singular directness and warmth; in that moment, Francis entered upon his life's service."

Sky Darkens

Her handling of the death of Anne Neville, Richard's wife, is particularly striking as the Queen dies surrounded by her women who watch in terror as the sky darkens under an eclipse of the sun.

The big test of this type of novel is the way the conversations are handled.

Admittedly, Mrs. Palmer writes in the tradition of Sir Walter Scott in that her characters have modern sensibilities and react to the events in a way that would be foreign to the medieval mind: ill-treated kitchen maids provide immediate pity; children are seen as children, not as little adults.

But with that proviso she builds consistent and well-rounded characters who speak in a believable idiom.

On the other hand, Molly Costain Haycraft's book My Lord Brother the Lion Heart is neither fish nor fowl.

Sister Joan

The narrator, Richard Coeur de Lion's sister Joan of Sicily, thinks like an American housewife and speaks in a way that no one has ever spoken.

A stilted archaism is followed by a slangy modernism and the result is a banal hotchpotch: "Rick coming to Sicily!"

I think I almost sang the words ... "Yes, yes, dear lord! We must turn back immediately—let me call my ladies and tell them not to unpack another thing."

Compared to the skill of Mrs. Palmer's sweeping narrative, Mrs. Haycraft's novel is a plethora of romantic jargon whose effect is downright clumsy.

Few Authors Win Praise From Critic

THE REPUBLIC OF CHILDHOOD: A Critical Guide to Canadian Children's Literature in English, by Sheila Egoff. Oxford University Press, $5.00 cloth, $2.75 paper.

FORBIDDEN FRONTIER, by Christie Harris. McClelland and Stewart, $5.50.

Reviewed by
Karen Smith

MOWATT
. . . an exception

In this definitive work, Sheila Egoff has produced a cogent, unsentimental evaluation of Canada's contribution to children's literature in English, without the misplaced patriotism that might praise the unworthy.

Concentrating on the bulk of books produced since 1950 rather than on the historical development, she devotes chapters to the different kinds of children's books, from history and biography to Indian legends, folk tales, and the many varieties of fiction. Concisely annotated bibliographies follow each chapter.

Her standards are high.

Each chapter defines quality by citing specific passages from the books in its category. And Miss Egoff writes with such verve, acuteness of judgment, and perception of the genuine, that her own book comes up to her standards.

Praise is sparse, reserved primarily for the few books—like Mowatt's Owls in Family, and Barbeau's The Golden Phoenix — which are intrinsically Canadian, yet universal. She feels quality is lacking largely in the areas of fantasy and other truly creative fiction; historical books on the whole are stronger.

The publishers' series books, however, written by formula, with pseudo-history, papier-mache characters, and poverty-stricken vocabulary, are exposed as nearly worthless.

Her encouragement of only the best writing for children may seem harsh, but it offers the only assessment of any value to those interested in children's reading.

Although Christie Harris' newest book, Forbidden Frontier, was published after The Republic of Childhood, Miss Egoff's chapter on historical fiction provides a good basis for its evaluation.

"By and large, Canadian historical fiction for children is a succession of failures," says Miss Egoff. Forbidden Frontier, unhappily, is no exception.

In trying to dramatize the impact of white culture on the Indians of the West, Mrs. Harris creates two girls—Allison, the daughter of a Haida Chieftainess and a Hudson's Bay Chief Trader, and Megon, the daughter of farmers who come to B.C. in the Cariboo gold rush. The girls, after being followed separately, are drawn together in a melodramatic intrigue and flight to save the half-breed boy Allison loves, who is accused of murder.

The attitudes shown by and toward Indian and White represent the full historical spectrum; research Mrs. Harris did for her earlier books, Raven's Cry about the Haidas, and Cariboo Trail about the 1862 gold rush, provided the needed background.

But she does not create believable young people. Much more is needed than the exclamation marks, sighs, and flashing eyes that seem ubiquitous. The adults, particularly the four parents, are much more convincing, as if only the petulance of the young need be overwritten.

The Republic of Childhood has this to offer to Forbidden Frontier: "Simplicity goes with artistic integrity."

Hardy Festival In Britain

Visitors to Britain this summer may take part in a Thomas Hardy festival to commemorate the 40th anniversary of the author's death.

The town of Dorchester (the "Casterbridge" of Hardy's novels) is staging an ambitious festival July 7-20. Presiding at a special lunch in the town's newest inn, "The Trumpet Major," will be former Prime Minister Harold Macmillan, head of the firm which published Hardy's novels.

The Dorset County Museum, home of the largest collection of Hardy manuscripts and relics, has an exact reconstruction of his study, down to the smallest details of pens, spectacles and walking stick.

The house that Hardy designed for himself, still a private residence on the outskirts of Dorchester, will be specially opened to the public on four days of the festival.

There will be an exhibition of Hardy's paintings and drawings as well as stage productions and readings of his literary works.

The Wessex festival will be preceded on July 4 by a memorial ceremony in Westminster Abbey where Hardy's ashes lie in the Poets' Corner. The new Poet Laureate C. Day Lewis will read Hardy's poems at the ceremony before going on to lecture at the Dorchester festival.

She Sang on Dump Heap A New Glorious Ballad

THE COLLECTED POEMS OF ANNE WILKINSON, WITH A PROSE MEMOIR. Edited, with an introduction, by A. J. M. Smith. MacMillan, Toronto, 1968. $4.95.

Reviewed by
G. V. Downes

Once upon a time in Ontario there was a little girl who played with her cousins on a growing "but garbageless" dump that the family were using as a land-fill.

She loved the "celestial rubbish" that slowly accumulated, particularly an old pair of corsets which she laced over her coat; she made her brother's nose bleed; and she sang on the dump-heap a glorious ballad, new to me, "Kelly Kelly with his buskin belly and his ass all painted green."

The tranquil memoir of childhood which contains this description gives one no real clue to the genesis of Anne Wilkinson's singularly powerful and beautiful poetry, which both W. B. Yeats and Theodore Roethke would have recognized as akin to their own.

Sophisticated

Her poems illustrate perfectly the statement "A poem should not mean, but be," and they are difficult to quote from because partial statement destroys the fine balance of a unified imaginative whole.

The most original characterist of her work is the mingling of the completely elemental with the completely sophisticated. I use "elemental" in its magical sense, meaning the contact with earth, air, fire, and water, and all animal life,

"I was witch and I could be
Bird or leaf
Or branch and bark of tree"

This strong natural sense of identity with the universe is supported by the knowledge of the evolutionary process, man's slow crawl out of water into humanity. We remember the sea in our tears and our blood, and every birth is a symbol of this beginning,

"Is this our land? Crust and crab and wet
Anemone? The sea-horse neighs, faint
For the salt-soaked weeds of home."

Only One Side

But this is only one side, albeit an important one, of a many-faceted poetic talent. There is wit and gaiety in Anne Wilkinson, and her detached eye, her "good lens," has produced some delightfully ironic comments on the human situation, such as an encounter with God (with herself as Molly Bloom) on a staircase. Another witty but at the same time magical and menacing poem is "A Cautionary Tale" where a lion eats a lady right down to her "sweet white bones."

The main core and strength of the volume lies in poems which directly reflect the ambiguities, the ecstacy and the misery, of life itself.

The beginnings of love, its fullness, its decline, the love of children, and the dark bitter shadows which fall from within and without, all these find their complete expression in poems whose personal music is, as A. J. M. Smith points out, impeccable.

Poetry of Pity

As in the case of Wilfred Owen, the poetry is in the pity; she watches the crumbling of a mind,

"I would cry my heart around
And stretch it to a wide red net
To catch the falling stranger in

I'd hold him still and stunned
But safe from vultures and the titter
Of small birds"

Archetypal imagery comes naturally to her—the sun, the winds, snakes, mermaids and tigers — but it is used, or fused with statements so direct that it becomes a way of thought rather than a metaphor. The poet is telling her truths as she sees them and controlling the chaos of experience by defining it.

Cock Robin

Some of the images are individual—the lovers fixed like Siamese twins, the dirty doves, the child with the double head—but she can use a traditional pattern with personal force, as in the poem called "Carol," where "The hangman ties the holly," or in ballads where Cock Robin and Lord Randal become the basis for statements of different psychological tragedies.

Nowhere is her directness of approach better exemplified than in the poems written during the months when she faced the certainty of death. Professor Smith uses the expression "terrifying" to describe them.

To me the terror is not in the poetry but in the critic's approach to the subject, for the poetry is classical in its balanced acceptance and understanding,

"Accustom the grey coils
Locked in the skull
To the silence"

And, as she imagines herself wheeling as a stone through space,

"it is other than I had imagined. I thought
To travel behind two plumed white horses,
I thought to lie like cream in a long black hearse,
I had not calculated on this Fall without end."

Lord's Prayer

The ironic comment on the Lord's Prayer in the last verse is characteristic of her use of allusive cadences.

In all this is a sensitive and moving testament to living, with one of A. J. M. Smith's best essays as an introduction. Readers who are curious about Anne Wilkinson might find interesting "Lions in the Way," her account of her mother's family in Ontario. The almost pure Cornish descent explains, perhaps, her Celtic awareness of the word and the world; her title to witchery is an honest one.

People Give Book Memorable Quality

A SEASON PAST; REMINISCENCES OF A RURAL CANADIAN CHILDHOOD, by Jessie L. Beattie. McClelland and Stewart, 153 pages. $6.50. Sketches.

Reviewed by
R. G. Lawrence

One of the merits of this small, pleasant book is that it is no more and no less than its title suggests. These reminiscences are likely to appeal most to readers over forty whose childhood was similar to that of Miss Beattie, who was born in 1896 on a prosperous farm in central Ontario.

In those days country life centred in the home and the immediate community; apart from infrequent visits to the city on business and for supplies, there was little impact of the outside world. A statement like that will be meaningful primarily to readers who can recall a rural childhood without radio or television.

Two elements of childhood have remained most vividly in Miss Beattie's memory: the world of nature around her and members of the community, either from among those who lived in it or the transients.

COLD WINTER

The author is especially conscious in retrospect of the coldness of winter and the glory of spring, and she has frequent evocative descriptions of these and the other seasons; however, it is the people who give the book its most memorable quality.

Many of the neighbors had amiable eccentricities and an individuality that is refreshing in these days of conformity. A reader is likely to remember, for example, Ezra Slade, an evangelical preacher who installed his family, household goods, and farm animals in a cave as Halley's Comet approached.

Folklore had it about 1910 that the world was to be destroyed by the fiery tail of the comet, and the few survivors would participate in the Second Coming.

Jessie Beattie's youthful acquaintance included itinerant peddlars, farm hands, housemaids, and a country doctor with much strength of character. The anecdotes about them are variously humorous or sad.

A reader carries away from A Season Past a warm and reassuring memory of a close-knit, happy family and of a community in the real sense of the word. If there are touches of the sentimental and the melodramatic in the book, they are appropriate to the tone and the times.

No Put-On, He's Serious

DEVIL'S PLUNGE, by David Walker; Collins; $5.50.

James Bond worshippers may find David Walker's Devil's Plunge of some interest but for the most part it seems a pretty lame imitation.

The book follows what is now a tired recipe: hard-hitting hero with a fine taste in guns, wine and ski-resorts; pretty heroine with a gruff business-like exterior which melts in the end.

Surely the only excuse for this type of writing is to make fun of the genre. Unfortunately this is no put-on. Mr. Walker is in dead earnest.

Life's Secret Lost in Film

By AL FORREST

It's an art film and everything's flicking, swirling and quivering. Suddenly an explosion rips through the world, scattering debris in all directions.

What does it all mean?

The CBC asked a group of teen-agers that question after showing them (Channel 6 Wednesday) art films by Arthur Lipsett.

"The blast is the destruction of the old system," a young girl said. "It's a hopeful sign because the world can be rebuilt the way it should be."

"Yes," added a boy, "it's the end of the old ways and the start of the new."

While the films were obscure — and commentary was desperately needed—the teenage panel wasn't much help.

They were seeing the film the way they wanted it to be ... a plea to replace the Establishment with young ideas.

It's a young idea but not a new one. Recall the tentmaker Omar (circa 1050-1123) murmered:

"Ah Love could Thou and I with Fate conspire
To grasp this sorry Scheme of Things entire
Would not we shatter it to bits — and then
Re-mold it nearer to the Heart's desire."

Now, what that CBC program really needed was a panel reflecting all age groups.

The older folks, I'm sure, would be more likely to translate the explosion as something like:

"That's all the turmoil caused by those wild teenagers with their long hair and riots."

I don't think that's the message of the film, either, but, as analysis, it is equally as meaningful as what we got from the youngsters Wednesday night.

●

If you missed Jimmie Rodgers last night you can catch him at 7:30 p.m. tonight on Smothers Brothers (Channel 6) singing his beautiful hit song Child of Clay. The same re-run is on Channel 12 at 9 p.m. Sunday.

●

KELLY
... days of Grace

TV FOR TWO—The Miss U.S.A. contest is telecast at 10 p.m. tonight (Channel 12) ... it's not the Miss America pageant, but they're girls ... I don't usually plug crime dramas but the movie Dial M for Murder starring Grace Kelly and Ray Milland (Channel 12) at 11:30 tonight is considerably better than your average who-dunnit ... The Emmy show is 7 p.m. (Channel 8) Sunday and it can't be any worse than the Oscar telecast ... or wait for the nel 12) at 11:30 p.m. is the same night (Channel 5) and amaze your friends with your forecasts ... Lucille Ball brightens up the Carol Burnett show 9:30 p.m. Monday on Channel 6 ... Jacques Cousteau presents a study of sharks at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday on Channel 4.

●

Possibly you're not convinced about reincarnation but there's something a little uncanny going on down at the local arena tonight.

Could it be that Eddie Cantor, the son of a Brooklyn Rabbi, has come back as a Negro organist-singer named Earl Grant?

No it couldn't be.

When Earl, 37, is sitting at the organ playing his hit tune Ebb Tide he could be nobody but himself.

GRANT
... that's Earl tonight

Yet when he gets up to sing, he starts to prance about the stage in a way that evokes the frantic Twenties and Eddit Cantor singing: "If you knew Susie, like I know Susie ..."

If Earl's a copy, it's accidental.

"I always was a ham and this is the style that suits me," he explains. "I've been compared to a lot of people and I've studied a lot of styles but I think it's just me, the way I feel.

"Yes, I work hard. When you're not pretty you have to work hard," he said. "I know people don't come to look at me. They come because I create excitement.

"When I come to a city I like to leave behind something for the people to remember. When I see some of your nice old ladies out there tapping their feet and smiling, it's really a wonderful feeling.

"Actually, I've got the kind of show that people like before they know they like it.

"They come in and look and listen and they say: Well this isn't much. But then soon they're doing this (taps his toes) and this (nods his head) and pretty soon (taps, nods, wiggles, claps his hands) it's glorious."

That's because Earl is tapping, nodding and wiggling as he plays the organ and sings. Before the first song is over he's into a heavy sweat. At the end he's exhausted and so keyed up he can scarcely talk.

Then it's time for a quick shower and relaxation. When show business is bringing you $1,000 per day it's important to pace yourself.

●

A few eyebrows went up when Earl called out the names of the dances he was doing on the Arena stage.

"This is the Swim," he shouted. "And now the African Twist. And now Boo-ga-loo."

An elderly lady looked at her husband. "What did he say?" she asked.

"The Boogaloo. It's some kind of dance."

"Oh," she said. "For a minute ..."

●

All Earl Grant shows are done with a smile and twinkling eyes.

He always goes all out, but some nights he tries harder. Like a closing night.

"That's when there's no holds barred. I just get wound up and I keep on going."

One night in Los Angeles he closed out his week by singing and playing at full steam for two hours and twenty minutes.

"I won't go that long for my closing show in Victoria but it'll be something special, that's for sure," he said.

That closing show he's talking about starts in the Arena at 10:30 p.m. tonight.

Seven Days Man Quits U.S. TV

By STEPHEN SCOTT

NEW YORK (CP) — Douglas Leiterman, former CBC producer who quit in the controversy two years ago, that surrounded the program This Hour Has Seven Days, has left American television.

LEITERMAN
... no boat-rocking

Leiterman, executive producer of Seven Days for two hard-hitting years, said in an interview Wednesday he has resigned from the CBS network in the U.S. and has incorporated a company in Toronto and New York called Documentary Films Inc.

He said he hopes he will be able to produce controversial courageous and hard-hitting films that will be shown in theatres.

He said it is in the realm of possibility that his work again will appear on the CBC.

Leiterman, 40, a former newspaper man, quit Seven Days after Laurier LaPierre and Patrick Watson were dismissed as hosts.

Leiterman said the dismissal of the pair was the CBC executive's way of interfering with the program that was often the centre of complaint.

He went to CBS about 20 months ago and produced three documentaries.

He said he is leaving because U.S. television cannot make itself come to grips with controversial subjects.

"I'm hoping to do outside television what is impossible to do inside," said Leiterman, son of a South Porcupine, Ont., accountant.

He said there is a developing trend to use actuality and reality in movies. While the development of realism in films had been growing in recent years, the "commercial system" of television "wants to be adventurous but somehow cannot digest the adventurous programs that the staff people try," he said.

TALKED TO CBC

Leiterman said he has talked to film distributors — those who would put up the money for his documentaries — in the U.S. and hopes to make contacts in Canada. He mentioned the National Film Board and the CBC.

At CBS he made a feature on politics and one on Negro youth, the latter described as a "watered-down" subject.

He also made a feature on the Negro middle class, a "study in the next stage in the Negro revolution," which has been shelved until the fall by CBS. He said the feature is vitally needed now.

In his new venture he said he has several ideas for documentaries, including one on Black Power and another on Vietnam.

In his criticism of television, he said there is no compelling treatment of the state of the world. Western society was beginning to get soft. Television was the best medium to tell of its problems.

"Society needs to be pricked, but television is afraid to rock the boat," he said.

He said he had the best of working conditions at CBS but found he was having to make one compromise after another as his features went up through the various levels of management for approval.

In this kind of a system, not restricted to CBS, there was a danger of "eviscerating" the feature. Softening the impact of the message of a program "endangered your own soul."

Leiterman worked with Southam News Services before joining the CBC. Before Seven Days, he was involved in the programs Close Up and Document.

Next Concert Wednesday

Second concert in the Victoria Conservatory of Music spring concert series will take place next Wednesday at the Conservatory, 613 Pandora Avenue, at 8 p.m.

Performers will be Jan Menting, flute; Barry Moncur, clarinet; Faith Webster, soprano, and Robin Wood and Winifred Scott, piano.

Among instrumental works to be presented are three short pieces for flute and piano by Don Gillis, Sonata for Clarinet and Piano by Hindemith, and Poem by Charles Griffes for flute and piano.

Vocal numbers will be Handel's Art Thou Troubled, Schumann's Der Nussbaum and Ave Maria from Verdi's Otello.

As space is severely limited, those who wish to attend should telephone the Conservatory, 384-1717, for reservation.

This will conclude the pair of concerts by faculty members.

On May 26 and June 2 and 9 students of the Conservatory will be presented in term-end concerts at McPherson Playhouse at 2:30 p.m.

ART IN REVIEW

Show Not for the Squeamish

By TED LINDBERG

The auspicious emergence of Nancy Edell to the professional gallery scene of Victoria will be applauded by those who seek still another form of expression consistent with the times, although her highly inventive, biomorphic vocabulary, rendered in pen and ink, and fortified in etching and aquatint is not exactly designed for contemplation by the squeamish.

Lindberg

Opening this week at the Print Gallery in Oak Bay is an album of her linear imagery, surreal presences and graphic wit, which demonstrates a fluent and personal language, enabling her to throw prudence, intellect and fashion to the winds, nothing held back, at all times allowing her empathic hand to follow her feelings about the forms she employs.

New Generation

Mrs. Edell represents the New Generation, and thanks to the thoroughness of her keenly observed, awesome and often titilating findings, we are presented with an amalgam of statements which go far to establish this consciousness.

Necessarily this mature and candid expression must include the sexual and anatomical fantasies that lie always at the fringes of reality, although the objects she depicts are in subtly recognizable, fragmentary contexts, exploited for their literal meanings via cryptic and personal symbols.

An Edell drawing is meant to be scrutinized, read and pondered; it is like a newly-constructed chart from some eventful and penetrating journey inward, reflecting the vulnerable and perplexing aspects of the human psyche.

My notes include a staggering repertoire of symbolic devices through which she builds a total mood and image; some, in seemingly extreme dislocation from normal usage, but all related in the resulting gestalt.

Assorted Shapes

Imagine, if you can, a composite of assorted humanoid shapes, mushrooms, sprinkler nozzles, toes, fingers, fruits, babies, fetuses, caterpillars, viscera, breasts, whales, eyeballs, flasks, tattoos, mermaids, tubes, claws, orifices, tongues, light bulbs, clouds, vacuum cleaners, hills, appendages, telephones, soft machines, udders, underwear, hand-grenades and assorted mortised color swatches.

At the most superficial level, these amorphous masses of line will bring to mind the graphic representations of the most exotic Aztec and Mayan stone reliefs, and I suppose they could go unread, like the handsome books in so many private, decorative libraries.

But the delight lies in allowing oneself to enter the maze and to be entertained by the refrains of one conceptual roundelay after another.

Her prints and combination print-drawings, more three-dimensional in most cases, also involve a somewhat simplifed imagery in comparison to the drawings.

Broad View

They are easier to read at a glance, but their ultimate significance may be just as circuitous or abstruse.

It seems to me that this art not only deals with varied explicit human encounter, but is heavily preoccupied with consequence of the same. One is always presented with the broadest view of a given situation.

Whether conscious or surreal in interpretation, the full gravity of human evolution is constantly apparent; from the stratified (almost fossilized) masses of chaotic forms in black line, stacked between horizontal layers of lush, colored landscape in the larger print-drawings, to the foetal development which is present in most of the works.

The prints, as such, are monumentally conceived montages, brought about through the multiple use of tonality, quality of line, level of abstraction and focus of detail, so that a given idea is presented in total depth.

An artist's concert of separate, but totally-related ambiguities is seldom so ideally stated.

There is nothing simple about any of the items in this exhibition, as there is nothing simple about the human condition in today's world.

Mrs. Edell has developed a cursive rhetoric which transports us by classical surealist means, from the germinal through waves of ancestors and posterity, over mountains of cultural and organic phenomena, with all the attendant solemnity and existential sense of absurdity worthy the subject.

This would be an impossible task for a lesser artist.

At the Movies

With Norman Cribbens

POOR COW
Drama From London
Halda Theatre

Highly dramatic, yet documentary in style, this first release by England's new National General Company opens with a close-up of Joy (Carol White) having a baby.

The nurse places a mask over her face while the cameras move down her body and a doctor's hands are seen delivering the child.

Such intimacies may be shocking to older viewers and something of an ordeal to squeamish persons like myself. But this is an age of frankness and, like the rest of the film, the scene is very capably handled by director Kenneth Loach.

The story, which was written by Loach and Neil Dunn and based on a novel by Dunn, is offbeat in both content and execution.

* * *

It tells of an attractive London girl who is married to a crude, bullying, small-time criminal (John Bindon). Soon after the baby is born, he is arrested and sent to jail.

Joy takes up with a burglar named Dave (Terence Stamp). He is tender with Joy and affectionate to the baby, but not nearly so considerate to his victims. In consequence he is sent up for a 12-year stretch for attacking an old lady who interrupts one of his felonies.

WAIT FOR HIM

Promising to wait for him, Joy starts divorce proceedings against her husband and goes to work as a barmaid to keep herself and the baby.

The film is notable for an outstanding performance by Carol White, a newcomer who may be likened to Julie Christie both in looks and talent.

It is also a first for 30-year-old TV director Kenneth Leach and 24-year-old John Bindon, a merchant seaman who has never even acted before. This rare combination of fresh young talent converts what is really a drab case history into a compassionate and illuminating film.

A combination of dialogue, screen titles and narration is used to bridge interrupted sequences and to break off certain scenes. The film could have been shortened with effect, but its telling is never oppressive or tedious.

New Outlet For Artists

At 10 a.m. Tuesday, a new outlet for Victoria artists will appear on the city scene.

To be known as the Village Art Gallery, it will open its doors in The Village Fair on Bastion Square, featuring paintings, drawings, prints and small sculpture, the handiwork of local artists exclusively.

Owner-operators are Lian de Buese and Patt Hancock.

A feature of the opening exhibit will be a bust of Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau which well-known Victoria sculptor Peggy Walton Packard has completed especially for this event.

It is the ambition of the co-owners that almost every home in Greater Victoria should possess at least one original painting and it is with this theme in mind that they have established the price range on the works shown, most of which are for sale.

$3,600 Fellowship Awarded Victorian

David Gray, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alex Gray, of 2868 Glenwood Avenue, has been awarded a $3,600 fellowship by the National Research Council to conduct graduate studies in zoology.

A graduate of the University of Victoria last spring, he has been touring Europe and is currently conducting research on the Muskox on Bathurst Island in the Arctic.

He will attend the University of Alberta at Edmonton next fall.

Teachers Face Frustration, Dead Ends

By AUDREY JOHNSON

"Education in music, education in art, education in dancing and rhythm, are far closer to intrinsic education, that is of learning your identity, than other parts of education.

"If education doesn't do that, it is useless.

"Learning to grow, learning what to grow toward, learning what is good and bad, learning what is desirable and undesirable, learning what to choose and what not to choose—it is in this realm of intrinsic learning and intrinsic education that I think the arts, and especially the ones I have mentioned, are so close to our physiological and biological core, so close to this biological identity, that rather than think of the arts as whipped cream, we ought to think of them as fundamental."

This is an excerpt from a speech by Abraham H. Maslow, Profesor of Psychology at Brandeis University, Massachusetts.

At Tanglewood

It was given at Tanglewood, summer home of the Boston Symphony during a symposium convened last July and August, by the Music Educators National Conference.

Co-operating in organizing the symposium which brought together musicians, sociologists, scientists, labor leaders, educators, representatives of corporations, foundations, communications and government, were the Berkshire Music Centre, the Theodore Presser Foundation and Boston University's School of Fine and Applied Arts.

A continuation of discussions originating at the Tanglewood Symposium, recently took place in Seattle, where this spring the 1968 Music Educators National Conference was held.

It was attended by a number of Victoria's music educators and Harry J. Bigsby, Supervisor of Music for the Greater Victoria School Board.

5,000 Attend

More than 5,000 persons registered for the Seattle conference. They came from all over the United States, Canada, Alaska and Hawaii. Sessions took over the whole of the Seattle Centre and continued from 8:45 a.m. to 11 p.m. for six days.

Throughout it was clear that the Tanglewood Symposium has become a sort of bill of rights, a fundamental and unanimously endorsed declaration of the relationship of the arts to modern educational needs.

"The thinking behind the Tanglewood Symposium was to bring not only music educators and educators generally together," notes Mr. Bigsby, "but also to involve leaders of industry such as the chairman of the IBM Corporation, philosophers, union leaders, sociologists, psychiatrists and so forth."

Balance

The success, and the importance, of the Tanglewood Symposium is capsulized in a striking brochure which also captures main points of the discussions — the need to get back to a concept of balance in education, to a proportionate regard for the arts and humanities in an age over-dedicated to science; the need to educate for the increased leisure of this and emerging eras.

These themes were echoed, reiterated and re-stressed at Seattle at various panel discussions.

The ground covered can be guessed from the fact that sessions occupied six days and that at any given time one could attend any of up to 17 different panels, workshops and demonstrations.

Evening concerts, keynote speakers and a huge display of various publications, equipment and instruments were included.

A portable practice room was among the exhibits. This must have had a special appeal to Victoria music educators present.

The woeful inadequacy — in fact almost total non-existance of music practice and instruction rooms in Victoria schools is a grave handicap to students and teachers alike.

This is the first of two articles on the situation of the arts in education in British Columbia schools. The second will appear next Saturday.

Local teachers who attended the conference returned to Victoria, stimulated, enriched, their convictions concerning the importance of music and all the arts in education reaffirmed.

But they returned to frustration, to face blank walls and dead ends and concepts rooted in the pioneering past.

Our music educators are struggling to do something about the situation in this province. But it is a perpendicular clawing upward, gaining only finger-tip and toe-hold on the sheer rock face of an imperceptive and outmoded system.

In certain areas the situation is somewhat better in the United States, but to be factual, there is obviously room for improvement even there.

Milton Katims, Seattle Symphony's outstanding conductor, could have been speaking for all of us when he commented at the Tanglewood Symposium:

"We must have an American school system where the study of the arts is a part — an integral part of education. The schoolboy interested in music and the arts rarely finds himself in juvenile court.

Inspiration

"What in the world do we expect if we do not, in their formative years, open up horizons of emotional fulfilment and inspiration — if we do not ignite the child's imagination — if we do not fire his artistic potential from the first moment he sets foot in the classroom . . ."

This observation is underlined in our own case by one of the teachers attending the conference who stresses that music in the elementary schools of this province starts much too late, is entirely hit-or-miss.

Other speech highlights from Tanglewood that underline our problem, include this — "music should not be a specialty for a gifted few, nor an optional enrichment for the great majority" — from the president of the Colorado's Aseph Institute for Humanistic Studies.

And a professor of the Philosophy of Education at the University of Illinois, points out that "The good life, not science, not the humanities, not the arts, is the purpose of general education.

"We justify art education because aesthetic experience does contribute to well-being in a unique way, by giving aesthetic satisfaction and by intensifying and perhaps illuminating every other mode of experience."

"What I saw and heard (in Seattle) reinforced my values and strengthened my attitude toward the justification for music and all the arts having a rightful place in the core curriculum," says Harry Bigsby.

Very good.

But in the meantime, just what is the relationship of the arts to the core curriculum of education in British Columbia?

In a second article on the subject next week we'll take a look at the existing situation.

Drama Festival Opens Monday

WINDSOR (CP) — The Dominion Drama Festival opens Monday night in the modern 1,200-seat Cleary Auditorium.

About 60 productions were judged in regional competitions across the country before the festival governors chose the six that will be seen next Monday to Saturday.

The players will compete for 16 awards, including the DDF Trophy and $2,000 from the CBC for the best production of a full-length play in French or English.

Monday, May 20th

FEATURED next week in a scholarship concert sponsored by Victoria BPWC will be Victoria and Vancouver Music Festival multi-award-winning pianist Camille Inkman (seated) and Diane Hayward, top-rated city violinist.

AWARD WINNER TO PLAY

For the 22nd consecutive year the Victoria Business and Professional Women's Club will sponsor a concert and coffee party on Friday evening, May 24th, at 8 p.m. in St. Matthias Hall, 600 Richmond Road, in aid of the club's Memorial Scholarship Fund.

A varied and interesting program has been arranged and will feature several Victoria Music Festival winners including Camille Inkman, the brilliant young pianist, winner of the City of Victoria Medallion.

Vocal part of the program arranged by Miss Gladys Pearcy will include the Norfolk House Girls Choir, duets and trios by Lindan Scanlon, Anita Scanlon and Penny Beavan, and soloist Barbara Ebell accompanied by Elizabeth Izard.

The family group will feature the Gilstein Family (Eleanor Smith, Freda Gilstein and Rolf Gilstein), in accordion numbers.

Speech arts by Denise Wood, violin numbers by Diane Hayward accompanied by Stewart Calder; cello by Ann Valdal and other instrumental numbers by Richard Carswell and Ian Fetterley will be heard.

This concert is open to the public, and tickets may be had at the door, price of admission including the coffee party.

Mrs. J. Ingram Smith is convening the program and Miss Helen Cruickshank the coffee party.

Let-Down 'Too Extreme;' Concertmaster Leaves Post

Insufficient work outside his symphony concertmaster post and only one day a week teaching at Victoria Conservatory of Music, is given as the reason for the departure, after one season, of Victoria Symphony's latest concertmaster, Raymond Ovens.

Mr. Ovens came to Victoria from the City of Birmingham Symphony Orchestra to take over the local post last summer.

He looked forward to a relief from the pressures of being deputy leader of a fully professional British orchestra, but found the let-down too extreme and has now moved to the mainland.

In letters and conversations with symphony officials he stresses that he felt nothing but satisfaction so far as the orchestra, the society and Victoria itself was concerned.

FOUR SEASONS

Leaving also for the mainland, is Hans Siegrist, who has just completed four seasons as lead cellist with the symphony and as a member of the Victoria Conservatory faculty.

With Mr. Siegrist, his wife, Marta, also leaves the second violin section and her place as a teacher of piano at the conservatory.

A new first cellist arrives this summer from Winnipeg. He is James Hunter who was principal cellist with the Vancouver Symphony before moving east to take up the same position with the Winnipeg Symphony.

Mr. Hunter also joins the conservatory faculty in a joint appointment.

Among those being considered for the post of concertmaster by the Symphony Society at the present time, are Derek Collier, concertmaster of the Bournemouth Symphony in England, and Barbara Allan, a brilliant British Columbia violinist who was last year's National Youth Orchestra concertmaster and who is at present at the Julliard School of Music.

Mr. Collier will arrive in Victoria shortly to have talks with symphony officials.

Roar, Smell Directed By Vancouver Expert

ROSS
. . . in Victoria

Bob Ross, Vancouver director and actor, is in Victoria to direct the British musical comedy The Roar of the Greasepaint, the Smell of the Crowd, to be presented in conjunction with the British Festival of the Arts.

The Anthony Newley-Lesley Bircusse hit musical is being produced for Bastion Theatre by Robert Price, and will open at McPherson Playhouse June 6, with Harry Hill and Owen Foran as leads.

Director Ross, who is currently resident director of Vancouver's Metro Theatre Centre, has himself appeared in the lead role of "Sir" in the Canadian premiere of the musical.

An associate of Trinity College, London, and graduate of the Royal Academy of Dramatic Art, his many successes include a year at the Piccadilly Theatre, London; a year's professional touring in England; and film productions for Michael Powell and Emeric Presburger.

DIRECTS PLAYS

While on the Continent, he directed plays in English for La Troupe Moliere, and since his return to Vancouver, has adjudicated one-act drama festivals, produced and directed theatrical productions, acted both on stage and TV, and taught classes in speech and drama, most recently at Notre Dame College, Nelson.

This year, Bob Ross appeared as the narrator in Irma la Douce for Metro Theatre, directed Half a Sixpence for the UBC Musical Society, and played the role of Professor Higgins in the Dunbar Musical Society's production of My Fair Lady.

He will direct the Emerald Players in The Loves of Cass McGuire which will be produced at Metro Theatre in June.

The Victoria production of The Roar of the Greasepaint features, besides Harry Hill and Owen Foran, Gini Lefever, Dick Wood, and dancers of the Wynne Shaw Dance Studio, Valerie Smith, Wendy Tebo, Julie Windwick, Maureen Lawson, Sandra Thody, Irene King, Lana Check, Madeline Ponich and Nancy Watt.

Musical director and conductor for the show is Marge Adelberg.

The Roar of the Greasepaint, the Smell of the Crowd, will run June 6-15 at McPherson Playhouse.

Tickets will go on sale at the Playhouse box office and at the Bay from May 23.

'. . . Less Honest Than a Pagan Ritual'

By BERYL PROUDMAN

Stravinsky Conducts 1960. Le Sacre du Printemps. (D3L 300, D3S 614).

Stravinsky; Le Sacre de Printemps; Karajan; Berlin Phil. (DGG 138920 distrib. by Polydor.)

Stravinsky's Rite of Spring grew from a vivid dream of pagan ritual, but by the time it was performed in 1913 he had become so familiar with the music that he loved it and was flabbergasted and infuriated by the shocked reaction which greeted its first performance.

Despite the intervening years in which we have been exposed to atonal and polytonal grindings, Le Sacre de Printemps still excites inexplicable feelings of aversion in many sensitive people.

Diamond in The Groove

Some sufferers may find relief in Von Karajan's interpretation, but Stravinsky's is surely more authentic.

Either the Columbia recording techniques or the instruments of the Columbia Symphony are responsible for thinner-sounding instruments which, while they make the dissonant sections more piercingly painful to the ear, also allow listeners to disentangle and hear with separate distinction individual sections interwoven into knots of sound on Von Karajan's recording.

There is a more distant perspective and a lighter yet more rigid control in Stravinsky's rendition. Percussive thumps of the dancers' rhythmic beat are lighter so that compensating sections sound lighter too.

Less is made of the melody sections which are not allowed to slow the tempo, and syncopations suggesting mid-dance leaps are more strongly emphasized.

IN LIBRARY

The Victoria Public Library has a copy of this recording which includes an enlightening talk by the composer, several essays and a recording of Petroushka.

As usual, the Berlin Philharmonic players have produced almost faultless playing of the music before them and the engineering department of DGG has reproduced their sounds faithfully.

Von Karajan's performance is superb in every way except, perhaps, in interpretation.

He caresses melodic sections into richer bloom than Stravinsky would approve of; the texture of his solo instruments is so rich as to sound almost palpable and the work has been smoothed and refined so that it is more acceptable in polite society.

There is something synthetic and barbaric about this more civilized sophisticated version of a primitive work. A pre-meditated orgy in sumptuous surroundings is somehow less honest than a pagan ritual ceremony.

Von Karajan's version has the grotesque barbarity of the monocled Wild man from Borneo at a fancy-dress ball, less dangerous, less frightening than the original but less exciting or authentic, too.

The small-type title of the work and the composer, sandwiched between enormous acknowledgement of the conductor and the orchestra on the cover of this recording seems to do less than justice to the originator of the marvellous music but perhaps this par-cooked interpretation will make the work more palatable to the squeamish.

Churchill Portrayal 'Emphatically Superb'

NEW YORK (CP) Walter Kerr, one of the United States' most influential drama critics, lavishes praise on Canadian actor John Colicos in an article in the New York Times.

Kerr describes as "emphatically superb" Colicos' portrayal of Winston Churchill in Soldiers, which opened on Broadway April 29 and closes Sunday.

The controversial play, which had opened first in Toronto, has three other Canadians in its cast besides Colicas, of Montreal.

They are Eric House and Colin Fox, both of Toronto, and Richard Monette of Montreal.

In his assessment of Rolf Hochhuth's play, Kerr says the Toronto production of Soldiers "created a gloomy density that had some mystery about it."

But the streamlined Broadway version "sharply exposed the work for what it is: A succession of harangues . . ."

"One thing is genuinely dramatic still, and that is the portrait of Churchill himself . . . emphatically in John Colicos' superb, now wholly assimilated, performance.

"The two crimes that occupy Churchill — cremating whole cities and conniving in the death of exiled Polish leader Gen. Sikorski — are thematically unrelated. Mr. Colicos at least makes them the moral crises of one man."

28,000 Cars Being Recalled

DETROIT (AP) — Big three automakers announced recall of more than 28,000 cars Friday because of possible malfunctions involving headlight covers, and steering and acceleration systems.

Ford Motor Co. said 3,400 of its LTD, XL and Country Squire models built at Mahwah, N.J., and Norfolk, Va., and delivered to dealers on the East Coast were being recalled.

The company said springs may have been omitted from a vacuum-operated concealed-headlight system. The springs hold the headlight covers open in the event of a major loss of vacuum, a company spokesman said. Loss of the springs could mean covers may close while the car is in motion.

The other two recalls involved Chrysler Corp. and the Oldsmobile Division of General Motors Co.

Chrysler said Police and taxicab operators were being notified to return 1967 model Dodge, Plymouth and Chrysler cars equipped with manual steering.

PROBLEM IN STEERING

The problem, Chrysler said, is a possible misalignment of the energy-absorbing steering column. Chrysler said 13,963 vehicles were involved in this call back.

Oldsmobile said it was recalling 11,461 cars, 1968 model 88s, 98s, equipped with cruise control, which has a cable adjusting nut that may disengage if the driver presses the accelerator pedal to a level beyond the speed pre-selected for the cruise control system.

Disengaging the nut would hold the throttle in an open position, the firm said.

Chrysler also said it was recalling 814 vehicles equipped with M-300 and M-375 Dodge truck chassis built in 1968. These vehicles have a steering column coupling joint clamp bolt which may have been damaged by being tightened too much, Chrysler said.

Trading Suspended

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Vancouver Stock Exchange Friday suspended trading in shares of West-Coast Resources Ltd., which has a copper property in the Greenwood area, 200 miles east of Vancouver.

Jack Van Luven, president of the VSE, said it was suspended "pending clarification of the company's affairs."

BOAC Pilots In Work Slowdown

LONDON (AP) — British Overseas Airway Corp.'s 1,040 pilots today began a slowdown, threatening delays and eventual disruption of international flights by the government-owned airline.

A dispute over new contracts involving pay and productivity came to a boil with the pilots' decision to "work to rule" from midnight Thursday night.

That means pilots will follow the rule book, insisting on every detail of flight procedure.

Sir Giles Guthrie, chairman of the airline, said: "This action is incomprehensible and irresponsible. The only people to suffer will be the passengers."

The dispute is over a pilots' proposal for an immediate 10-per-cent salary increase in return for greater productivity. BOAC says the extra productivity offered by the pilots amounts to only 1½ per cent.

Barrel-Milling Shutdown Set By Sweeney

VANCOUVER (CP)—The barrel-milling division of Sweeney Cooperage Ltd. will shut down indefinitely, Ed Sweeney said this week.

Mr. Sweeney, milling division vice-president, said the market shortages and inroads by metal and plastic containers have forced the shutdown, putting 95 men out of work.

Victoria plywood division, B.C. Forest Products Ltd., won a top award of the Council of the Forest Industries of B.C. for the most successful accident control records among 18 mills. The award of the plywood manufacturers' division of the council was presented to Rex Humphreys, Victoria plant division manager, left, by N. R. Dusting, executive vice-president of the council, at the annual meeting in Vancouver.

WEEK ON MARKETS

Golds Were Bright Spot

By GERALD CLARKSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Prices on Canada's stock markets fell for the second week running and closed Friday at their lowest levels since late April.

The slide in industrials decisively interrupted the Vietnam peace rally, while a strong surge in gold shares showed that investors still lack confidence in reserve currencies.

Canadian golds followed the trend on the free bullion market which touched a high of $41.80 U.S. an ounce at London during the course of Friday. The price slipped to $41.60 in the afternoon, and this was reflected in Canada where senior golds closed below their best.

Rumors of another sterling devaluation and shortage of bullion supplies were the main reasons cited for the sudden interest. South Africa repeated its intention to withhold new gold from the free market.

Analysts also thought that gold had crossed a "physhcological barrier" when it advanced beyond $40 U.S.

News from Washington that the long-anticipated tax increase spending cut bill has been delayed at least until early June had a depressing effect on markets Thursday and Friday. The United States' fiscal position retains a crucial hold on prices.

FUNDS FLOW SOUTH

Fears for the future of the Toronto and Montreal stock markets were expressed this week first in the press and then by John Kimber, president of the Toronto Stock Exchange.

Mr. Kimber said Canadian markets will inevitably become satellites of U.S. financial centres unless Canada develops larger and more attractive facilities.

He commented that Canadian funds were flowing in ever-increasing amounts into U.S. equities. His audience thought he was referring particularly to the current trend among institutions to invest more in New York, and also to the rising demand for more extensive and costly brokerage services on the American pattern.

Analysts say the recent dip in the market should be reversed before June 30 because institutions on both sides of the border will want to commit accummulating cash before the end of the year's second quarter.

PRICES MOVE FAST

However, this week the main interest was in "special situation" stocks.

Massey-Ferguson was the most active industrial at Toronto, gaining 1⅞ to 18½ on 276,000 shares. Takeover rumors hit the market late Tuesday and shares changed hands as high 24½ before strong denials were issued the next day.

Argus Corp., which has a 10.9 per cent interest in Massey, was back to 12 after touching 14 at the height of the excitement.

Hawker-Siddeley leapt 80 cents to 3.75 and Dosco ⅞ to 9½ following the Quebec government's offer to buy Dosco for $11 a share. Hawker, which holds 77 per cent of Dosco stock, said it was in favor of the proposal. It still has to be approved by the Quebec legislature.

Speculators also watched small industrials. Fleet Manufacturing jumped 30 cents to 2.30 on 208,000 shares. The company reported no new developments but referred to a large American order received April for aircraft components.

Silknit slipped ⅝ to 16¼ after the firm's president played down a newspaper report on its bullet-proof fabric.

Peel Elder advanced 4 to 20. The rise was attributed to the recent distribution of the annual report showing sharply increased profits.

Canadian Goldale, which has a 13.5 per cent interest in Peel Elder, gained 1 to 16½. Revenue Properties, after more than doubling this year, rose ⅜ to 20½ on 83,000 shares.

The company announced mortgage arrangements for a 337-unit housing project in Pittsburgh.

Small mines with property in Quebec's Louvicourt Township continued to head the active list.

$5 Million Advance To Curtis by Time

NEW YORK ((AP) — Time Inc. has agreed to advance $5,000,000 to the Curtis Publishing Co. in a plan to reduce Curtis' large financial losses in recent years.

Directors of Time and Curtis announced Friday they had approved a plan designed to "strengthen the publishing, printing and circulation activities of Curtis and to permit the continued publication of the Saturday Evening Post on a healthy financial basis."

Martin S. Ackerman Jr., Curtis president, said the program calls for cutting the Post's circulation to less than half its current 6,800,000 with Post subscribers allowed to receive Life magazine instead for the remainder of their subscription. Post subscribers refusing Life as a substitute will be offered other magazines or a cash refund.

Under the loan agreement, Time will advance Curtis $2,500,000 in July and another $2,500,000 in September.

Curtis has published the Saturday Evening Post, formerly a weekly but bi-weekly in recent years, since 1897.

Trucking Line Revenue Jumps

VANCOUVER (CP) — Gill Interprovincial Lines Ltd., a Vancouver-based national trucking line, has reported increased revenue for 1967, but profits stabilized at $1.15 per share.

President Harold Freeman said revenue increased to $9,400,000 in 1967 compared to $8,700,000 in 1966

The company has terminals in seven major cities across Canada, its newest opened in Toronto last year.

Canada Lodges Protest

BRUSSELS, Belgium (Reuters) — Canada has protested that the European Common Market's agricultural policy has damaged her rape seed sales to the six member states, informed sources report.

Canada, a major producer of rape seeds, made the complaint in a memorandum to the Common Market's top executive body.

It charged that the community restricted imports by encouraging local production through the institution of a higher common price than that previously guaranteed by individual countries, such as France and West Germany.

Canada also argued that its sales were restricted because of financial aid to processing industries which use rape seed grown in the Common Market rather than imports.

Following the introduction of the high common price, planting had increased by 14 per cent in France and 40 per cent in West Germany.

At the same time, Canadian rape seed exports in 1967 to the six had dropped to $11,500,000 from $14,500,000 in 1966.

Canada called on the commission to re-examine its policy to enable the traditional flow of trade to be continued.

Tax Concessions Lack Hits Mine Project in U.K.

LONDON (AP)—Lack of tax concessions is hampering an all-out drive by a Canadian mining company to exploit Cornwall's mineral wealth, it was reported today.

A spokesman for Prado, a subsidiary of the International Mine Services of Toronto, today said "encouraging results" have been obtained in the last five months in the search for tin.

Prado spent £100,000 (about $260,000) in prospecting and is prepared to double this to speed up its survey program.

AUTO PACT OPERATIONS REPORT

Canadians Still Pay More

WASHINGTON (CP) — Canadian car buyers continue to pay about nine per cent more than their U.S. counterparts for the same popular models, says an official report on 1967 operations of the Canada-U.S. auto production agreement.

The gap is wider on a more expensive model, it says.

Cars rolling from Canadian assembly lines have moved closer to the lower factory list — or wholesale — price in the U.S., it says. But taxes, dealer discounts and what it describes as other factors "tend to offset somewhat the reduced wholesale differentials."

The limited free trade arrangement begun in 1965 removed North American tariffs for manufacturers of most new vehicles and the parts going into them. One advantage cited at the time was an expectation that Canadian prices gradually would move closer to U.S. levels as Canadian plants concentrated on making more units of fewer models, cutting manufacturing costs.

A report on 1967, sent to Congress Friday, spells out in detail that a price gap remains in the case of three unnamed popular models.

In 1964, says the report, the suggested retail price for a four-door-six-cylinder sedan in the U.S. was $2,388 compared with $2.777 in Canadian funds in Canada or $2,569 in American dollars. The difference was $231 or 9.9 per cent.

The factory list price was $2,137 in the U.S. and $2,342 in Canada in terms of U.S. dollars, a difference of 9.6 per cent.

WHOLESALE DOWN

On the 1968 model of the same car, says the report, the difference in wholesale price was down to 5.7 per cent but the suggested retail price remians nine per cent higher in Canada — $2,501 compared with $2,727.

Why?

The Canadian sales tax on the 1968 car was $234 in U.S. funds against $139 in U.S. federal excise tax — a difference of $95 in favor of the U.S. buyer..

Canadians paid a bit less than Americans in dealer charges — $23 American.

The real difference, the figures indicate, was in the suggested retail price, $226 higher in Canada.

The biggest reduction was shown by a two-door, hardtop eight-cylinder model which bore a Canadian factory-price tag in 1964 of $1.214 or 30.4 per cent higher and a suggested retail price of $1,298 or 9.7 per cent higher.

The 1968 model has a Canadian wholesale price of $372 or only 8.7 per cent higher and a suggested retail price of $526 or 11.5 per cent higher. Canadian tax is listed as $159 more than the U.S. amount.

20 NEW SUPERPORTS UNDER WAY IN JAPAN

VANCOUVER (CP) — Tokyo has 20 harbor developments in progress, each one as big as the proposed superport at Roberts Bank, B.C., Lands and Forests Minister Ray Williston announced.

Mr. Williston, recently returned from a trip to Japan, outlined some aspects of transportation development in a speech to the Vancouver branch of the Engineering Institute of Canada.

Mr. Williston said that the Japanese recognize that trade with British Columbia is a key factor in their economic development.

"The Japanese have tremendous interest in B.C. and they are looking towards greater liaison in the Pacific area and with this province," he said.

Fertile Ground For New Listings

By AB KENT
Business Editor

A suggestion that Toronto Stock Exchange is scouting for new listings coincides with some of the thinking on the politico-economic subject of foreign investment.

Kent

Twenty-five governors of TSE are coming to B.C. in two weeks, during which they will give a luncheon for the business and financial community in Victoria May 30 at the Empress.

Such a delegation in strength, coming so great a distance from Toronto, indicates more than a goodwill visit.

B.C. happens to be one of North America's most vital corporate breeding grounds, to judge from the statistics kept by the registrar of companies.

It is in the stock exchange's interest to secure new listings, and where there are new mining companies and other corporations spawned daily, it is not long before many of them become public companies.

Not all are immediately eligible for listing on an exchange since they must meet with requirements and comply with financial rules and acts of disclosure. But it is observed that the requirements of provincial securities commissions today are becoming more synonymous with stock exchange regulations so theoretically more companies are qualified for membership.

* * *

There is reluctance of some privately-controlled firms to make the full disclosures necessary for listing on an exchange. This is traditional and has resulted in many companies remaining, or becoming, family affairs.

And that is where the pitfall lies. These firms, through decline of active family interest, become prey to takeover by agglomerating corporations, often with bases outside of Canada.

Therefore, although new TSE president Robert N. Steiner would not call his B.C. tour a recruiting trip for listings, he would not discourage them.

And while it would boost overall trading and thus add to TSE revenues, more Canadian listings would help to keep trading active, and, hopefully, in the hands of Canadians.

Bankers are going to school at a rate unequalled in the history of Canadian finance.

A current edition of Canadian Bankers' Association Bulletin says 5,000 students are expected to be enrolled in banking courses starting this fall at 17 Canadian universities.

About 3,700 bankers registered for the first year of courses last year, as administered by the Institute of Canadian Bankers, and full enrolment when more than 30 universities are taking part in the program is expected to hit 10,000 per year.

The course, designed for high school graduates, is divided into three parts. The final phase admits those who complete it to the institute as fellows and credit, if desired, for certain university courses toward a degree.

Future thought is to have an advanced course directed to middle and senior management in fields of industry-wide concern. This would be equivalent to a master's degree at university, and it is hoped to make the course available in the fall of next year.

Riviera Mines Ltd. is among recent companies announcing plans for development of northern Vancouver Island copper prospects. With $60,000 in new capital received from an underwriting, Riviera is considering a geophysical and x-ray diamond drilling program to follow a geochemical survey, which covered 59 claims.

There are 47 adjoining claims optioned to John Tancowny in one agreement, and 119 additional in another option.

Another 58 claims were sold outright to Benson Securities Ltd.

All financial arrangements involve cash, shares of Magnet Explorations Ltd., Hardy Minerals Ltd. and Gyro Explorations Ltd., all of which have interest in the Port Hardy copper area.

Riviera property is to the south of Utah Construction and Mining Co. property, largest holdings of more than 40 groups of claims registered to individuals, groups and companies in the Holberg Inlet, Port Hardy and Rupert Inlet area.

The 81st shipment of nickel-copper concentrates to leave its Hope mine since 1960 is announced by Giant Mascot Mines Ltd., which has grossed $21.12 million (U.S.) from the sales to Japan.

The latest shipment, May 1, totalled 1,327 short, wet tons averaging 10.4 per cent nickel and 3.5 per cent copper, worth $187,452 (U.S.)

Giant Mascot stock has risen from a low of 17 cents in 1960 and was traded at Vancouver Friday for $1.47. It pays a small dividend.

Net Income Gain For Union Gas Co.

TORONTO (CP) — Union Gas Co. of Canada Ltd. had net income of $8,955,621 or 59.6 cents a share in the year ended March 31, compared with $7,753,610 or 51.8 cents in the previous year.

The company says in an interim financial report that gross revenue from gas sales increased to $87,882,241 from $77,404,076, while other income rose to $7,296,566 from $6,362,527.

By JOHN MIKA

Bennett's Old Black Magic

It's still not the same fire-eater we used to know but Premier Bennett showed just a few flashes of his old political magic a couple of days ago when he wound up the Social Credit campaign in the Vancouver South byelection.

Mika

For several years now he's been acting like a comfortable fat cat who never had to stir from his haunches. Gone were the dramatic "second looks" of his earlier days when he responded quickly to public moods and nowhere in sight were the radical approaches he used to take in solving his political problems.

He had become so solidly established in the myth of his own worth and invincibility that he even spoke of press criticism more in sorrow than in the furious anger he displayed so well in winning a few extra underdog votes.

Well his Tuesday night rally was in the same old tired mold but Thursday was a little different.

After eight years of spitting in the face of public criticism over the dual education and labor portfolios, he has finally taken his second look and promised they'll be split "sooner than you think."

●

(Of course, since everybody thought it would take forever that promise still leaves him plenty of latitude — but that's just another sign that his wily ways are reviving.)

After seeing Mr. Bennett's lips tremble and his eyes fill with tears — almost like clockwork — whenever referring to some of his colleagues in the past several months, it seems his languishing ruthlessness has taken a new lease of life if Leslie Peterson can be believed that he had no advance warning whatever his portfolios are about to be sundered.

The same nostalgia that comes when one hears a familiar tune from one's youth accompanied the premier's vehement denunciation of the "press barons" trying to poison the ordinary people against him.

That's the kind of lusty music that only a live politician can sing.

But why has he come back from the twilight zone?

It could be simply the jealousy that all elders have for young swingers — and there's been that 48-year-old hippie in the real prime minister's office to rub it into Mr. Bennett's ego.

●

But more likely, it's the Vancouver South byelection itself that has aroused these signs of life — and they're still meagre enough.

Just as there's nothing like the smell of victory to excite those in the political wilderness, there's nothing like the smell of defeat to make the rusty adrenalin glands start clanking again in an old and smug political machine.

And that's what Socreds may have to face Tuesday after the byelection votes are counted — defeat; and even the possibility of stunning defeat.

If the government manages to hang onto the seat with lacklustre candidate George Wainborn, it will be because of Mr. Bennett's sudden activity before and behind the scenes in the past week.

Even the Socreds admit that during the early part of the campaign they were definitely running well behind NDP candidate Norman Levi and possibly not much ahead of the Liberal's (some) hope Sandy Robertson.

Now they're privately predicting that it will be a squeaker but that Mr. Wainborn will take it if the vote is heavy and perhaps lose it if the vote is light.

That's hardly optimism in a seat where the government had a margin of almost 4,000 votes over the runner-up barely 18 months ago.

Independent observers think that Mr. Levi will win Tuesday and the NDP is certain of it — some even think privately that there will be a landslide in their favor.

There's some compelling evidence that Mr. Levi — who was the NDP candidate the last time in the riding, is past president of the provincial NDP party and infinitely better-known in the riding than his opponents — has the edge.

For one thing, this campaign has been fought on the front lawns and doorsteps and that's where Mr. Levi is strongest.

●

The NDP has completed three house-to-house canvasses of the riding and they've identified their supporters, opponents and those who don't care that much.

But the interesting thing is that they report a surprisingly high proportion of "don't cares" became "maybes" the second time they were visited and were so impressed by the trouble the party took to make personal contact that they become "supporters" on the third canvass.

And with their block-by-block check sheets to help organize a voting-day turnout, they are confident that more than ever they will get practically every conceivable NDP vote to the polling booth. That's why the Socreds virtually concede a loss if the turnout is relatively small.

But the "sign war" has been the most telling. Each of the candidates (except for the Republican Party's kibitzer) has concentrated heavily on persuading people to put up one of their signs on the front lawn and never has a provincial campaign seen so many signs sprout along the streets.

Mr. Levi has some 400 large four-by-eight-feet signs up and about 1,300 two-by-four-foot smaller signs sticking up from the grass—triple the number raised by his opponents. It must mean something, claim the NDP workers.

The riding is a good testing ground for the government's popularity. It stretches two miles deep across the eight-mile-long southern flank of Greater Vancouver and its inhabitants fall into the low and middle income groups with a fair sprinkling of wealthy estates—where even the Levi signs have penetrated.

That's why the government, undoubtedly disturbed by the poor initial showing, has stepped up its drive in the last few days in the hopes that the NDP drive has already "peaked" while the Socreds continue climbing back to the top up until the polls open.

The Liberals are expected to suffer a serious setback in the minor revival they had going early in the campaign as a result of Ray Perrault's decision to drop the provincial leadership to go into federal politics.

Both the Socreds and NDP have laughed hard about it but undoubtedly both are worried about its significance too.

Because there's no disguising the fact that what Mr. Perrault really was doing was making way for a change in the leadership.

It is significant that he became leader in 1959 only because no one else wanted it and he felt duty-bound to stand by the party.

It is also significant that he hadn't finished announcing his resignation when the first hat was thrown into the ring by Vancouver-Point Grey MLA Dr. Pat McGeer.

It appears now that all four Liberal MLAs will be seeking the leadership and they will be challenged for the job by some prominent outsiders—probably even the national president of the Liberals, Senator John Nichol, who has the background, intelligence and money to give anyone, in any party, a pretty good run.

Obviously, the Liberals believe that the government star is in an irreversible decline and they are in a hurry to revamp their image so they can present a more credible alternative than the NDP.

●

If the Socreds do get whomped Tuesday it will be a clear sign that the Liberal assessment is correct. It will also be clear that they won't be ready this year.

In the old days, that would have spelled out one certainty—a snap election call by Premier Bennett.

If the government does lose Vancouver South and the old artful dodger fails to call an election this year—say Sept. 9—then those flashes of the old fire we saw this week can be considered the last sputtering of a spent flame and anyone seeking some excitement in provincial politics again will have to look to someone else to provide it.

That goes for the Socred lookers as well as those in the other parties.

PEPIN
. . . compromise

Province Role 'Inevitable'

OTTAWA (CP) — Jean-Luc Pepin, who holds two portfolios in Prime Minister Trudeau's cabinet, said Friday a compromise ought to be found in the tug-of-war between Ottawa and Quebec over international relations.

Mr. Pepin, minister of labor and energy, said in an interview that with the establishment of international relations in a growing number of fields, provincial participation is inevitable.

A framework should therefore by worked out within which the provinces could exercise their constitutional rights at an international level.

Hotel Disturbance

A man was fined $25 Thursday for causing a disturbance.

George Tracy, no fixed address, was observed drunk in the lobby of a downtown hotel Wednesday.

Columbia Apartment Sit-In Broken Up by Police Raid

NEW YORK (AP) — Several hundred police summoned by Columbia University early today ended a sit-in at a university-owned apartment house by militant protesters demonstrating against Columbia's expansion in the community.

The confrontation, which marked the second time in 18 days that Columbia had called on police to rout trespassers, was over in less than a half hour as the demonstrators surrendered without resisting.

There were 121 persons arrested, including 44 women.

On April 30, when 1,000 police assembled on the Ivy League university's Upper Manhattan campus to clear demonstrators from five buildings, there were 700 persons arrested and about 100 injured. That incident was followed by many charges of police brutality.

Columbia has an enrollment of about 25,000.

The apartment house sit-in was begun Friday by members of a community group calling themselves the Community Action Committee and then supported by about 1,000 Columbia students.

They occupied a shabby, red brick six-story tenement on 114th Street. They charged the university with using harassing tactics to dispossess its tenants.

In a statement, the university said the 70-year-old building was in poor repair when it was purchased, that the tenants had been offered other quarters and that no one had been evicted.

The Victoria Conservatory of Music

A report to the public and in particular to those who assisted in the raising of funds for the Norma MacDonald Piano.

Funds raised in March, 1966 in the amount of $1,700.00 under the auspices of the Centennial Society Co-ordinator, Mr. Gerry Gosley, were, in the words of the Memorial Concert Programme:

"Proceeds to assist the Victoria School of Music to purchase a full concert grand piano for the use and enjoyment of the citizens of Greater Victoria."

The balance of the purchase price of $9,100.00 was susbscribed by benefactors of the Conservatory and the piano was duly purchased.

Since that time the piano has been made available for serious performance for the public enjoyment as often as reasonable common sense in the handling of so fine an instrument dictates. This piano has been loaned without charge where required to the Victoria Symphony Orchestra, the Musical Arts Society and the Registered Music Teachers' Association to name but a few.

It is estimated that the piano has been heard in performance by upwards of 40,000 people and has been performed on by more than 200 persons of all ages, outside the Conservatory.

The day to day disposition of the piano is, and will continue to be, in the hands of the Music Director of the Conservatory.

As always in the past this instrument, other pianos, and other instruments will continue to be made available for public use whenever possible.

John Graeme,
President.

(for the Board of the Victoria Conservatory of Music)

If you wanted to buy
SPECIAL REPLACEMENT BONDS for cash
here's good news

Special Replacement Bonds are the most attractive Canada Savings Bonds ever offered. Up to now they have been available only in exchange for an equal amount of 1959 Canada Savings Bonds. You may have been one of those who did not hold 1959 Canada Savings Bonds and were thus unable to take advantage of the attractive features of the new bonds. The original exchange offer has now expired. In its place a limited amount of Special Replacement Bonds is being made available to everyone for cash. This cash offer may be withdrawn at any time at the discretion of the Minister of Finance, and in any event will not be open beyond May 31st, 1968.

This cash offering will be limited to an amount which, together with the ultimate total of 1959 Series Bonds exchanged, will produce an issue of $700 million or thereabouts. At the time of the announcement of the exchange offer last March, $714 million of 1959 Series Canada Savings Bonds were outstanding.

Special Replacement Bonds are dated May 1, 1968 and provide an average annual yield of 6.88% when held to maturity on October 1st, 1978. Interest starts at $6 per $100 for the first year, then steps up to $7 per $100 for the next nine years and $3 per $100 for the final five months. Special Replacement Bonds also provide the holder with the opportunity to earn interest on his interest. If he chooses to hold his regular interest coupons uncashed until the maturity of the bond, he will get back double its face value.

The cash price for Special Replacement Bonds (which bear interest from May 1st, 1968) is 100.50% representing par value plus interest for the month of May, 1968, at the first coupon rate of 6% per annum. They may be purchased by individuals and estates up to a total of $20,000 registered in any one name. They retain all the standard features which have made Canada Savings Bonds the unmatched favourite for Canadian personal investment, including the right to cash them at any time at any bank for full face value plus earned interest calculated monthly.

Special Replacement Bonds are issued in either coupon or fully registered form. Coupon bonds are available in denominations of $50, $100, $500, $1000 and $5000 and are registered as to principal. Fully registered bonds are available in denominations of $500, $1000 and $5000 in two different types and are registered as to both interest and principal. The first type pays earned interest by cheque but does not offer the compound interest feature. The second type does offer the compound interest feature and payment of accumulated interest is deferred until redemption of the bond.

'United Effort' Plea by Nancy

HALIFAX (CP)—Nancy Greene, Canadian two-time World Cup winner, said Friday a united effort by Canadians combined with greater financial assistance from governments would upgrade amateur sport.

She told a news conference at the start of the four-day national convention of the Canadian Amateur Ski Association that Canada should follow the example of some European countries which produce championship athletes by allowing them greater financial independence.

Miss Greene, 25, who announced her retirement from competitive skiing in March after winning the World Cup for the second straight year, said: "More and more Canadians realize that our athletes have not been supported financially."

MUST BE REALISTIC

"Amateurism is ideal but sometimes ideals aren't realistic," she said in reference to charges that some athletes competing in international events are not adhering to the code of amateurism.

"I would like to preserve the ideals but have to be realistic . . . A lot of European teams are receiving government support."

She cited the French ski team which is "the best in the world because they can train all year. They only came along when they had the time for training."

She commended the National Fitness Council for its assistance to amateur sports and said Canadians are "concerned about our standing in sport . . . Everyone must pull together in this."

Miss Greene, who won gold and silver medals at the 1968 Winter Olympics at Grenoble, France, said she retired from competitive skiing because after nine years "all I can do is go down . . . maybe I'm trying to avoid losing . . . It's pretty hard to take."

Earlier, Pierre Alain, president of the CASA, said the organization may have to take a stand on amateurism which may "jeopardize our position on the international scene."

He said the CASA would study problems associated with the strict code of amateurism which governs international skiing.

"We want to act this time and this will be studied here," he said. "We must find ways and means to get a solution to eligibility."

Women's Rifles Right on Target

Marian Goodin's pitching and a lusty batting attack combined to give Queen's Own Rifles (nee Tudors) a 27-5 Lower Island Senior Women's Softball League victory over Cantin's at Central Park Thursday.

TIME OUT

By JEFF KEATE

"Quick, ump! Is it an infraction of the rules for Lefty to put his fingers to his mouth now?"

Penalty Shot Pulls It Out For Oakland

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

John Kowalik broke loose for four goals in the second half and helped Chicago Mustangs rout Dallas Tornados 6-1 in the North American Soccer League Friday night.

Kowalik got his four goals on a shot by 15 yards out, a penalty shot, an open shot from 20 yards out and on an assist by Peter Sulincevski, who had scored twice for the Mustangs in the first half.

Washington Whips beat Boston Beacons 3-2, St. Louis Stars and Cleveland Stokers played a 1-1 tie and Oakland Clippers defeated San Diego Toros 3-2 in other NASL games.

Antonio de Oliveira scored the winning goal for Washington with eight minutes left to play. Carl Gentile got the tying goal for St. Louis with 4½ minutes left. Ilia Mitic's penalty shot with 3:20 left gave Oakland its victory over San Diego.

The Clippers trailed 2-0 at halftime on two penalty kicks by Pepe Fernandez, who scored his 12th and 13th goals and now leads the NASL with 29 points. Milan Cop scored the first Clipper goal in the 67th minute and Dave Davidovic tied the game in the 80th minute.

Chalk Up Five For Electricians

Denford Electric cruised to its fifth consecutive victory Friday night with a 12-4 win over King's Hotel in Junior Men's Softball League play at Central Park.

Electrics meet Morrison Motors in the next game Sunday at Central Park, starting at 6:30 p.m.

AT MOUNT NEWTON

Thomas Paces Viking Victory

For some, victory was more important than broken records Friday in the annual inter-house track and field meet at Mt. Newton Junior High School.

Victories in the high jump, shot put, half-mile and mile earned Bob Thomas the senior boys aggregate championship and paced his Viking House to victory. Thomas didn't tally any of the 14 records that fell during the day's competition.

June Bickford took the senior girls' title while Laurie McHattie won the intermediate girls' championship. Laurie Spooner and Rene Karemaker tied for the intermediate boy's title and Birdena Bowditch and Bill Sandwith captured junior honors.

Vikings tallied 320 points, Tarter House 287 and Spartans brought up the rear with 161½.

FUNNY BIRD

No. Funny-looking, maybe. But functional. Built for work. His natural habitat is high grass, weeds, brush. He mows them down, little grass blades to 1¼" saplings. With 36" or 44" snout...

He floats over rough terrain—safer, faster, easier, with a longer proven life—even before medicare.

You see more JARI's in the yards and on the grounds of America than any other bird. Insist on JARI.

He'll reward your good judgment with dedicated service.

Mt. Doug Overlooks All And View Is Just Great

—Times photos by Bill Halkett

Langdale, Fediw Show the Way In Track Sweep

By ERNIE FEDORUK

The view from Mt. Douglas was sweepingly magnificent Friday, but don't go away . . .

It may stay that way for some time.

Talented youngsters from Mt. Doug mopped up much of their opposition and all the silverware in the annual Greater Victoria inter-high track and field championships.

All the coaches promptly flipped the pages to a new chapter in the continuing story of high school athletics. They flipped because, a) Friday's colorful show at the new Centennial Stadium was hailed as one of the finest on record, and, b), because of Mt. Doug.

BIG LITTLE SCHOOL

As David did to Goliath, the "little school" stood up and smote the giants.

For 21 years, the meet's team championship was exchanged by Vicoria High and Oak Bay. Occasionally, the other schools made it close and sometimes produced individual champions.

Friday, Mt. Doug swept all the big ones.

Powered by an outstanding girls' team, Mt. Doug captured the Hocking and Forbes' team trophy.

Ann Langdale, a meteoric miss, and Bill Fediw put the fancy ribbon on Mt. Doug's package by capturing the meet's top individual awards.

OUTSTANDING DISPLAY

Miss Langdale won two individual events and anchored Mt. Doug's relay teams in another pair of firsts to win unanimous acclamation as the meet's outstanding female performer.

Fediw, a senior, was named the outstanding male performer with victories in the 100-yard and 220 sprints.

Doug Fryer, Penny May, record-tieing Greg Fraser, Darryl Hooker and Wayne Morrison were other individuals to spark the school's all-around performance.

They gave coach Stan Gill his "most rewarding moment in six years at Mt. Doug."

FUTURE BRIGHT

They also gave Gill and rival coaches something to think about for next year. Most of the good ones will be back again.

The speedy Fediw is a graduating exception. But Miss Langdale, already being acclaimed as one of the finest runners in Canada, will be back. So will Penny May and the stout-hearted Fryer.

Three of the four girls who gave Mt. Doug a double in the important relays also are coming back. In fact, Gill is looking forward to coaching one of the finest girls' teams ever assembled in Victoria because of an outstanding prospect ready to graduate from Gordon Head to Mt. Doug.

Mt. Doug's triumph, sincerely acclaimed by rival coaches, over-shadowed the record-breaking feats that invariably swing the spotlight from team play to individual achievements.

A total of 17 records were broken on the stadium's new asphalt track. Another mark was equalled and four other records came into being as a result of new events.

In winning the team title, girls provided 191½ of Mt. Doug's 449 points. Vic High was runner-up with 359 points while Oak Bay had 349½.

THE LAST SPRINT: Victoria's Bob Hissink, who is credited with faster times than Fediw, had the jump on his Mt. Doug rival in both sprint events . . . Fediw's great closing kicks managed to nip Hissink at the tap . . . Miss Langdale, only 15, is the only Canadian woman to clock a 56-second quarter this year—regardless of age . . .

Ann ran four races Friday despite blisters raised in qualifying trials earlier in the week, yet didn't seem pressed at any time . . . Heather Wood of Mount View, last year's aggregate champion, came back after disappointing times in the qualifying meet to capture the 100-yard dash over Vicki Hammond of Victoria . . . Fraser tied the mark established in 1963 by Bob McLaren, named Victoria's athlete-of-the-year last month . . . A newcomer from Edmonton, Mike Berude impressed with a pair of victories for Vic High . . .

COLLAPSING from exhaustion, Victoria's Glen Robinson falls on track after winning "B" 220-yard final.

STANDOUTS in boys' events were Mt. Doug teammates Bruce Fryer (left) and Bill Fediw. Both won two events and Fediw was named meet's outstanding male performer.

TRACK MEET RESULTS

IT'S MY VIEW . . .

By Ernie Fedoruk

If initial reaction of a few fans can be used as a yardstick, then the National Lacrosse Association has an excellent chance of establishing firm root in Portland.

The views were extracted from innocent bystanders, all picked at random after the second period of Wednesday's opener in Portland's Glass Palace. All the Americans seemed genuinely impressed with the product.

The score favored Victoria, 7-5, at that stage, and the Shamrocks went on to defeat the Adanacs 11-7. To most of the fans, the score was incidental. It goes without saying that the reaction would have been more enthusiastic if the "home team" had been in the lead.

One portly gent frankly admitted, "I like hockey, but I can see a lot of similarity in the two games. I'll have to learn the rules, just as I did in hockey, but I really like this 'no offside' bit in lacrosse. So far I've enjoyed what I've seen."

●

Another lover of hockey put his stamp of approval on "the lack of whistles" in lacrosse.

"As much as I enjoy hickey, I feel the odd game is spoiled by too many referees' whistles. I'm just guessing, but I'll bet there were less than 10 stoppages in the first two periods. It was go, go, go . . . and I like that.

"Give 'em five games," the Portland resident added, "and I say this (Portland) rink will be filled. I'm coming back."

The Wednesday crowd included a number of former Victoria-based hockey players now employed by Portland's Buckaroos.

Jim (Redeye) Hay, no stranger to rough play, felt the fans' reaction was very favorable. "I've forgotten how rough lacrosse can be," he said, "and I think it should go over here."

Jack Bionda, the former Inter-City Lacrosse League scoring king, handles the promotion in Portland. The paid attendance was announced as 2,779 but Bionda said "about 600" complimentary tickets were handed out.

●

More free tickets will be handed out for Portland's next home game. Since introduction is the most important thing for lacrosse in Oregon, the giveaway ticket scheme is an excellent promotion.

"I didn't have time to do it up right for this game," said Bionda. "Still, I'm delighted with the turnout."

For the opener, most fans probably overlooked the fact the game was 10 minutes late in starting. If the NLA wants to ensure further promotion of its product, Western Division commissioner Tom English, team officials and even the players must make greater effort to start games promptly.

The Shamrocks have played three games, including one at Memorial Arena. All three got under way past the appointed time. No other professional sport dares abuse the starting time, except on the rarest of occasions.

If the National Lacrosse Association wants to insist that the word "Professional" is part of its name it will find it fits easier if the league starts off on the right foot — and at the right time.

●

ON THE REBOUND: Considerable pressure is being put on Bionda to make a comeback as a player, but Jack believes a bad knee can't possible help Adanacs' cause. Bionda thinks he can be as helpful in the promotional offices and plans to redirect some of that pressure onto Tommy McVie . . . Also well liked in Portland, McVie could very well show up in the Adanac lineup withing a few weeks . . .

Victoria regulars Ted Liebich, Ed Kowalyk, Reg Foster and Tom Black all missed the Portland trip . . . The first three nursed cases of 'flu while Black couldn't get away from work . . . It put an extra load on the lesser lights and Victoria coach Dave Unwin is most impressed "with the kids" . . . He feels if Charlie Hardy, Ron Zilkie, Ken Alexander, Glen Vickers and Vern Black "keep coming along as they have in the first three games, we should wind up with more depth than any other club later in the season" . . . Hardy, incidentally, has scored three goals . . . Each one opened scoring in Victoria's three games. . . .

Auto Races Highlight Holiday's Sports Menu

There's variety and volume waiting for Victoria sports addicts on the long holiday weekend and weather reports suggest fans won't be needing rain gear while watching their favorites frolic.

Almost certain to attract the largest crowds and perhaps produce the most thrills is a busy program of car races at Western Speedway.

Other people who like speed, noise and danger with their viewing can take in motorcycle races at Albert Head and those who prefer skill with ball and bat will be able to watch continuing action in a nine-team men's softball tournament at Central Park.

Also on tap are regular league contests in baseball, softball and cricket, along with a swimming meet at the Crystal Garden tonight between Victoria Olympians and Port Angeles.

Highlighting the rubber-burning business at Western Speedway is the annual Strawberry Cup race Monday afternoon. Stock cars will take over the Millstream Road oval tonight and pilots of the stockers will return Monday night for a meet that will include events for super-stock machines.

The big one for Speedway fans is the Strawberry Cup program, which includes a 50-lap main event. One of the regular events on the Canadian-American Modified Racing Association schedule, the cup scramble has drawn entries from 24 visiting drivers and about six Island wheel-jockeys.

Roy Smith perhaps rates the best chance among local pilots of upsetting the CAMRA veterans, but fast-improving Tony Mortel, Fred Best, in a hot new car, and veteran Bob Simpson are certainly capable to finishing near the top.

Spokane Ace a Pre-Race Favorite

Opening their new season tonight at Langley and racing at Nanaimo Sunday, some of the touring CAMRA drivers might have iron mangled to an extent that will keep them out of action here Monday. However, if all goes well, Spokane ace Jim Roberts, returning to the modified circuit with a new, $15,000 machine, could start as the favorite.

In any case, Roberts won't find an easy trail to the winner's circle in the field of talented throttle-stompers that includes people like Vancouver, Wash., veteran Bob Gregg, Edmonton's Billy Strong and Spokane slicker Bud Gorder, who is also piloting a powerful new car.

Teams in the men's open softball tournament at Central Park include clubs from Seattle, Tacoma and Auburn, two from Nanaimo and four from the Victoria senior Men's League. Seattle Goldentides, with fabulous Bob Fesler available for pitching duty, appears the team to beat.

Competition started Friday night and was continuing today with five games. Six games are slated Sunday and another four are scheduled Monday, with the possibility an extra game at 6 p.m. will be required to decide a winner.

Motorcyclists will twist throttles Monday afternoon at the Albert Head military camp, with several visiting riders bidding for honors against riders from the host club in the Victoria Motorcycle Club's annual Victoria Day scrambles.

Times and place for weekend sports events are listed in the Sports Menu on this page.

Boog Ruins Tiant's Bid But Howard Connects

By Associated Press

Luis Tiant blew his date with the record book and Frank Howard had his record-breaker spoiled, but if it's aggravation you're after how about what Tom McCraw did to Jim Nash?

Tiant's string of four consecutive shutouts and 41 scoreless innings was shattered by Boog Powell's three-run homer in the sixth inning Friday night and Baltimore Orioles beat Cleveland Indians 6-2.

Howard set a major league record with his eighth homer in the last five games and 15th of the season giving Washington a one-run lead in the ninth inning. But Detroit Tigers beat the Senators 7-3 when Jim Northrup hit a grand slam home run in the bottom half of the inning.

OAKLAND NIPPED

Nash pitched hitless ball for 6 2-3 innings before McCraw tripled, ending the no-hit bid. Then McCraw tripled again opening the Chicago 10th and Duane Josephson's two-out pinch single brought him home with the only run of the game as the White Sox nipped Oakland Athletics 1-0.

In other American League games, Boston Red Sox rallied for the fourth straight game and topped New York Yankees 6-4 and California's game at Minnesota was postponed by rain after 3½ innings of hitless pitching by the Twins' Jim Perry and the Angels' Rickey Clark.

Tiant was gunning for the major league record of five straight shutouts set in 1904 by Doc White of the White Sox. And it seemed he might get it when he pitched his way out of a bases-loaded, one-out jam in the fifth inning, protecting a 1-0 lead.

BUTTER-FINGERS!

After he struck out Dave Johnson opening the sixth, Curt Blefary walked. Frank Robinson grounded to Larry Brown, but Chico Salmon dropped Brown's throw at second and both runners were safe. A wild pitch advanced them to second and third and then Powell connected.

Curt Motton's pinch three-run homer wrapped it up for the Orioles in the eighth. It was the second straight pinch three-run homer for the rookie outfielder.

The record of seven homers in five consecutive games was shared by Babe Ruth, who did it in 1921, Jim Bottomley in 1929 and Vic Wertz in 1950.

BOUNCE RIGHT BACK

The Tigers bounced right back, tying the score on pinch hitter Jim Price's single and then winning the game on the fourth grand slam of Northrup's career.

The Red Sox won their sixth straight game—the fourth with a comeback rally—and dropped the Yankees into the American League cellar.

Boston tied the game at 4-4 with a pair of runs in the seventh against Bill Monbouquette and then won it in the eighth on run-scoring singles by George Scott and Rico Petrocelli.

Pitchers dominated National League arguments.

Bill Singer of Los Angeles dished up a fine two-hitter as the Dodgers shaved Houston Astros 6-0; Ray Sadecki of San Francisco permitted but three blows as the Giants topped Chicago Cubs 2-0, and Philadelphia's Woody Fryman did double duty as the Phils shaded St. Louis Cardinals 1-0.

Fryman took matters in his own hands to break up a scoreless duel by leading off with a 10th-inning single. A sacrifice and Bill White's single produced the winning run.

In other games, Cincinnati edged Pittsburgh Pirates 3-2 and Atlanta Braves went 16 innings before mastering New York Mets 3-1.

BATES CLIPPED

Lions Charged By Hot Battery

Red Lions went to their battery for power, and emerged as the team that enjoyed the biggest charge as the Senior Men's Softball League's invitational holiday tournament got under way at Central Park on Friday.

Lions slipped Bate's Construction 4-2 and were to face Seattle Whitestones (at 4 p.m.) in their second-round game today in the double-knockout torunament.

Tournament continues at 6:30 tonight and all day Sunday with finals at 4 p.m. and, if necessary, 6 p.m. on Monday.

Pitcher Mike Rye and catcher Ralph Branting provided the Red Lion charge Friday. Rye was touched for eight hits but proved tough in the clutch to chalk up the victory.

Battery-mate Branting supplied the winning edge by clearing the bases with a fifth-inning triple. Ian Davey and Doug Wilson had singled to set the stage for the catcher's two-run production.

Harvey Stevenson collected two of the Lions' six hits off Brian Pearce.

Expansion Needs Extra Time for Study

CINCINNATI (AP) — National League President Warren Giles made it official Friday that a league meeting, scheduled to have been held in St. Louis May 22, has been postponed and will be held in Chicago May 27.

The league's club owners had been scheduled to review expansion plans.

"I wanted our club owners to have additional time to study data relating to expansion which was mailed from this office on May 15," explained Giles.

SAYS COLEY

League Ruling Ties Canucks

By the Canadian Press

It looks as if fans in Vancouver will see National League action only on television next season.

Speaking at a press conference in Vancouver Friday, the president of Labatt Breweries of Canada Ltd. indicated that the company has all but abandoned plans to move Oakland Seals to the British Columbia city.

N. E. (Peter) Hardy said the company had failed to reach an agreement with the minor-league Vancouver Canucks.

Hardy said the agreement of the Canucks, who hold professional hockey rights to Vancouver, was essential before NHL governors could consider an application to transfer the Oakland Franchise to Vancouver.

Coley Hall, an adviser to the Canucks, said in a separate press conference Friday that the Western Hockey League team did not reach an agreement with Labatt because the team could not get three weeks from the WHL to consider the company's three proposals.

SEEK NHL CHARTER

However, Hall said the Canucks would make a separate application June 10 to the NHL for a franchise—apparently an expansion one.

Oakland Seals announced Thursday in New York that they would make formal application June 10 at the NHL's annual meeting to transfer their franchise to Vancouver. Hardy said Friday that Labatt would not be represented at the meeting.

"It seems reasonable to expect that Oakland will play in Oakland next season," said NHL president Clarence Campbell in New York Friday as NHL owners wound up a two-day meeting.

Campbell said he based this prediction on "all developments to the present time—the fact Vancouver has applied on its own behalf and the fact Oakland has said it will play in Oakland if the transfer is not approved."

Hall said that indications are the Canucks have a "real chance" to be in the NHL by 1969-70.

Campbell had said Thursday that he "wouldn't exclude the possibility of expansion by two teams within the next two years."

ARE PRIME SITES

When and if further expansion becomes a reality, NHL governors have said that Vancouver will be a "prime location." Another highly-regarded site is Baltimore which, like Vancouver, failed to get a franchise when the NHL doubled in size last year.

Hall said that the Canucks' hands were tied in considering the Labatt's proposal.

"At the WHL meeting last Monday in Seattle, the league (WHL) refused to allow us three weeks delay in declaring ourselves for next season."

He said the Canucks could have lost their WHL franchise and territorial rights if they had not declared their plans for the 1968-69 season.

OFFER STILL OPEN

However, the Labatt offer will remain open until March 17, 1969, when the company's option to purchase the Oakland franchise expires.

The Labatt proposals were:

—Labatt's controlling 51 per cent would be represented by a Canadian company. Labatt would ask the Canucks to contribute their franchise to this company at a value of $1,250,000 in exchange for 47 per cent of the controlling company.

After a minimum of five years, Canuck owners could purchase additional equity and thereby assume control of the franchise. Labatt would reduce its equity to a maximum of 10 per cent.

—Labatt would make a cash offer of $1,250,000 for the total assets of the Vancouver Canucks. This would entail an immediate payment of $250,000 and the remaining $1,000,000 to be paid over five years.

Any individual members of the Canuck directorate could participate in the Canadian controlling company up to a total of $1,250,000 or 47 per cent. Canuck owners would have the option of purchasing additional equity, thereby assuming control of the franchise. Labatt would reduce its equity to a maximum of 10 per cent.

—Labatt would step out of the major position in the franchise bid by offering Vancouver directors the Labatt position in the existing agreement with Oakland. Labatt would assume a minority position equal only to a loan made to Oakland plus all other costs incurred. It totals about $830,000. This offer was conditional on the approval of Oakland owners.

West Bromwich Takes Cup On Astle's Overtime Shot

LONDON (CP)—A goal by Jeff Astle gave West Bromwich Albion a 1-0 victory over Everton after 30 minutes of extra time in the English Football Association Cup soccer final today.

The goal came after two minutes of extra time. Astle had a shot blocked, then had another try and drove the ball into the top of the net from 12 yards.

A sellout crowd of 100,000 saw the gruelling struggle on the heavy, rain-soaked turf of London's Wembley Stadium.

West Bromley stood up to a period of tremendous pressure by Everton during the second half of regulation time. Fine goalkeeping by John Osborne saved Albion.

In extra time, Albion hit back as Everton tired.

Astle's goal was his ninth in the knockout tournament this season. He has scored in every round—an achievement equalled by only four players in the Cup's 96 years history.

It was West Bromwich's fifth triumph in the Cup. The club is to tour East Africa later this month.

Speedway Records Smashed

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP)—Graham Hill of London, former world road racing champion, smashed Indianapolis Motor Speedway qualifying records by fantastic margins today.

He put his blazing red Lotus turbine into the lineup for the 500-mile race May 30 with an average speed of 170.208 miles per hour for the 10 miles.

He also flattened the old one lap record on each of his four circuits in the wedge-shaped, almost silent car.

His best lap was at 171.887 mph.

The old marks were 169.982 for four laps and 169.779 for one, both set last year by Mario Andretti of Nazareth, Pa., in a Hawk Ford.

Home Runs 'Bottled' Variety

Victoria Bottle Exchange scored a 5-3 win over B.C. Telephone on the strength of two-run homers by Jim Taggart and Bob Harris in Stuffy McGinnis Senor Men's Softball League play Friday at Heywood Avenue Park.

Winning pitcher Dusty Miller allowed only four hits, struck out three and walked three as he pitched the distance. Tom Walker collected two of the four hits off Miller.

Leading Hitter Gets the Spike

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Slugging Willie McCovey, San Francisco's first baseman, was taken to St. Luke's Hospital Friday night with a deep gash in his right ankle.

McCovey, who leads the National League with nine home runs, hit a run-scoring double in the first inning of the Giants' game against Chicago Cubs but was trapped between second and third and was spiked by Cubs' third baseman Ron Santo when he dove back to second.

Only One Player Could Break Par

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — Gary Player of South Africa stripped two strokes from a harsh par 70 Friday and took a one-shot lead into today's third round of the Colonial National Invitation golf tournament.

"I really am surprised to be in the lead," Player said after his 68 on a wet fairway gave him a 36-hole total of 138 and an edge over Billy Casper.

"One of my weaknesses is an inability to play flying shots when the fairways are wet and the ball jumps."

Casper, the first-round co-leader with Marty Fleckman, stumbled to three over par through 13 holes, then picked up a couple of birdies for a 71.

PAR ELUSIVE

Player was the only golfer to beat par and only three others—Johnny Pott, George Knudson of Toronto and Bob Goalby—could equal it.

One shot behind Casper was Ken Still, who also had a 71 Friday. Pott was alone at 141, a stroke ahead of a quarter that included Tommy Bolt, Lee Trevino, Earl Stewart, Jr. and Dave Stockton, the defending champion.

Gene Littler, Tommy Aaron and Lionel Herbert were in at 143, one stroke ahead of Harold Henning, Fleckman, Bob Charles, Julius Boros and Gardner Dickinson Jr.

Knudson was well down the list with 70-75—145.

The leaders:

Test Order To Cover Top Three

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — The Kentucky Racing Commission issued an order Friday requiring the first three finishers in all stakes races to be tested afterwards.

The commission also stipulated that the customary tests be given a fourth horse, chosen by lot.

State Racing Commission steward Lewis Finley said the order becomes effective immediately and will apply to the running of the $15,000-added Bashford Manor Stakes at Churchill Downs today.

At present, only the winner and one other horse are examined.

The commission did not explain its announcement, but it apparently stemmed from the controversy over the disqualification of Dancer's Image as the winner of the Kentucky Derby.

Bigelow Heads Golf Operation

Canadian seniors' titleholder Dr. George Bigelow, as expected, captured low gross honors in the annual medical arts golf tournament.

Bigelow carded a 76 on the par-70 Royal Colwood course Thursday.

Winners of the major low net prizes were Dr. Ron Irish (physicians), Dr. Roger Ross (dentists), Earl Bamford (druggists) and R. Walden (travellers).

Argos Sign Three

TORONTO (CP)—Toronto Argonauts boosted their Eastern Conference Football roster to 29 by signing three more players. They are Charlie Bray, a guard who played for Orlando in the Continental League; end Paul Markle of Waterloo Lutheran University, and flanker Al Scanlon from the University of Ottawa.

Hot Tour Set for Vancouver

VANCOUVER (CP) — A Canadian field hockey team under playing coach John McBryde of Vancouver leaves here by air Sunday on the start of a five-country tour of the Caribbean.

All 14 players on the team reside in the Vancouver area.

The team will play matches in Mexico City; Kingston, Jamaica; Port of Spain, Trinidad; Tobago; Georgetown, Guyana; and Willemstadt, Curacao.

Also on the Vancouver field hockey scene over the weekend, is the B.C. Women's Provincial tournament which started today at the University of British Columbia.

Two teams from the Vancouver Island area are competing. Helen Bunyan, Sue Joggen, Ruth Trelawny, Jill Boyd, Sue Browne, Suzanne Bradford, Sarah Woodwark, Gill Hawkins, Anne Standbridge, Kelly Shepard, and Laura Cameron make up the first XI. While on the second squad are — Rosemary Penn, Helen Hayes, Claudia Ferber, Margaret Ruffles, Paltie McAfee, Gretta Ruth, Carrie Rogers, Carole Knight, Virginia Rogers, Caroline Penn and Terry Neil.

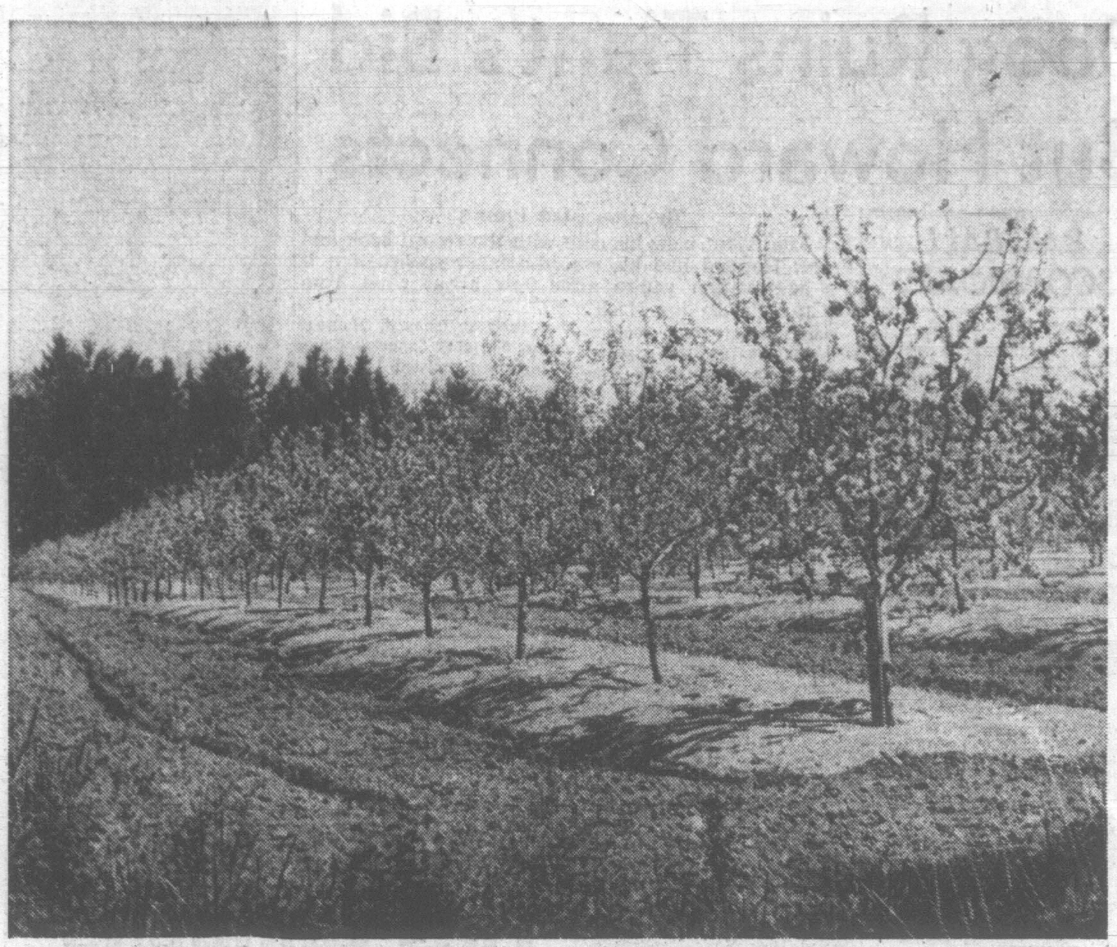
A quiet stream at work—feeding the farm fields.



Not so quiet are bee-buzzing orchards.

The By-Ways of a Peninsula Called Saanich ....

... as seen by nature lover Freeman King

Back and forth we drive between Victoria and Swartz Bay, murmuring sentiments of appreciation—but it's like cutting the heads off flowers and putting the stems in a vase.

They're pretty enough . . . but we don't see the best parts.

That's the way it is with most people. They have an acquaintance with the Saanich Peninsula. But just get them off the beaten track and it's a torrid love affair.

There's the come-hither look of a shady farmhouse, the whisper of a tempttress in each quiet stream, quiet ponds that turn the sky upside down, valleys where perky deer hide and pheasants strut.

There are quiet roads where the western meadow lark can still be heard because traffic is so scant; where bells tinkle on cows. And sheep with a know-it-all look watch horses rolling in the grass.

There are marshes where migrating ducks chat quietly with domestic waterfowl and myriad insects whine and drone and flutter, sometimes unwarily, to the immense satisfaction of the trout that fishermen have long since forgotten—or secretly preserved.

Native trees and shrubs have made room for Garry oaks and maples introduced from far off places; white elms from Ontario are there, a gift to us from some long-dead pioneer, like the Lombardy poplars or the hawthornes and Maytrees brought around the Horn from England.

There are mouth-watering rows of loganberries and strawberries and grapes set out to capture the sun while their grower is in some other field, tilling the black soil to add another perfume today, another food crop tomorrow.

The wanderer watches the shadow of a cloud moving swift across the field, a vision lost among the rooftops in a city.

When does the city dweller pause to watch an apple tree move from blossom to fruit or a holly berry turn from green to red, or a hive of bees collecting his morning honey while tending the generation of an orchard?

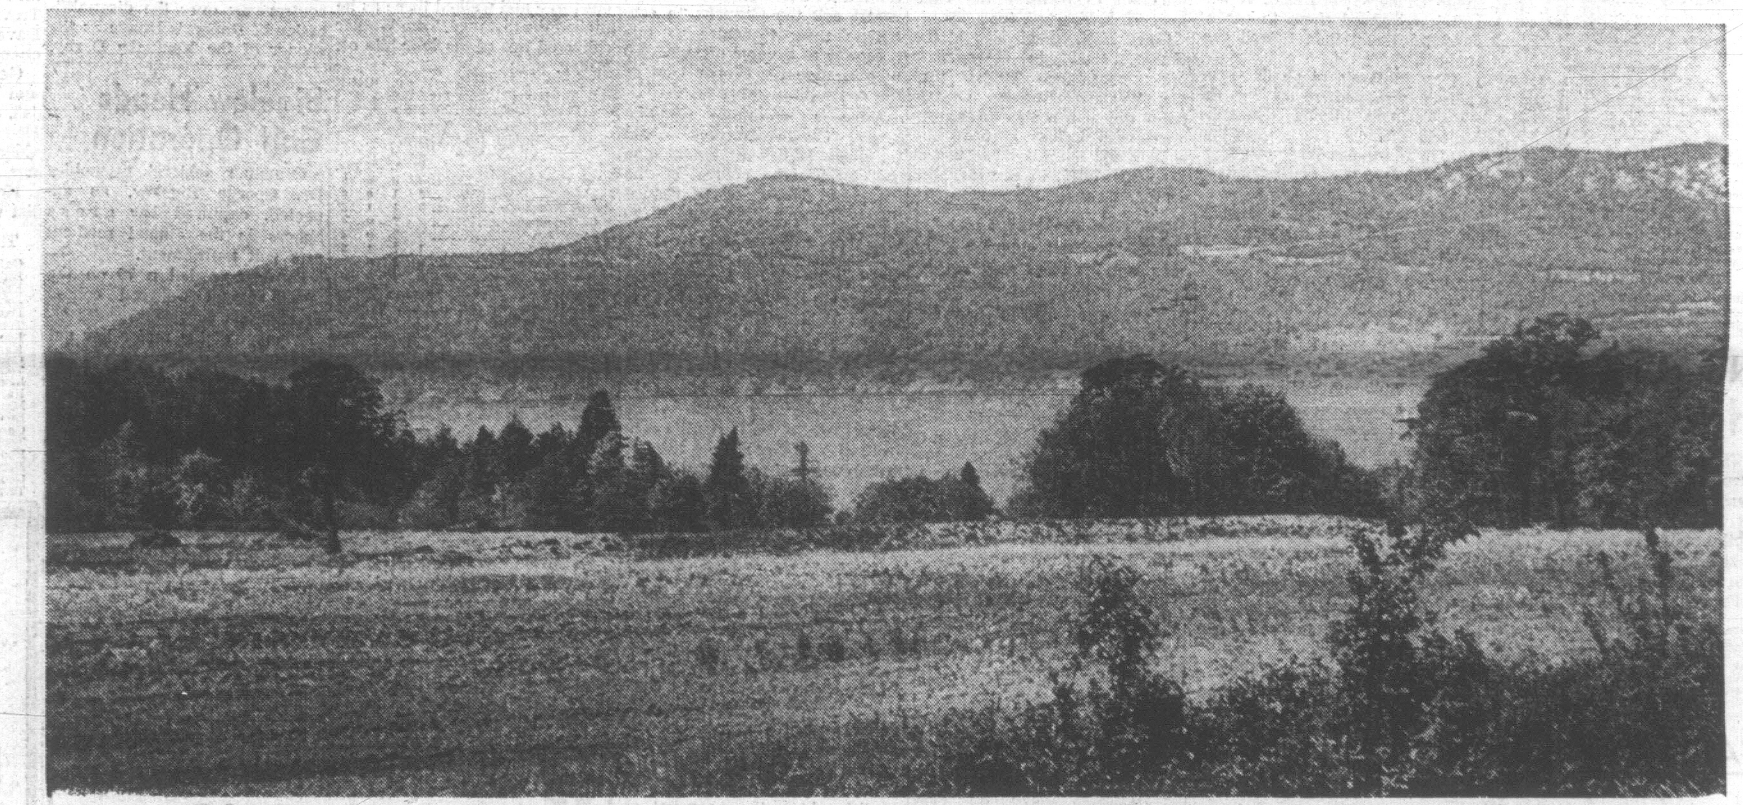
Where else but on Saanich Peninsula can so many weathered churches, some with worn gravestones marking the past, be enjoyed by the solitary stroller?

Where else can you glimpse the sea, in one direction tossing its white manes, in another, stretching, docile as a tabby to the long mud flats where herons stalk on their toothpick legs.

Was there ever a place with more restful parks in such abundance? The swans of Beaver and Elk Lakes are icing on the cake, like the wildflowers of Bear Hill, the playgrounds of Centennial, the green chinned giants of John Dean.

Climb down the rugged walls to the rocky beaches of Saanich Peninsula to watch the fishermen putt by, dreamlike, almost hoping no hefty spring accepts their challenge. Count the varieties of shell fish, seaweeds glistening on the tideline where tiny wavelets gossip about happenings on distant shores.

Can any other spot in God's green world offer so much and yet be so accessible to the city dweller? And can any other beauty so often be ignored?



Hills of the Malahat look back at peaceful peninsula fields.

....Wend Their Way to a 100-Year Anniversary

Saanichton, the heart of the Saanich Peninsula, is the site of another favorite Peninsula attraction—the Saanichton Fair. Few Victorians realize it was actually founded 100 years ago. The story is here told by Brock Clayards, a 17-year-old Grade XI student at Claremont Senior Secondary School. It appears as he wrote it in a school assignment which impressed his teachers and led to its submission for publication here.

Woollies spring-clean the grassy slopes of a tree-sheltered pasture

By Brock Clayards

On the morning of the first Saturday of October, 1868, a sturdy Indian war canoe was moving to the rhythm of four paddles manned by men of the Tsartlip reservation. The 10 passengers, George Thomas, J. T. McIlmoyle, P. Imery, T. Brown, Henry Simpson, Duncan Lidgate, Thomas Michell, George Butler, William Turgoose and William Thomson were not on a war party, nor were they fishing. They were going to a fair.

The year before this, the residents of Maple Bay had held a very successful fair. The delegation from Saanich were on their way to see what the people of Maple Bay had accomplished.

On their arrival, they were royally welcomed and wined and dined by the community. After observing the goings on, they returned.

•

En route, in a somewhat more mellow mood, they came upon the idea to hold their own fair. That day in the war canoe, the North and South Saanich Agricultural Society was formed. Mr. Butler was named secretary, and Mrs. Brown was the first president. In addition, each of the 10 men contributed five dollars as prize money, quite a sum for those days.

In two weeks the first fair was ready. It was to be held in Mr. Brown's farm, just beyond the present Experimental Farm, near what is now McTavish Road.

The early fairs were a joyful occasion for all the family. Mother and daughter worked for weeks in advance in their domestic and kitchen preparations. Father and son were out in the fields harvesting their best grain and selecting their prize vegetables.

On fair day, usually a Saturday or Sunday after the harvest, all the families from around the peninsula would gather on the fairgrounds and the fun would begin.

There would be a table set aside for the exhibition of grains and vegetables. Another bench would feature women's work such as tubs of butter, pies, bread and embroidery and needlework. Always, in the middle of the barn or hall, there stood a large keg of beer for judging and sampling. In addition, each wagon carried an ample supply of cider and beer cooled under a wet canvas cover.

As the years passed, the fair changed location. After two years in Mr. Brown's barn, it moves to a spot near Bannockburn, the Thomson residence. After a short stay of two years, in 1872 it was shifted to its present location in Saanichton, on the East Road.

The character of the fair changed as well. In 1892, horse racing was introduced. By 1896, as much as $25 prize money was being offered for each race. Racing ceased in 1913 and about 1939 the first saddle classes were introduced. From this developed the Saanichton horse shows of today, an ever popular event at the fair.

In the early fifties, the carnival atmosphere began to appear. Under the sponsorship of the Kinsmen, rides and refreshments were offered. The proceeds went to the next year's fair and also to charity. These arrangements are still ample chance for everyone to have fun.

The fair changed from a small Class C exhibition to a middle sized Class B exhibition through an increase in prize moneys after the coming of community service groups such as the Rotary and Kinsmen clubs. The first fair offered $50 in prize money; today's fair offers more than $10,000.

•

This year's fair, 'as the promoter would say, "Promises to be better than ever." The theme will be progress over the past hundred years. A blacksmith's shop, the making of butter and old farm machinery in actual operation are just a few of the attractions.

Come next Labor Day week-end. Bring your family. Step into the past to contrast our modern farming methods and agriculture, and also enjoy the present for a few hours.

ST. MARY'S MUST MEET BUDGET OBLIGATIONS

Money Will Keep Doors Open

By DON DINGWALL

DUNCAN—The little church of St. Mary's, Somenos, will remain open indefinitely.

This was the outcome of a special congregational meeting Sunday.

Members were called together to discuss and vote on the question of whether or not to close the doors and merge with the parent church of the parish in downtown Duncan—St. John's.

About 30 people attended the meeting, 11 voted to remain open and six against and the rest abstained.

Rector of the combined parish, Rev. Allan Kerr, says the situation will be reviewed at a later date when it is known how St. Mary's are measuring up to meeting an annual budget obligation of $2,400.

Meanwhile, St. John's congregation is undertaking to spend an extra $200 a year.

Church committee member Brian Simmons is arranging the adoption of an orphan child by the congregation. The adoption will be carried out through Anglican church headquarters at Toronto.

Ex Borneo residents Mr. and Mrs. John Mei last year organized and catered to a Chinese dinner to raise money for St. John's Church.

This year they are again behind a Chinese dinner but the work will be shared by the congregation and members of the Duncan Chinese community—and the profit shared.

PRIDE THEMSELVES

Lutherans pride themselves on being "the singing church," but Rev. Baldwin Camin of Trinity Lutheran Church, Duncan, said this week: "There's a feeling we're not singing as much as before."

In order to illustrate how much a service of worship can be beautified by the musical talents of the congregation, a special choir concert has been arranged for St. Paul's Lutheran Church, Nanaimo, Sunday, May 26, at 3 p.m.

Taking part will be the choirs of Trinity Lutheran Church, Duncan, Redeemer Lutheran Church, Langford, and St. Paul's.

REPRESENTING Victoria at the 17th general assembly of the Church of the Nazarene at Kansas City, June 13-21, will be Rev. William Bahan. He will be accompanied by Rev. Roy J. Yeider, Vancouver; C. W. Bartram, West Vancouver, and E. Grant Reist, Burnaby.

Why Are Hippies Revolting?

The hippie philosophy is here to stay.

"It's really a revolt against present-day values," says Rev. Arthur D. Wilmot, new minister of Victoria's Unitarian Church.

The hippies believe it is better to make love than war, and they are revolting because modern society offers no real security from war.

"A similar revolt occurred in Europe in the 16th century when young men adopted a kind of evangelist, monastic approach to life that was at odds with conventional society."

Born at Port Angeles, Wash., 30-year-old Mr. Wilmot came to Victoria recently from Chilco, California, where he was minister of the Unitarian Church for five years.

"I don't believe the hippie dress will last," he said, "in fact it is already changing. But the hippies have at least shown us that many of our moral and social values are wrong, and I believe their influence will continue to be felt.

●

"It is not an ephemeral movement."

Mr. Wilmot will speak on The Hippies and the New Generation in Victoria Unitarian Church, 106 Superior Street, Sunday at 9:30 a.m. and 11 a.m.

"The hippies have made their influence felt upon all strata of society," he says, "but particularly upon the young.

"Is this good, bad or just a stage? I shall try to answer that question."

Picturesque Holy Trinity Church at Patricia Bay is noted for its old English lychgate.

HE ROWED FOR DAYS TO HELP BUILD CHURCH

By NORMAN CRIBBENS
Church Editor

On a sunny day in early June, 1885, men, women and children from the neighboring farms gathered in a small frame building on the Saanich Peninsula.

They were there for the consecration of Holy Trinity Anglican Church, overlooking Patricia Bay, by Bishop George Hills of British Columbia.

Other priests attending were Rev. G. W. Taylor, Rev. W. W. Malachi, Rev. W. H. Gregory and Rev. A. Beanlands.

After the service they had a picnic. Tablecloths were laid on the grass, kettles boiled over campfires and hampers of goodly things were unpacked.

In that sparsely-settled country, neighbors could rarely meet together and an occasion such as this was a real holy-day.

Completion of the church was the culmination of considerable effort and ingenuity.

The ground had been given by a Mr. Mills; the district had been canvassed for subscriptions; some gifts were received from England and Bishop Hills personally contributed $200.

The site was cleared by volunteer labor and the lumber was brought from Genoa Bay by an English sailor, Charles Wales, who spent several days rowing it across the inlet.

Originally, Holy Trinity belonged to the South Saanich parish. The old St. Stephen's church had been standing 28 years and its vicar, Rev. W. H. Gregory, served both churches.

Sometimes this meant difficulties. For seven weeks at the beginning of 1893, no services were held at Holy Trinity because the roads were deep in snow.

In 1912 Holy Trinity was separated from St. Stephen's and linked with the Anglican church of St. Andrew at nearby Sidney.

Holy Trinity celebrated its jubilee in 1935.

Over the years the old church has received many gifts and one of them is the historic lychgate which attracts so many tourists. This was presented in 1955 by Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Taylor in memory of their son who was killed in the Second World War.

Today Holy Trinity is still very active and will celebrate its 83rd anniversary early in June.

INSIDE WALLS

Canon F. Vaughan-Birch, rector since 1959, says while the church is attractive on the outside, the inside walls are wearing and some renovation will soon be necessary.

"We are proud of our church and we are anxious to preserve the dignity and appearance of its fabric."

Holy Trinity has another claim to fame—it houses the Canadian White Ensign, which was laid up there on Feb. 28, 1965.

B.C. Ready 'To Take Risks'

SHAWNIGAN LAKE — A Toronto man said here that Vancouver Island has become an experimental ground for inter-church relations.

"Your Good Friday march, in which most Victoria churches participated, was noted with great interest in eastern Canada," said Roy Bonisteel, national radio coordinator for the Anglican, Roman Catholic and United churches in Canada.

The position is the first of its kind and Mr. Bonisteel, an experienced radio and TV broadcaster, is employed by all three churches.

"Generally speaking, British Columbia is more ready to take risks — to experiment than the eastern Canadian provinces. It has experimented with a new political party and it has experimented in other directions.

"B.C. has always taken the lead in new phases of church work. And Vancouver Island seems to be the chief experimental ground as regards inter-church relations."

Mr. Bonisteel was addressing a four-day conference of newspaper, TV and radio men at the Shawnigan Beach Hotel.

Bishop Remi De Roo, head of the Roman Catholic Church on Vancouver Island, pointed out that the Good Friday march from Centennial Square to Christ Church Anglican Cathedral was largely "a civic affair."

"Most people in Victoria were moved by this public demonstration of faith," he said. "The fact the cathedral was crowded with more than 2,000 people showed there is a great hunger for faith in many hearts."

COMMON CONCERN

Rev. Marvin Fowler, representing the United Church, said the conference on communications has shown that "we of church, press, radio and television are people with a common concern. In other words we are trying in our own way to build a better world."

Rev. David Metzger of the Lutheran church said remarkable progress has been made in inter-church relations over the past five years.

"Today you never hear a clergyman complaining that some of his flock may have left his church for a church of another denomination.

"There is a general feeling that all Christian churches should be one in purpose, even if they follow a different form of worship."

Reminded that some of the evangelical churches won't have anything to do with ecumenism, Mr. Metzger said:

"We still hope they will join us and the door is open to them. In Christ we should all be one."

Rev. Walter Donald represented the Anglican church at the communications conference and the B.C. Telephone Company was represented by T. F. Heenan, vice-president.

Norman Cribbens, church editor of the Victoria Daily Times, and Don Gain of the Daily Colonist, spoke for the press.

Woman Takes Over

NORTH BAY, Ont. (CP) — Rev. Kathleen Christopher says she would like to swing a little more church influence around to youth.

"The young need the wisdom of older persons and the elders need the sparkle and effervescence of youth," the newly-elected president of the United Church of Canada's Toronto Conference said in an interview Friday.

Miss Christopher, the first women president elected in any of the church's 11 Canadian conferences, assumed her new office when she was elected on the first ballot at the 44th annual conference to succeed Rev. G. Everitt Ashton.

Fourth Dinner

A rice and tea dinner—the fourth of its kind—will be held in Victoria Unitarian Church, 106 Superior Street, Saturday, May 25 at 6 p.m.

The dinner is being organized by the Canadian Aid to Vietnam Committee and Rev. Arthur Wilmot of the Unitarian Church will be in the chair.

A program of folk songs will be presented.

How Tall Was Christ? Scholars Plan Debate

ROME (Reuters)—Two Italian scholars will debate whether Christ was tall with a beautiful face or short and ordinary-looking.

Vatican archivist Msgr. Giulio Ricci, who holds that Christ was five feet, three inches tall, this week accepted a challenge to a public debate by Lorenzo Ferri, a professor of sculpture who says Christ was six feet two.

Both men have based their studies on a large linen cloth in Turin Cathedral on which the outline of a body is imprinted and which is believed to be the Holy Shroud in which Christ was wrapped for his burial.

Anarchist New Wave In Britain

By CY FOX

LONDON (CP) — Anarchism, which indicts government as a plague of humanity, is enjoying new popularity in Britain, its supporters say.

It always has been a decidedly minority movement but such current trends as growth of a tradition-hating "underground" in the art world, apparent disenchantment in some quarters with politicians generally and fear of global war all have combined to boost anarchism's allure in this country.

Protests against the H-bomb and denunciations of the Vietnam conflict often have an anarchist ring although those responsible may not belong to any particular anarchist group.

One anarchist commentator contends there is a "feeling that all parties are the same and that all politicians are liars."

Some of the highly diverse crop of present-day protesters may find anarchism, as a doctrine, too grey and affiliation with it or any other organized creed "a drag".

Yet there seems to be much appeal in anarchist ideas of direct, as opposed to parliamentary or other conventional forms of, action.

USE SIT-INS

In the late 19th century, direct action for anarchists sometimes meant violence and assassination.

Today anarchists interpret the term to mean non-violent gestures—sit-ins, for instance—aimed at preventing instead of perpetuating use of death-dealing weapons.

Anti-war activist Nicolas Walter said in a BBC broadcast that lately "anarchists have been working more and more with other groups" instead of sticking to themselves.

They are joining in campaigns for better housing, civil liberties, anti-hunger programs and nuclear disarmament.

"Altogether there are probably more anarchists in Britain today than ever before," said Walter.

Across the North Sea in The Netherlands, recent years have brought a vigorous revival of anarchism, centred on a youthful group called the Provos.

British anarchists cannot claim anything close to the headline-catching prowess of the Provos.

DROP STRIKE AS GOAL

But meetings and pronouncements abound within a loosely-slung organization called the Anarchist Federation of Britain and publications flow from a firm named Freedom Press.

Still active in a Freedom Press bookstore is 92-year-old Lilian Wolfe, only survivor of a group which signed what was called the International Anarchist Manifesto against the First World War.

In the old days, many anarchists looked forward, with apocalyptic fervor, to an eventual general strike paralyzing all society or to some form of proletarian insurrection.

Few do so today. Instead they concentrate on multitudinous meetings, demonstrations or, simply, a way of life lacking in formal labels but geared to the principles of anarchist-inspired individualism.

Canadian George Woodcock, a professor of English at the University of British Columbia, once edited a pro-anarchist British periodical called Now.

Leukemia Patient's Father Pleads

OAKVILLE, Ont. (CP) — The father of two children who were snatched from their grandmothers on an Oakville street Thursday has appealed to provincial and federal politicians for help in recovering them. One of the children is dying from leukemia.

Ron Martin, 37, an American citizen teaching English at Sheridan College, Brampton, Onta., said he is sure the children were seized by private detectives hired by their mother and have been taken back to the United States.

Martin said he appealed Friday to James Snow, member of the Ontario legislature for Halton East, to take the case to the legislature, and to get a public ruling from Attorney-General Arthur Wishart on the legality of the seizure.

He also asked Dr. Harry Harley, Liberal member for Halton in the last Parliament, to put the matter before External Affairs Minister Sharp for a ruling on whether the children could legally be taken to the U.S. without going through immigration department channels.

The children, Valerie, 8, and John, 5, were thrown screaming into a car bearing U.S. licence plates by three men who knocked their 60-year-old grandmother, Mrs. Felicia Martin, to the ground.

Martin said he discovered last March that Valerie suffers from leukemia and has only six months or a year to live. She was released from hospital two weeks ago.

Here mother, Mrs. Vivian Horsley, 31, of San Francisco, is aware of her daughter's illness, and has been sent the medicine Valerie must take every four hours, he said.

ANGLICAN METROPOLITAN OF B.C.

Mainlander Chosen New Church Leader

The man who took a strong stand against psychedelic church services has been named Anglican Metropolitan of British Columbia.

Bishop Godfrey Gower, 67, of New Westminster was unanimously chosen at a special meeting of the six bishops of British Columbia which was held in Vancouver Friday.

•

His title will be Archbishop of New Westminster and Metropolitan of British Columbia. He has been bishop of New Westminster since 1951.

Bishop Gower will succeed Archbishop Harold Sexton, 79, who has resigned the post after 16 years as Metropolitan, but will continue to the end of this year as Bishop of the diocese of British Columbia. (Historically Vancouver Island.)

Last year Bishop Gower objected when Rev. James McKibbon held an experimental psychedelic church service in New Westminster.

It featured peotry readings, modern music and a Go-Go girl and was carried in part on a CBC television program.

He ruled that local clergy must get his permission for any public, press, radio or TV statements and said all experimental services must first be approved by him.

"It is the church's desire and the purpose of the directive to ensure that all experiments are ordered and have a firm objective," Bishop Gower said.

•

Mr. McKibbon subsequently resigned.

Bishop Gower will be installed as metropolitan of the province by Archbishop Sexton in Christ Church Cathedral, Vancouver, on June 6 at 8 p.m.

"I believe Bishop Gower is well qualified for the position," said Archbishop Sexton on his return to Victoria from Vancouver.

"A metropolitan needs the judgment which is largely born of experience. Bishop Gower is well qualified in this respect as indeed in other respects.

"I am very glad to hand over the responsibilities of the office to him and he is assured of my prayerful good wishes for his future success and happiness."

Although he is no longer metropolitan, Archbishop Sexton will represent British Columbia at the Lambeth Conference — a world-wide gathering of Anglican clergy and laymen — to be held in London, England, July 25 to Aug. 25.

•

Bishop Rem. De Roo, head of the Roman Catholic Church on Vancouver Island, is the only Roman Catholic Bishop in North American to be invited to the conference.

"I am greatly looking forward to it," he said.

Unilateral Systems

Municipal takeover of four independent water districts is the only way to finance an adequate water distribution system for the north end of the peninsula.

This was the view of some municipal officials following a meeting of the four water boards Thursday to discuss plans for providing the peninsula with an adequate supply of water.

The peninsula faces a serious shortage of water in the next few years as it depends on supplies from Elk Lake and wells.

A committee representing the four boards—Brentwood, Central Saanich, Deep Cove and Sidney—was set up to discuss with the Greater Victoria water board plans for extending its water system to the north end of the peninsula.

Committee members are Victor C. Dawson, chairman, L. T. Wadhams, Charles Mollard and B. W. E. Cloves.

It was the first move of the four boards to act jointly on matters pertaining to the distribution of water.

But some members were disappointed that no proposal was made for amalgamating the four boards, a step advocated by municipal officials.

NEVER AGREE

"As I see it the Greater Victoria water board will never agree to financing the extension of main pipe lines to Central Saanich, North Saanich and Sidney," said one member.

"The municipalities will have to do it," he added. "This will mean a takeover of the water districts."

Charles Mollard, chairman of the Central Saanich water board, felt that the regional district should take over water as it has done for parks and sewage.

"I think this is the only solution," he said. "How do they expect a population of 10,000 to pay for $1,500,000 sewage system, hospitals and $2,500,000 water system. It's too much."

He pointed out that a sewage system depended on water and it was only natural that water should also come under the jurisdiction of the regional board.

"I said that many time," he said. "And I'll say it again. There is no reason why the regional board should not take over the financing of water for the whole of the capital region."

COMPUTER TAKES OVER TO LAND JETLINER

MONTREAL (CP)—A BOAC VC-10 carrying 97 passengers and 12 crew members touched down Friday at Montreal International Airport in what was described as the first completely automatic landing of a commercial passenger aircraft in Canada.

An airline spokesman said the aircraft carried a computer which received the regular airport instrument-landing beam and guided the aircraft to earth. The airline's entire fleet of VC-10s is to be equipped with automatic landing equipment by 1970.

FRENCH PROGRAM

France Offers Aid To Alberta Schools

EDMONTON (CP) — Paul Garraud, deputy to the French ambassador to Canada, said Friday France would be willing to assist Alberta in developing a French language side to its educational system if the province were to make the request.

Mr. Garraud said in an interview there is increasing interest in all parts of the country in the French language and it is particularly noticeable in Ontario.

Provincial governments are taking steps to enlarge teaching in the French language and "we are ready to consider requests that might be formulated in English-speaking parts of the country for more French support in terms of professors and cultural materials."

The Alberta government last month passed amendments to the School Act allowing expanded use of French language instruction in schools.

If a request were made asking for assistance in developing a program, France would be willing, Mr. Garraud said.

"But there is a firm principle (on the part of the French government) to refrain from taking the initiative.

"It would be indiscreet on our part to exert any pressure, but if the wish is expressed and we are in a position to meet it, we would be willing to go ahead."

The French diplomat, in Edmonton for the day after a trip to Rainbow Lake, Alta., where a French firm has interests, would not comment on the constitutional aspects of relations between France and Quebec.

But, he said, the objective of French policy toward the "community of French-speaking Canadians is exclusively to help them, inasmuch as they are desirous, to promote their educational and cultural system."

After 200 years of lack of relations, the "two communities recognize themselves as the same cultural branch and it is natural to promote in common what they share."

Mr. Garraud said the existence of a group of French origin is "essential for Canada to preserve its identity."

"Canada is a nation founded on the right of each community to keep its own characteristics, and this brings to the country more richness."

Cleric to Study Alcoholic Counselling

Rev. John Lancaster of Holy Trinity Anglican Church, Sooke, has been awarded a $500 scholarship by the Eastern Star for studies at Rutgers University in New Brunswick, N. J.

He will take a course there in the pastoral counselling of alcoholics next year.

Runner Beats Car Over Lions Gate

VANCOUVER (CP)— Rush-hour traffic between downtown Vancouver and the north shore communities of West and North Vancouver has become so bad it's faster to make the trip on foot than by car.

It was proven Friday, says West Vancouver Mayor Alex Forst.

A long-distance runner, a sports car and a bicycle-built-for two competed in a "great race" organized by Mayor Forst.

The mayor fired a starting gun in front of the downtown Vancouver Queen Elizabeth Theatre at 5:15 p.m. PDT Friday.

The bike riders were first, with a time of 25 minutes for the six-mile trip. A close second was the runner, followed five minutes later by the car—a speedy sports model.

"My point has been proved" said Mayor Forst, a leading advocate for a second crossing the First Narrows of Burrard Inlet.

Runner Jim Conway said exhaust fumes through Stanley Park almost got the best of him.

"It's no wonder all the trees are dying there. They're suffocating."

What Is Good

The subject of this week's Lesson-Sermon, which will be read in all Christian Science churches this Sunday, is Mortals and Immortals. Services at First Church of Christ, Scientist, Chambers at Pandora, begin at 11 a.m. and are open to the public. The Golden Text is from Romans: "Be ye transformed by the renewing of your mind, that ye may prove that what is good, and acceptable, and the perfect will of God."

'Stanfield Would Make Canadians Feel Secure'

Canadians will "feel safe and secure" with Conservative leader Robert Stanfield as prime minister, Esquimalt-Saanich Conservative candidate George Chatterton said Friday.

His comment came in an address to supporters as he officially opened campaign headquarters at 3200 Douglas Street. He has been MP for the constituency for the last seven years.

"No single man can make a nation great," he said.

"I know that the Conservative policies are developed after thorough research and careful consideration — that is the way Mr. Stanfield operates.

"I have been closely associated with him since he became leader of our party. I know that Canadians will feel safe and secure with the government of Canada in the hands of such a man."

Mr. Chatterton criticized Liberal Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau as a man "desperately trying to avoid discussion of the real issues in this election — namely — the slowing of the economy, spiralling inflation, sky-high interest rates and the housing crisis and growing unemployment."

Since Mr. Trudeau failed to present a budget and throne speech outlining policies, "we must assume that the same Liberal policies still apply — the policies that have brought this country to its present state of unrest and dissatisfaction."

The new prime minister created 14 positions for Quebec in his cabinet and three for the four western provinces

"A cynical refutation of his appeal to the west."

Mr. Chatterton also attacked the government's "profligate spending" as a direct cause of the "fantastic interest rates and inflation which steals from the poor and from those on fixed incomes."

He gave five "examples of wasting your money" including increased expenditures on civil service wages, the department of consumer and corporate affairs, department of industry, manpower and immigration and the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation.

"Before long you will have a complete statement of Conservative policies," he said.

Thieves Take Unusual Coins

Thieves ransacked a Queensbury Ave. home sometime Thursday afternoon, Saanich police reported Friday.

The home of John Diemer, 1300 Queensbury, was entered through a north side bedroom window.

A watch, gold ring, and several unusual coins were among the $113 worth of goods taken.

TWICE AS LARGE as Canadian destroyers, the British missile-armed Fife (above) and a sister ship HMS Glamorgan will arrive here Thursday. Each displaces 6,000 tons compared to 2,700 to 2,900-ton Canadian destroyer escorts. They are 520 feet long with 54-foot beam compared to about 350 and 37 feet. Each carries Seaslug missile launchers and helicopter. Although they will remain here for a week it is unlikely either ship will be open to public inspection. Arrival time Thursday is 2:30 p.m.

Arthur Mayse

This week's clash of Catholic opinion over the fate of St. Louis College is by no means unique. The same arguments, the same discussions, are taking place in various North American cities, and the theme is essentially the same:

Can the separate schools be saved?

A state of financial crisis harries the Catholic school program. The reasons for it are familiar enough to educators everywhere. In part, it is brought about by the same population explosion that over-crowds our public schools.

Add land and building costs that steadily increase, and the burden threatens to become heavier than even the most devoted and willing diocese can sustain.

Elsewhere, as in Victoria, we find Catholic churchmen of Bishop Remi De Roo's extremely high calibre who face the situation perceptively and calmly—and at the other pole, traditionalists who turn from the reality in something approaching anguish.

And who can blame them? St. Louis College has served the Catholic community for well over a hundred years. It's an institution, and the prospect of closure is understandably dismaying.

Yet here is Bishop De Roo, speaking in terms that cannot be misunderstood:

"The problem is not 'Could we raise enough to save St. Louis.' The problem is, are we going to rally fast enough to save the rest of the schools?"

★

Inevitably, in the search for a solution, the matter of government refusal to grant state aid to separate schools is raised.

The provincial government was castigated in the course of the Thursday night meeting at which Bishop De Roo spoke so bluntly.

Similarly, when the school crisis was emphasized by Msgr. James C. Donohue, director of education for the U.S. Catholic Conference, his critics urged the need of government grants.

One proposal, according to The National Catholic Reporter for May 15, was that education grants similar to those made to GIs be given to parents of children in non-public elementary and secondary schools.

I think it unlikely that any American government will offer such aid. In Canada, Ontario with its large French Canadian population, has approved separate school grants, but British Columbia has made no move to follow suit.

Nor do I think B.C. is likely to. Non-Catholic opposition would be strong and instant; and in any case, a government that determinedly scrimps its public schools is unlikely to bestow largesse on educational side-issues.

★

There are liberal Catholics who would not be too sorry should the parish schools go under.

I have listened to more than one who holds this view. They felt that the quality of the education meted out to their children was uneven (a complaint I have also heard from parents of public school students) and that religious exercise intruded unduly on time badly needed for curricula that demand increasingly more of the child.

One father, himself separate-school educated, expressed himself as against segregation on religious grounds or any other. If he had it to do again, he told me, his children would attend public school on taxes.

Certainly by present indications, a heavy majority of Victoria Catholics do not take kindly to the thought that their schools are dying from lack of financial nourishment.

Nevertheless, that's the picture as their shrewd and able bishop sees it . . . and as it is revealing itself elsewhere.

This decade has seen significant changes on all Catholic fronts, not merely in the field of education. The local problem is part of a far larger one, which is not going to be solved in the narrow context of any single community.

With this in mind, I suggest to my valued Catholic friends that they do not take their bishop's words lightly.

Admiral Greets New Aircraft At Comox Base

Neptunes Depart, Argus Take Over

By AL WHITE
Times Staff Reporter

CFB COMOX—A single Argus aircraft streaked over the hangar areas as Rear-Admiral J. A. Charles pulled a cord to remove a flag from the side of another Argus on the ground.

As the flag dropped from the fuselage it revealed the crest of the Argus on the nose of the plane. The airforce's 407 Squadron had said hello to it and goodbye to the Neptune.

Flown since 1955 as the west coast's anti-submarine detection plane, the Neptunes were retired Friday in favor of the larger and farther-reaching CC 106 Argus.

Base personnel and hundreds of guests gathered before a dais flanked by two of the aircraft and backed by a Neptune to witness the final ceremony.

As Rear Admiral Charles, commander of maritime forces Pacific, stepped to the dais the first of four Argus flew past.

Wearing full ceremonial uniform with medals and sword, the rear-admiral said goodbye to the Neptune and congratulated the men of 407 Squadron for keeping them operating so well.

He said all forces are "dedicated to the protection of our territorial integrity.

"We want to be a sovereign nation . . . to make sure we as Canadians have control of our country. The Argus aircraft permits us to survey the area for which we are responsible."

After unveiling the plaque, the official party entered a hangar where the rear-admiral cut a ceremonial cake.

As he did so the Neptune pilots paid a sentimental farewell to their planes in a series of flypasts, putting them through steep climbs and tight turns over the hangars.

Alternately the Argus crews flew over, putting on a minor airshow with some of them just barely moving through the air on only two of the planes' four propellors.

BAND PRESENT

The CFB Esquimalt band, flown up for the occasion, played throughout the ceremony.

The larger Argus, which has a patrol duration of more than 24 hours aloft, was transferred to Comox from the base at Greenwood, Nova Scotia.

The plane will provide the maritime command with wider surveillance, reconnaissance and intelligence gathering operations not possible with the medium range Neptune.

With a wing span of 142 feet and length of 128 feet (compared with wings of 101 feet and length of 91 feet for the Neptune) the submarine hunter can travel more than 750 miles from base for a patrol and return with enough fuel for a 500 mile diversion.

She carries the most up-to-date detection and attack equipment and spacious facilities for a crew of 10 or 11.

The patrol area covered by the maritime command spreads about 300,000 square miles out over the Pacific. By staggering flights of the aircraft, a continuous patrol over any area can be maintained almost indefinitely.

Ask The Times

Q. I have heard that the United Nations has no authority to interfere in the internal affairs of any country; is that correct? —W.M.S.

A. The UN does not have the power to interfere in the internal affairs of any country, unless the internal situation is a threat to world peace, such as in Cyprus or the Congo. However, the UN can ask its member nations to stop dealing or trading with a country in opposition to its policies, such as has been done in the case of Rhodesia.

Q. Could you please tell me the address of the nearest Youth Hostel Centre? — T.L.

A. The address is Canadian Youth Hostel, 1406 W. Broadway, Vancouver 9.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the question along to the Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums or legal problems. Nor will it attempt to put a value on old coins, stamps or antiques. These should be submitted to a dealer.

TAKING FAREWELL flight over airfield at CFB Comox are last of four Neptune anti-submarine warfare planes, to be disposed of as surplus after flying from base since 1955. Hundreds of airforce personnel and guests stood on runway to pay last respects to Neptunes and greet replacing CC106 Argus aircraft from east coast. Larger, newer Argus is shown on runway under flypast. (DND Photo)

Labor Chiefs 'Reject' Mediation Post Offer

At least two union leaders in British Columbia have turned down offers to sit on the province's new labor mediation commission.

B.C. Federation of Labor secretary Ray Haines declined to identify the two persons except to say that the information came directly from them.

He was expanding in an interview on remarks earlier this week in a Vancouver speech to the Industrial Relations Management Association.

He told the association "a number of prominent people have been approached by the department of labor but have turned down offers to sit on the mediation commission."

Mr. Haynes said in the interview that he knows of a third union leader who turned down an offer, but this information was second hand.

NO NAMES

"I don't know who they have approached outside labor," he added.

The Minister of Labor, Leslie Peterson, was not in his office for comment this morning.

Labor Minister Peterson claimed this week in interviews that a number of trade unionists have applied for board appointments, more than could possibly be accepted.

In his speech, Mr. Haynes said the government is having difficulty in "getting any prominent person" to be chairman of the commission because the Bill 33 legislation which sets it up includes compulsory arbitration features.

"No respected labor leaders can possibly accept a position on this commission under the present circumstances," he said.

The cabinet proclaimed part of Bill 33 on April 26 clearing the way for establishing the commission. No one has been appointed to date.

Under Section 18 of the legislation, not yet proclaimed, the cabinet can refer a dispute to the commission and order that the commission's decision be binding. Strikes and lockouts can also be ordered ended in 24 hours with fines for failure to obey.

COMMITTEE NAMED

Wide Search Begins For Uvic President

An 18-member committee has begun an international search for the next president of the University of Victoria.

The quest is for a successor to Dr. Malcolm Taylor who resigned as the first Uvic president in February.

Dean Robert Wallace becomes acting president July 1.

The 18-member committee draws its membership from all sections of the university and was established earlier this year by the board of governors to advise on the selection of a new president.

Chancellor R. B. Wilson, chairman of the board and the committee, said earlier its job to determine the best prospects and prepare a short list of those who prove most outstanding through their scholarship and ability to lead.

MEMBERS LISTED

Membership of the committee, announced today is: Richard B. Wilson (chairman), Willard Ireland and Lloyd McKenzie from the board of governors; R. I. Cheffins and Dr. Roy Watson, senate representatives; Dr. James Hendrickson and Dr. Richard Powers, faculty association representatives; Donald S. Thomson, alumni association representative; Dr. J. P. Vinay, Dr. Cary Goulson and Dr. Alan Gowans, representing the faculties of arts and science, education and fine arts; Deans Wallace, Jeffels, Scargill and Tyler and Peter Garvie, director of the school of fine arts; Deryk Thompson and Raymond Vickery, undergraduate and graduate student representatives.

The committee, which will meet again in early June, has invited nominations for the positions from various groups and is compiling a list of prospective candidates.

Dr. Taylor has said he will return to Uvic after a year's leave of absence as a political science professor specializing in public administration.

Man Fined $350, Placed On Bond

A man found sleeping in a car in a Sooke Road ditch early Sunday was fined $350 Friday and placed on a $250 one-year good behavior bond.

Douglas Anaquod, 20, of Work Point Barracks, was fined for impaired driving. Sentence for taking an auto without the owner's consent was suspended.

Anaquod pleaded guilty to both charges.

DAY, WEEK FOR ALL IN CABINET CALENDAR

The provincial cabinet is continuing its proclamation-happy ways.

As have the other weeks in May, next week will present British Columbians with two official observance weeks.

May 19 to 25 has been declared "Better Hearing Week" in B.C. by Health Minister Ralph Loffmark as a gesture towards the 1,200 deaf persons and their associations in the province.

In addition, the cabinet has proclaimed May 20 to 25 as "Cerebral Palsy Week" to direct attention to the problems of the 1,653 persons afflicted with this illness in the province.

Besides observing both official weeks, British Columbians also have been asked by the cabinet — through a solemn proclamation—to add a special thought midweek for the problems of certain female sales agents.

It named Wednesday, May 22, as "Insurance Women's Day in British Columbia."

SAANICH —WHERE IS IT?

There are 60,000 people missing!

They live in the Victoria area, but nobody keeps track of them.

Quick Canadian Facts, the high-selling pocket encyclopedia about Canada, can tell you about our provincial capital, but it's never heard of these people.

The missing people live in Saanich, and although the municipality has a larger population than Victoria city, few "outsiders" know or hear anything about Saanich.

Mayor Hugh Curtis wants something done about it.

He has asked the Saanich Chamber of Commerce to look into ways of improving and extending the municipal image.

"There is no doubt that Saanich is not as well-known as the largest and a very important part of Greater Victoria, as is Burnaby in the same position as a part of Greater Vancouver," the mayor said.

"If Saanich was located on its own, up-Island, or in the interior of the province, its population of over 60,000 would classify it as a major market. The geographical fact of our being a municipality adjacent to Victoria city tends to blend us into the Victoria landscape," Mayor Curtis explained.

Floor Men Seek Vote

A strike vote will be taken shortly by about 35 resilient floorlayers at 10 companies in the Victoria area.

The union will ask the labor department to supervise the vote in anticipation of employers requesting this, said John Schibli, business agent here for the United Brotherhood of Carpenters.

He said the employers latest offer was to extend the existing contract for one year which he said, is behind the rest of the province.

LIEUT. HARLEY B. KIERAN of Victoria has taken command of the recommissioned minesweeper HMCS Miramichi. The ship was brought back into the Pacific Maritime Command fleet May 16 as a training vessel. Lieut. Kieran joined the navy as an officer cadet in Victoria in 1954. He most recently served as operations officer on the destroyer-escort HMCS Ottawa at Halifax.

He Hates Smoking, She Wins $10,000

The wife of one of Canada's foremost crusaders against smoking drew a $10,000 prize coupon from a cigarette package this week.

Mrs. Eric Martin, wife of the former provincial health minister, said she picked up the lucky package of cigarettes during her regular weekly shopping outing Thursday morning.

She said she was "stunned" when she first saw the coupon.

"How would you feel?" she asked.

Her husband said he was dismayed.

"The implication of this thing struck like a thunderbolt," Mr. Martin said. He is the honorary national president of the Non-Smokers Association and previously smoked for 30 years "to the detriment of my health."

Mr. Martin, who has been after his wife to quit smoking for years, said he always referred to cigarettes as "no touch 'ems" — "but then she goes and wins all this money."

He said he expects the provincial government to declare a non-smokers day later this month to encourage people not to smoke, but he did not know if it would discourage people from pulling coupons out of packages.

Mrs. Martin looks on the prize as a good omen because the Martin family has been plagued by illness, she explained.

"Maybe this is a change of luck."

Sun Fun Weekend For All

This is our weekend!

Big bands and beautiful girls!

A dazzling parade, fireworks, horse shows, bike "scrambles," baton twirling and dancing!

That's just part of the recipe for marking the holiday with the name the city shares.

And it's all going to happen under sunny skies, with just enough breeze to fan you and temperatures flirting with 75. That's what the weather man promises but he does hedge a little with talk of a few clouds Sunday afternoon and evening.

SOUND OF MUSIC

It's all to the sound of music too with 27 American bands adding lots of glitter to Monday's big parade.

Tens of thousands of watchers will make a corridor of the parade route down Douglas Street, from the Mayfair shopping plaza to Humboldt. The parade gets under way at 10 a.m.

There will be concerts aplenty through Sunday and Monday too, including Victoria's new carillon.

Herman Bergink intends sounding the right note when he opens with "Something to Sing About" from the tower carillon Sunday at 3 p.m.

BELLS TO RING

There will be a second 45-minute carillon concert Monday at 7:30 p.m. at Belleville and Government Streets.

Carol MacKinnon, Miss Canada, arrives in Victoria this afternoon to take part in the crowning of Miss Victoria Sunday afternoon. The winner will be selected at the Jaycee Fair tonight.

A two-day regatta and sports festival at Brentwood got under way today featuring war canoe races and Indian dances.

For those heading out of town, picnicing, boating or camping, the provincial forest service warns forest fire hazard ratings are climbing. With the fire season only three weeks old, B.C. has already experienced 203 fires, 104 of them in the past seven days.

Fire

SINKING 'SAVES' BOAT

A boat owner deliberately sank his 30-foot yacht off Sidney today to avoid complete destruction by fire.

The owner, identified by Sidney RCMP as Robert Keen of Brentwood, apparently scuttled the two-masted sailing vessel in hopes of later salvaging the hull.

BLAST FEARED

Police also said there was a danger of the fire reaching the gas tanks and the boat blowing up.

Mr. Keen was accompanied by his two sons whose names were not available at press time. All three were taken aboard a fishing vessel which had the yacht under tow at the time.

The fire was reported to police just before 9 a.m. today and the boat sunk about 20 minutes later.

IN 40 FEET

The boat lies now in Shoal Harbour in about 40 feet of water. Four feet of one mast can be seen and about six inches of the other, observers report.

The fire was reported to be in the stern of the vessel and watchers on shore saw thick black smoke and a cabin partially burned.

Five Outstanding Pupils To Benefit From Mistake

By DON VIPOND

It all began with a crushing mistake about a year ago.

But from the mistake blossomed one of those social incidents which will provide a ray of sunlight in local history books.

At the centre were 40 Indian youngsters, the Kuper Island fife and drum band. Remember, it was Canada's year and all the world was headed for Expo. The Kuper band was going too — "the trip of a lifetime" it was being called.

And then came the grim word there had been a mistake. It was thought $10,000 was available. It wasn't. No Expo.

That big empty feeling disappointment brings is something everybody understands but maybe kids better than most.

Because it was the youngsters who refused to take it right from the start. At S. J. Willis junior secondary school in Victoria they came alive.

ALL-OUT EFFORT

Pupils organized concerts, held wrestling matches, collected coat hangers, sold candy, pocket books, watermelons. They marched ahead of the Kuper band in last year's Victoria Day parade. Their banner urged support for that "Trip of a Lifetime."

The fife and drum band itself went to work hard. So did other youngsters in schools up and down the Island.

Then the warmth of the idea began to reach out and the money began to roll in. A stubborn trickle turned into an enthusiastic flood.

When it was all over the Kuper band had its "trip of a lifetime," a lot of people felt very good about the whole business.

And there was about $5,800 left over.

About $800 of this has been turned over to the Kuper band for such things as more instruments, equipment and uniforms.

TRUST FUND

The remaining $5,000 is in a trust fund and each year the interest it earns will provide medals and modest cash prizes for five outstanding Indian students on the lower Island.

Deadline for submitting candidates, all from Grade 7, was Wednesday. Victor Janzen, superintendent of Indian schools on Vancouver Island, said in Nanaimo today he will be forwarding recommendations to the trustees next week.

"We're taking everything into consideration — sports ability, leadership, special interests such as art, poetry, handicrafts or music."

And Mr. Janzen paid tribute to the pupils at S. J. Willis.

"They really kept the drive going."

The fund's trustees will announce the winners in the near future. Awards will likely be made at school closing exercises.

NO MARCH

Ironically, there will be no Kuper fife and drum band in the big parade Monday.

"We lost our director, Brian Dufour, and a lot of the senior pupils last year," said school principal Father John Massel today.

It will be hard replacing the music director, he said, and likely a year or two before the Indian band marches again.

Something that has lasted though — big memories for a lot of kids almost a year ago. And all those that made it possible deserve a happy memory too.

Doing The Town

With DOROTHY FRASER

New Braemar sweaters at Wilson's . . .

The fashion pendulum . . . on its backswing to the 1930s . . . has paused on the very flattering V-neck . . . and this applies even to sweaters, as we realized when we saw Wilson's newly-arrived spring shipment of Braemar cashmere and lambswool sweaters last week . . . Among the cashmeres are V-neck cardigans with a cable stitch pattern down the sides . . . and . . . many of you will be happy to know . . . pockets! . . . Lovely shades of gold, silver sand and horizon blue . . . These have a nice, jacket-y look . . . perfect to wear with your summer dresses . . . Other new cashmeres . . . also with pockets . . . come in reseda green, horizon blue and desert sand . . . A third style, camel and beige, or blue and white, have a lacy weave in front, small covered buttons . . . As for the lambswool cardigans, they're so fine and soft you could easily mistake them for cashmere . . . Spanish gold, red rose, delphinium blue are the new spring colors . . . and styles include a plain V-neck cardigan . . . a notched collared V-neck . . . and classic round neck button-down . . . as well as Chanel-type buttonless sweaters in white or red rose . . . this latter style is one women have been asking for for ages! . . . Pure wool skirts in matching colors for all these Braemar sweaters . . . and although they hadn't arrived as we write this . . . they may well be in this weekend . . . W & J Wilson Limited, 1221 Government St., 383-7177.

This year's Fur Trade Association fashion previews showed fur coats for men.

Short cuts, waves and curls back again . . .

Talking as we just were of the fashion swingback to the 30s . . . this applies to hair styles too! . . . Short cuts, waves and curls are very much in the 1968 fashion picture . . . and those talented stylists at House of Glamour are sharpening up their scissors for the prettiest summer hair styles in years! . . . The thing about these short styles, they're cute on the young . . . and immensely flattering to the more mature woman . . . What's more, they're so versatile that they can be worn even without a set and still look well! . . . Of course, if your hair is very fine and straight, you'll probably need a body wave to give your hair that naturally curly look . . . so our advice is to put yourselves in the hands of a H of G stylist and let him . . . or her . . . create the perfect hairdo for you . . . your first step to a carefree summer! . . . You might be smart to let them give you a couple of hair conditioning treatments too . . . We did just recently . . . and you'd be amazed what it's done for our dry-as-hay hair! So much so that people have been commenting on our improved appearance! . . . More news from H of G . . . Wayne, a very talented young man, has been added to their staff of experienced hair stylists . . . And Dorothy reports truly startling success of H of G's new hair removal treatments . . . House of Glamour, 658 View St., 386-6188.

Some of the season's prettiest dresses are made of voile . . . printed, or plain with lace trim.

For sweet girl graduates . . .

A whole bevy of pretty young things . . . some with mothers in tow . . . were milling around the mezzanine floor at Miss Frith's the other day . . . What gives? we enquired . . . Why, shopping for graduation dresses, of course! . . . So we thought we've better have a look too . . . and we did . . . and were absolutely delighted with what we saw! . . . Miss Frith's have what must be about the dreamiest collection of formals extant! . . . Certainly they're prettier and more feminine than ever . . . well calculated to make the term "sweet girl graduate" no empty phrase . . . Two delightfully quaint dresses we particularly liked . . . one a white organdy with long sleeves, puritan collar and lace double ruffles centered with hot pink satin tubing . . . same pink satin forming the belt and bowed in front . . . worn over rustling white taffeta . . . The other also white . . . has a long gathered skirt and tucked, lace-trimmed yoke coming to a V in front . . . pale blue satin ribbon belt . . . Both of these are sweet, demure and completely charming . . . Other lovely chiffon gowns with floating panels to swirl around as one dances . . . Every color in the rainbow, including romantic pastels like maize, apricot, pinks, blues, turquoise, greens, old ivory . . . And we'd just like to add that most of these lovely dresses are surprisingly inexpensive! . . . Miss Frith Millinery & Fashions, 1617 Douglas St., 383-7181.

There's even a computer now that analyzes hair condition and prescribes individual treatment!

Books to travel by . . .

Going abroad this year? . . . Then hie yourself to the Book Nook in Centennial Square and arm yourself with the sort of practical travel books which will make your trip twice as enjoyable . . . For only $1 each you can get paperbacks chock-full of information about various countries . . . their restaurants, hotels, resorts, places of interest, average prices, language, detailed maps etc. . . . These are the Collins Holiday Guides and include not merely all the "usual" countries . . . but for the first time, guide books on Yugoslavia, Normandy and Brittany, Majorca, the Italian Adriatic Coast and Peloponese and Greek Islands . . . Spending some time in London? . . . Bacon's "Atlas, London and Street Index" will be worth its weight in gold . . . The whole city is broken down into sectional maps, and it tells you where to find everything . . . And if you're a has-been or an armchair traveller, be sure to look at Book Nook's beautiful big new picture books . . . like "Colourful Britain" . . . whose magnificent color plates look three-dimensional . . . we got so wrapped up in this one we could hardly bear to leave it! . . . Another beauty is "Scandinavia" . . . 233 superlative illustrations with eight in color which are removable for framing . . . Also new, "The Book of London" and "Scotland" . . . All so entrancing that words fail us! . . . The Book Nook, 10 Centennial Square, 386-0813.

Sun glasses are a fashion accessory. They come in every conceivable color and shape.

Set a pretty family table . . .

We spotted some very attractive . . . and inexpensive . . . new dinnerware at Montague Bridgman's this week . . . and when we say "new" we merely mean that it's new to Bridgman's and to Victoria . . . because actually it's very old . . . made by Royal Cauldon, England's oldest pottery . . . This is open stock earthenware . . . chip and acid resistant, and detergent proof . . . which you can get in all sorts of different pieces including double egg cups and tea and coffee pots . . . There are two patterns . . . "Blue Scroll" . . . a very old design which surprisingly enough fits as harmoniously into a contemporary as into a traditional decor . . . because the deep blue pattern is non-representational . . . It has a chamelion-like quality that takes on the mood of its surroundings . . . Just $21.50 for a 20-piece set for four . . . dinner and bread and butter plates, cereal bowls and cups and saucers . . . The second pattern is called "Heritage" . . . blue flowers on a white ground . . . It, too, is most attractive, and is priced at $18.50 for a 20-piece set . . . We think this Royal Cauldon earthenware is just about perfect for everyday family use . . . although it's attractive enough to use on any occasion . . . One thing certain . . . if a child (or husband!) is unlucky enough to break a piece, it can easily be replaced for a very small outlay: . . . Montague Bridgman, Limited, 811 Government St., 383-0821.

Cute new swimsuits at M & E . . .

Madam and Eve have some terrific new bathing suits we think you'll like . . . They're quite different from the usual mill and run of swimsuits . . . in fact, they're very UN-ordinary! . . . One model, in stretch helanca, looks like a one-piece suit, though actually it's a two-piecer . . . The long top, reaching down to the thighs, has a built-in bra . . . worn over stretch trunks with little boy leg . . . which serve a double purpose because you can also wear them as shorts . . . Tops are flower printed in psychedelic colors . . . trunks are solid color . . . moss green, in size 10, and mauve, size 12 . . . A couple of one-piece suits are heavy cotton ribbed with helanca . . . navy top and white bottom . . . low-on-the-hips belt, and a long-stemmed flower trimming the front . . . size 10 . . . the other is yellow with green trim, size 12 . . . A 3-piece suit consists of cotton bikini with permanently-pleated cover-cup . . . flowered pattern in orange, green and pink . . . There's a cute "leopard skin" bikini in brown and yellow . . . another in black and white . . . and a pet of a sailor girl navy and white bikini with a little pleated skirt and a suggestion of a sailor collar motif trimming the bra . . . Madam and Eve Shop, Trounce Alley, 383-7177.

V-necks . . . bias cut skirts . . . wide belts . . . All of these are making a big come-back.

Fabrics for that important gown . . .

We've a teen-age niece who sews like an angel . . . makes herself the smartest clothes imaginable . . . and tells us most of her friends do likewise . . . So it occurs to us that lots of you gals will be making your own graduation dresses this year . . . If you're planning on doing just that . . . do go to Saba Bros. and see all their lovely fabrics just itching to be made up into beautiful dresses for this very important occasion . . . We think the washable cotton brocades are especially nice, and very practical . . . They vary in width from 36 to 45 inches . . . and come in a variety of pretty colors as well as white . . . $2.50 a yard and up . . . One of these . . . 45" wide . . . has a rose pattern on a plain background . . . pink, turquoise or yellow . . . We don't know whether Saba's had you girls in mind or not when they put a very special price on a couple of their lovely rayon brocades . . . but anyway, this is in floral patterns . . . 45" wide . . . in pastel colors . . . regularly $5 and $6 a yard . . . for just $2! . . . So take our advice and go and see it before it's all sold! . . . And if you'd like to give one of your older dresses a brand new, 1968 look . . . Saba's have some new pleated cotton ruching which washes beautifully! . . . Saba Bros. Limited, 1130 Douglas St., 384-0561.

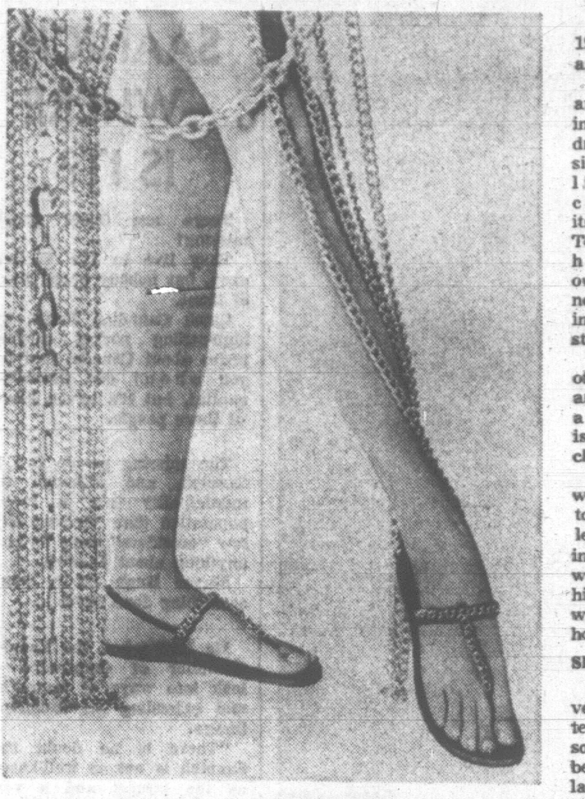
Get Groovy—Sign Up With Chain Gang of Fashion



"Summer 1968 Chain Reaction" . . . from head to toe there will be no missing links this season. Gold links of solid chain accent thong sandals by Bernardo. The long chain may be worn as many ways as your fashion ingenuity takes you.

Jewelry fashion followers in 1968 may well be referred to as "the chain gang."

Once, worn looped twice around the neck to add interest to a dress with a simple neckline, the chain knew its place. Today, chains have taken over a whole new chapter in the fashion story.

Damaske

The return of the waistline has revived an interest in belts and many a simple straight sheath dress is being updated by wearing a chain belt.

The waistline may still wander . . . from high empire to a low and easy holster level. A chain belt will remain in place at the natural waistline, but if worn extra high or low, little cotton loops will be needed at each side to hold the chain in place.

SIMPLE ANSWER

A gold chain co-ordinates very well with most fabric textures, patterns and colors so is a simple answer to any belt problems. The young ladies who are wearing those adorable bobbing up and down sausage curls find a delicate chain interspersed with pretend pearls a flattering accent when woven in and around the base of the curls.

For those who demand complete co-ordination of accessories there are many interesting chain earrings and bracelets from which to choose.

This hep hardware still has its rightful place as a necklace but in a new and interesting way.

Tassels and ball drops terminate many of the chains and pseudo gems glitter among the golden links.

For a new look you may want to catch up one side of your chain with an interesting pin.

The brass buttoned military look is still with us and your chain, looped and secured over the shoulder, gives the effect of gold braid to a suit or coat.

Chain-handled purses are "in" and in some cases you can bring an outdated handbag up to date by putting a chain under the flap of your purse and slinging it over your shoulder.

A word of advise . . . if you try all these chain happenings as I did, you might find some of the links opening a wee bit . . . the good old eyebrow tweezers will make all necessary repairs.

DEAR ABBY . . .

Think Twice About Sterile Lifetime

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My problem is one I'm sure you haven't had before, although I'm sure lots of other people feel the way we do about it, but they're too ashamed to admit it.

I am 25, and engaged to a man who is 30. We love each other very much and plan to marry soon. So what's the problem!

We both detest children and have decided that we do not want any. Ever. We realize that no method of contraception is 100 per cent sure, but we don't want to take any chances. We do know that certain types of surgery can be performed on both the male and female to insure permanent sterilization, but we don't know whether a doctor would perform such surgery on unmarried people. We don't want to get married until this is done. Please don't say, "After you're married, you'll change your minds." I assure you we won't. Our question: Will a doctor do this for us?

HATES CHILDREN

DEAR HATES: Whether a doctor will sterilize you (and/or) your fiance, you must find out for yourselves. But let me warn you — "forever" is a long time, and to voluntarily throw away the privilege of bearing children is a decision you may live to regret.

DEAR ABBY: I have a two-year-old son who was born with only a thumb on his left hand. No fingers.

We were recently at a gathering, and a very loud little neighbor boy (I'll call him Billy) kept insisting that my baby show everybody "that hand" — as he calls it. Billy's constant insistence annoyed me, especially since his mother was sitting right there, takin it all in, and smiling.

These people see my son every day, and I have explained that he was born that way, so the sight of his little hand without fingers should no longer be a novelty.

I suppose I should get used to the idea that my son will be stared at a lot, but it hurts me to see his defect pointed out as if he were some kind of freak.

What should I do if this happens again? N.Y. MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: Don't wait for it to happen again. Tell Billy's mother, privately, to teach her son that it is rude and unkind to call attention to the handicap of another.

Your son need not go through life "stared at." If you are not familiar with the most modern techniques of adding artificial fingers and making them "work," you owe it to your son to investigate. If your family doctor can't direct you to such help ((offered by rehabilitation experts) write to me. I can.

A New You

by Emily Wilkens

"Teenagers have rung the freedom bell and led the way to relaxes rules in makeup, fashion and overall living. As a result, young people today know how to be comfortable with life on their own terms."

These sage observations come from one of the "greats" in the world of beauty, Richard Salomon, chairman of the board and chief executive of Lanvin-Charles of the Ritz.

He is strongly in favor of the "youth kick."

"However," he added, in an exclusive interview, "it's dangerous for some to be too influenced by youth. Many women in extremely young fashions can look a bit foolish. They should adapt the fashion to themselves instead of adapting themselves to the fashion.

"To me," he continued, "glamor involves the attitude of a woman who cares, who is fashion-conscious, although not a slave to fashion, and who knows how to take care of her skin properly."

It occurred to me that this dynamo might have thoughts about the future role of the computer in the realm of beauty. Surprisingly, this prevalent trend was old hat to him — he had rejected it several years ago.

"I was hopeful," he said, "that a computer could analyze a woman's skin and suggest the accurate color components. True, the responses were technically correct but the results were far from flattering. To create loveliness, you still need the human touch."

The corporate umbrella Richard Salomon controls to mention a few of his interests, covers the cosmetic company, the famed fragrance firm, 27 beauty salons in cities the world over, the couture house of St. Laurent and its boutique "offspring" plus a joint venture with Neiman-Marcus, the luxurious Texas beauty spa, The Greenhouse.

It seemed inconceivable that one such calm, collected and unruffled man could personally direct this complex dynasty.

How he does it was apparent within minutes after meeting him as he engaged in several important conferences at one time; answered urgent telephone calls; spoke English one moment, French the next; directed what seemed a battery of secretaries and assistants simultaneously.

Yet, after each politely-excused interruption, this cosmetics tycoon would pick up our conversational thread exactly where he left off. Had it been put to music, I'm sure he wouldn't have missed a beat!

Keeping up with another beat — the "pulse" of this beautiful business — has earned Richard Salomon a reputation as an innovator. Nevertheless, he is vehemently opposed to saturating the market with a plethora of new products.

"Why confuse the consumer further? Even now," he noted, "she has difficulty in making a choice. Furthermore, stores have difficulty finding space for so many overnight products. Surely, I'm all for new preparations but it's far more important to develop basic and sound items which will consistently perform satisfactorily."

He pointed with pride to his "wunderkind" cream Revenescence, launched quite a few years ago and still revered by millions of women.

What impressed me most during our interview was the fascinating straightforwardness, sparkling imagination and keen insight with which he discussed his universal activities. I could readily understand that just as no computer could replace the artist's hand, so, too, no computer could ever fathom or estimate the depths of Richard Salomon's versatile genius.

CPL Holds Annual Tea and Bazaar

Lilac and tulips decorated the head table when the Cats' Protection League held its annual spring tea and bazaar in the Royal Canadian Legion Hall on Blanshard Street. The sum of $567 was realized.

Kitchen arrangements were in charge of Mrs. N. Marshall, Mrs. F. Baynton, Mrs. B. Perkins, Mrs. I. Woods and Hugh Maurice. Acting as serviteurs were Mrs. B. Unicume, Mrs. J. Wicks, Miss Gwen Rossiter and Mrs. O. Hamilton.

Mrs. D. Knaus and Mrs. R. Elrose were in charge of a home cooking stall. An apron stall was handled by Mrs. A. Lee and Mrs. S. Holm.

Mrs. N. Hodgson and Miss J. Viola Heritage convened a superfluity stall, while a stall of books and plants was run by Mrs. E. Griswold and Mrs. E. Connell.

The membership table was in charge of Mrs. E. Graham and Miss Anita Bossi, while the raffle was handled by Mrs. W. Wilds, assisted by Miss Olga Bossi and Mrs. A. Button. Miss Evelyn Gauntlett and Miss N. Laurenson took care of door receipts.

A WOMAN'S VIEWPOINT

By Pat Dufour

One of the greatest assets to our province's tourist industry is Japanese-made . . . or, to be more correct, of Japanese origin. Ask any American tourist and you'll probably be told that one of the "musts" on their list is a meal of oysters.

This seafood delicacy becomes almost a standard diet to those of us who have the boating bug. Oysters cram our coastlines and those of the Gulf Islands. Yet until oyster seed was imported from Japan years ago, to be sown in experimental beds, our only choice was a somewhat temperamental native rock oyster.

The Japanese "imports" embraced their new environment with enthusiasm. The experiment resulted in an explosion. Tidal streams carried the seed throughout our waters.

At least one innkeeper of my acquaintance has reason to bless the "invasion." Ma Fairburn, whose husband "Cappy" ran the Lorne Hotel at Comox for many years, still tells of the American who thought he was in heaven when she fed him oysters for breakfast.

Guest Thought He Was in Heaven

"I'd run out of supplies that morning so, as a last resort, I dashed down to the beach, scooped up enough oysters for a serving, and went to it. He thought he was getting the royal treatment and swore we should be in the Hilton chain!"

This was years ago, but Americans still go ga-ga over this seafood star.

A prime example of this was a party we met aboard a big American sloop while cruising on the mainland last summer. A man and his wife had about 12 youngsters aboard, two of their own, the rest being young lads eager to be initiated into the art of sailing. They'd crossed the Strait the day before in a bit of a "duster" and the careful skipper had decided to stay alongside for a day in order to test gear and get his crew back in shape. Bored, the boys had worked off their surplus energy by gathering oysters.

We'd hardly secured our own lines and sails before two of them were aboard and politely asking how they could open the strange objects they'd collected so diligently.

Within an hour we had initiated them into the art of shucking, their "first mate" was trying out our recipe for oyster stew, and the rest of the "ship's company" were all on kitchen patrol, firing up kabachis that sizzled with oysters, steaming on the shell. Never have I seen so many oysters dunked with tabasco sauce, vinegar, salt and pepper, and downed in such a hurry!

First Mate Gets a Lesson

Before we set out for Princess Louie Inlet I'd given a couple of my more leisurely oyster recipes to the first mate. These I usually keep for "on shore" meals. Her galley quarters being more spacious than ours, she assured me she'd try them both before they sailed back to Seattle.

When you're tired of stew, or oysters fried in pancake batter or breadcrumbs, this casserole recipe is bound to be a winner. Boil eight ounces of macaroni until tender, drain. Simmer a pint of oysters in their own liquor and set aside. Bring a can of mushroom soup to simmering point, then add the oysters, macaroni, and a minced pimiento. Next, add the oyster liquor and enough milk to make it up to a cupful. By now your concoction should have a creamy consistency.

Pour all of this into a greased casserole, top with a cup of buttered bread crumbs mixed with a half cup of grated cheese. Baked in a 400 degree oven until the crumbs are brown, the dish is one to have a gourmet in ecstasy.

Any budget-watching cook is wise to the advantages of meat loaf. Go one step further and try one made of oysters. It's simple and out-of-this-world.

You combine a half pint of oysters, 1½ cups of toasted bread crumbs, one tablespoon each of minced onion, butter and celery, a teaspoon of chopped parsley and a beaten egg, all salted and peppered to taste. Form the combination into a loaf, sprinkle with buttered crumbs, then bake in a covered casserole in a medium oven for about 30 minutes.

Maybe, if we're lucky, we'll meet that skipper and his crew somewhere along the cruising circuit this summer, and I'll be able to get the first mate's report on the recipes.

Chances are, their ship will probably be carrying another crew of young tourists, eager to get their first taste of our Japanese imports.

ALL SET FOR THE VICTORIA DAY PARADE

The four children of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Ridout of 106 Burnett Road are determined to salute the Victoria Day Parade on Monday in fine style. Normally adverse to shopping, they gave up some playing time this week to chose their flags for the BIG DAY. Here, left to right are Michele, three; Russell, eight; Michele's twin brother Michael and five-year-old Glen. Happy holiday! (Irving Strickland photo)

OPPOSITE PICTURE GIVEN BY LOW INCOME GROUP SPOKESMAN

Welfare Recipient Defends Social Workers

By MAUREEN DUFFUS

In one corner, members of the Low Income Group, waging war against injustices in the Social Welfare department.

In another corner, a social welfare recipient, battling on behalf of social workers with a heart-felt letter in their praise.

According to Reg Clarkson, speaking on behalf of the Low Income group, recipients have many complaints which indicate there is need for voluntary lay workers to assist them in dealing with social workers.

Welfare recipients feel they are treated with unjustified suspicion.

They feel they have to beg for their rights.

They claim they have been abused and insulted by social workers.

They claim that social workers are not doing their best for the client, and are in fact, treating clients as inferior beings.

"It is these punitive attitudes," Mr. Clarkson says, "that are so cruel. The recipients are too beaten down to demand their rights, and this is why the proposed lay family life workers are needed in Victoria."

An opposite view comes from a client on social assistance who felt she had to let her social worker know how much she appreciated the help given. She has given permission for parts of her essay to be quoted.

She describes her first visit to the welfare agency.

"I was ushered into a small office, and immediately the fear that had whelmed up within me vanished, for I was at once put at ease.

BECAME FRIEND

"The lady who interviewed me was such a good listener, that this, right away, give me confidence in her. She gave me something that costs nothing to give — a smile.

"Until this time, she was a stranger to me, but no longer. Now she has become a friend, and one of my favorites Whenever I thank her she says, so humbly, 'this is my job.'

"But really, this is her life, helping those who have fallen down, leading those who are at the cross roads in life."

According to Mr. Clarkson, many welfare recipients resent unannounced house calls by welfare workers, feeling that it indicates unwarranted suspicion. He feels that when workers suspect welfare funds are being misused, they should call the police to investigate.

The author of the essay feels differently about social workers' calls.

"Do not think her duties are confined to the four walls of her office, for her field is much greater than that. Three days a week she goes into the homes of people of all walks of life. They all have a story to tell her. When she opens the doors of some homes, the story can be told without a word spoken. The surroundings, the poverty, the misery speak for themselves.

SOLVES PROBLEMS

"She not only takes these problems back to the office, but goes a step further and takes them home with her as well.

"How do I know this?

"Because late in the evening, my telephone has rung, and she has been solving my problems.

"One has only to read the newspapers to see who gets the headlines — the love-ins and the sit-ins, not this lady who does the 'sit-in's' behind her office desk, and the 'love-ins' on those poverty stricken homes. She is never mentioned.

"Her qualifications may include university training, but this lady has qualifications that are not obtained from any school of learning: compassion, love and understanding."

Cruel and abusive or loving and compassionate?

Social workers themselves feel they are playing a dual role.

While doing their best to help and advise their clients, they must also remember they are administering the taxpayers' money.

In short, it seems to be a difficult profession, in which social workers are caught between the desire to help, and the knowledge that they can never satisfy all their clients, their critics — or themselves.

CLEARING CUSTOMS TIPS

By KARIN MOSER

MONTREAL (CP) — If a traveller clearing customs would "regard the officer as a friend instead of someone to outsmart, things would run much smoother for everyone," says Conrad Pilon, a veteran customs inspector.

Mr. Pilon, regional director for all Quebec customs operations, says it's not necessary, however, for any Canadian resident or tourist to tolerate rude behavior from a customs man.

"If a passenger runs into trouble with an officer, be it at an airport, train station or any other border point, he just has to ask for the senior officer."

A few simple rules and a little knowledge can make the border-crossing ritual a pleasant rather than awkward one, says Bagriel Bousquet, regional chief of customs operations.

PROTECT ECONOMY

"The most important thing to remember is that the officer is there to protect the Canadian economy by controlling the flow of imported merchandise."

Simply, a Canadian resident travelling within the limits of continental North America may bring back merchandise totalling $25 duty-free every four months, providing he has been away 48 hours or more. He may bring back only a maximum of 200 cigarettes, two pounds of tobacco, 50 cigars and 40 ounces of liquor.

Any Canadian resident travelling outside the limits of continental North America for 14 days or more may bring back $75 in merchandise duty-free. Restrictions on tobacco and liquor remain the same.

Merchandise totalling more than the stipulated exemptions may be imported provided taxes and duty are paid.

"Often there is a nominal charge for these items and declaring them is far less embarrassing than having an officer discover them," says Mr. Bousquet.

"And ladies' handbags can be searched," adds Mr. Pilon, dispelling the myth that the female handbag is private property.

"Men's suits may also be searched and male and female officers are alway on hand for more thorough inspections.

"However, should a customs official become unnecessarily rude or refuse to speak in a language you understand, simply ask for the senior officer who is always in the area.

"But don't expect an officer to be a maid at the border," says Mr. Bousquet. "The officer does not have to lock or unlock, open or close, pack or unpack your suitcases. Usually they co-operate to a degree, but don't stand back and expect him to do everything."

It's a good idea to keep all merchandise purchased together in one bag to facilitate clearance. Sales slips should also be kept together for quick checks.

"Never bring meat or meat products into Canada from Europe," says Mr. Pilon.

"There is a chance of importing foot-and-mouth disease and the last time this happened back in the early '60s, it cost the country $750,000,000. The disease is incurable and all livestock in contact with it must be destroyed."

How many years younger do you think your face should look to make you really happy?

When a woman uses 2nd Debut to make her face look too young, it would be said that she used it not too wisely. And if she uses it to shed only one or two birthdays, this too would be a waste of her time, energy and money. Any woman about to depart on a course of facial rehabilitation with 2nd Debut should first decide just how youthful her face should be made to look to best serve her present purposes. Once this decision is made, there remains little to do beyond applying 2nd Debut nightly according to directions and discontinuing its use when the desired state of more youthful looking linelessness is reached.

WHAT 2nd DEBUT IS:

2nd Debut is a radical departure from the oily creams and lotions that have been the basis of skin care during the past century. It is a scientific development based in the demonstrable fact that skin's appearance ages through dryness, and that the oiliest skin can also be the driest. 2nd Debut demonstrates to women of all ages that dryness can be relieved continuously and varying degrees of youthful appearance re-established by maintaining the water balance of skin at normally required levels. 2nd Debut, therefore, contains neither oil nor grease. Instead, it is an aqueous emulsion of the ingredient known to be the one employed by nature to keep human skin adequately moist to prevent dryness and premature aging.

As contained in the emulsion 2nd Debut, this ingredient (known as CEF) need only to be applied to the surface of facial skin. The water-moisture level of the skin automatically rises. Progressively, the skin's surface appears smoother and more youthful as lines become less evident and some completely disappear. Those around the eyes, the nose and mouth are usually among those that respond earliest to regular nightly applications of 2nd Debut. The tone of the entire face and neck is at once lifted and given the appearance of fresher form as you near the end of your first 2nd Debut course in youth renewal. From that point on, occasional applications of 2nd Debut with its rich CEF 600 content help facial freshness to remain and facial smoothness to continue to replace those insidious premature age lines that plagued you before your friendship with 2nd Debut began. And, at some later indefinite time, you may begin another course of nightly 2nd Debut applications, with assurance it will be fully as effective as the routine just completed.

2nd Debut is made in two potencies. The first contains CEF 600 and is designed for the woman with early worries; that is, the younger woman who has started to line before her time.

The double-potency CEF 1200 was formulated for the face over forty; or for the impatient lady who wants visible results without delay—or for you if your facial lines are deep. It should smooth age lines faster. In only a few days you see a marked change.

Now, to prepare your skin to receive these treatments, 2nd Debut Liquid Cleanser was developed. Its results are dynamic. Its application is different, for it is to be applied in a thin layer over your face and throat. Then rinse off with cool water. Now your skin is clear, and clean. Really clean!

For a perfect complexion instantly, matte finish 2nd Debut Liquid Make-up with CEF 600. Covers blemishes and imperfections so completely and with such a natural look no one suspects it of being make-up. Helps overcome skin dryness, too. Six shades, each a natural skin tone. From Pale to Golden Tan.

Finally, 2nd Debut Body & Hand Lotion (with CEF 600) is a most welcome sensation in body and hand grooming. Imparts a feeling of luxury to the body that makes you regard yourself with extra importance. And its CEF 600 richness quickly defeats the cause of chapping and roughness with its deep moisturizing of your hands. This is a dual-purpose balm with an immediate and pleasurable effect.

ON THE MAINLAND

His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. George R. Pearkes will cross to the mainland on Sunday to attend the Captain George Vancouver Commemorative Service in Vancouver's Christ Church Cathedral. His Honor will read the first lesson.

On Tuesday, Mr. Hugh-Jones, head of chancery, British High Commission Office in Ottawa, will visit Govenment House to make an official call on the Lieutenant-Governor.

For Gail Dheensaw

A shower in honor of Miss Gail (Gurmeet) Dheensaw was given recently by Miss Tara Pallan and Miss Mohinder Skuja, at Miss Pallan's home. The bride-elect and her mother, Mrs. M. Dheensaw, were presented with corsages. Other guests were Mrs. P. Skuja, Mrs. F. Pallan, Mrs. E. Botting, Mrs. J. Hekela, Mrs. R. Vaniusen, Mrs. B. Dohnm, Mrs. M. Macintyre, Mrs. J. Craig, Mrs. S. Youlden, Mrs. D. Aulkh, Mrs. H. Basi and the Misses Rose Dheensaw, Sharon Johl, Jindy Skuja, Darshan Dale, Margaret Bunting, Nirmal Aujula, Santosh Pallan and Donna Howard.

Returns to Calgary

Miss Jean Doyle returned to her home in Calgary on Wednesday following a three-week visit in Victoria and Vancouver. While here she was the guest of her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. F. M. MacNicol of Brentwood, and also spent some time with another brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Durrant, of View Royal.

Dessert Shower

A pink parasol, pink and white bells and spring bouquets invaded the Queenswood Drive home of Mrs. Harold Bone when she hosted a dessert shower for bride-elect Miss Ginny Martin. Miss Margaret Kirby and Mrs. K. Sorensen acted as co-hostesses. The honor guest and her mother, Mrs. Edward Martin, were presented with pink and white carnations en corsage. A toast to the bride-elect was proposed by Mrs. J. B. Thompson. Miss Gwen Loudoun and Miss B. Barlow assisted with the opening of the gifts. Among those present were Mrs. W. Ekins, Mrs. W. Upton, Mrs. I. Douglas, Mrs. B. J. Willard, Mrs. D. Shaw, Mrs. R. S. Martin, the Misses Pat Kirby, Lois Clark, Patty Houldon and Christine Nelson.

For New Mother

Mrs. R. J. Horner recently gave a surprise baby shower in her Fernhill Road apartment in honor of Mrs. Ray Chenier. Guests included wives of members of the Queen's Own Rifles' hockey team (Mr. Chenier is the team's goaltender), Mrs. T. Barnes, Mrs. M. Brown, Mrs. J. Cawley, Mrs. G. Hurst, Mrs. J. Simoneaon, Mrs. D. Stones, Mrs. R. Taillefer and Mrs. J. Zeller. Also present were Mrs. Chenier's mother, Mrs. T. Hammond, and Mrs. Horner's mother, Mrs. A. Yeo. A decorated basket, trimmed in blue, contained the gifts. The honor guest's chair was decorated in a similar theme. A decorated cake centred the refreshment table when a buffet-style supper was served later in the evening.

Arrived Today

Mr. Frank R. Way arrived from his Salisbury home in the English county of Wiltshire today. He will spend the next three weeks visiting his son-in-law and daughter, Dr. and Mrs. Peter Banks of Sea View Road.

SHOPPING GUIDE

No Dusty Belongings Will End This Trip

By Penny Saver

One of the couples in our neighborhood is leaving for Europe tonight. Oh, how I envy them, especially as they are going for such a happy occasion. Their only daughter begged and pleaded to go to a French university so she could become bilingual. Her parents consented, and while Connie was there she met a wonderful young man. They are to be married in a week and as a wedding present to her parents they are repaying all the money it took to keep Connie at university in a lump sum and with interest. What a switch! The young man calls this his "thank-you" gift to them for sending Connie to where he could meet her. The parents are going to use the money to take a long, luxurious holiday in Europe after the wedding.

I was helping pack everything in the house prior to the final locking-up, and was thrilled by the way my neighbor covered all her kitchen utensils to keep them from dust and moisture. "These covers are wonderful from day to day too," she told me as she demonstrated a cover for an electric mixer. This cover is of quilted plastic with a floral pattern in blue, turquoise, red or pink on white. The edges are finished with a matching binding. The surface of the plastic is either smooth or textured. Dust just cannot settle in the bowls with one of these covers, nor can kitchen grease settle into a dirt-catching film. These 79 cent covers wipe clean with a damp cloth.

Special Protection for Blankets

For blankets—always in danger of moisture and moths—there are plastic bags. These bags are 21 inches by 27 inches by nine inches deep — making a box-shape large enough to hold the biggest blanket. A 27-inch zipper opens the bag part way so the folded blankets can be slipped in. The bag protects the blankets from moths, dust and moisture and makes them a breeze to store in a drawer or cupboard. The colorless plastic has a slight texture and wipes clean with a damp cloth. It won't crack, peel or mildew. My neighbor bought several of these $1.89 bags, packing them with towels and sheets as well as blankets.

Chairs, beds, washing machine — even the kitchen stove ended up under 98 cent all-purpose covers. These covers are just a sheet of clear plastic nine feet by 12 feet. This is large enough to protect even a chesterfield from dust and moisture. These sheets can be used day to day over garden furniture that must be protectd from spring showers; boats, lawn mowers — you name it. The one at our cabin has been known to act as an emergency tent during a picnic. Careful though—this is a fine film of the kind that has suffocated many an unwary child. Treat these useful films like medicines if you have small youngsters.

Born in Ohio of Swedish parents, Blanche Thebom was honored by her parents' old country when the King of Sweden conferred on her the Order of Vasa.

Walks Unnoticed on Downtown Streets

OPERA STAR HERE

By PAT DUFOUR

One of the "greats" of the opera world spent a two-day shopping spree in Victoria this week. Nobody recognized her as she browsed through antique stores.

Blanche Thebom looked like any other tourist as she bought Oriental treasures, helped by two Seattle friends, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Hadfield. Her ability to remain unnoticed was probably due to the fact that she wore a turban. Blanche Thebom's floor-length hair is almost as much admired as her artistry.

Among her purchases was an exquisite Chinese panel, inlaid with ivory, and some bronze pieces. All will be used in her office in Atlanta, Georgia, where she is now the artistic director of the newly formed Atlanta Opera Company.

NEW CHALLENGE

The Metropolitan Opera Company's leading mezzo for many years (she recently received the 20-year silver clock which is given to singers with the company for that time), Miss Thebom enthuses as she talks of her new challenge.

"It's all very new, very exciting, and I'll have an office of my own for the first time in my life. Atlanta, is booming and in spite of the fact that it's an old established city, there's a frontier air about it. One of New York's leading men in theatre, Michael Howard, will head up the drama division and David Blair is coming from the Royal Ballet to head that section."

The first 40-week season will begin in October and Miss Thebom reports that there will be eight plays, four operas and four ballets.

ORIGINAL SETTING

She has become well-known for [illegible]ative ability, especially through her creation of Baba the Turk in Stravinsky's Rake's Progress and Adelaide in Strauss' Arabella.

Her creative talent will also be seen in her first four operas in Atlanta. The first will be "King Arthur," a Purcell masque. Presented first in London in 1961, "King Arthur" will be making its North American premiere. Miss Thebom is radiant when she speaks of "La Boheme" which she will produce in an original manner with the setting placed in Paris at the end of the First World War. Her other two operas will be "Tristan" and "Salome."

Sandwiched in between her new career, she will still meet a heavy schedule of concert and opera engagements. "I couldn't give up performing; it's my life, and it would be such a waste."

Miss Thebom was the first North American to be invited to sing at the Bolshoi, spending five weeks in Moscow in 1957.

She compares her Russian tour with a visit she made to Yellowknife, N.W.T., last December.

"It was 48 below in Yellowknife, compared to 18 below in Moscow. But, in Russia the wind was much stronger."

Miss Thebom overcame the cold by wearing under her gowns "long Johns," choosing ones with straps, which she turned under, pinning the tops to the decolletage of her gowns.

She was so enthusiastic about her visit to Yellowknife and the concert, held in a school auditorium, that she wrote a travel piece on it in the New York Times.

CIRCLES THE WIRLD

Appointed by her country's state department, Miss Thebom's appearances have seen her circling around the world twice. In 1961 she spent six weeks in Japan with the Osaka International Festival.

Miss Thebom is glad of the career which she discarded in order to study voice.

"Before I went to New York to study I was a secretary. I've always looked after my own correspondence and business affairs, and this knowledge will stand me in good stead in my new job."

It's fortunate for lovers of good music that she forsook the keys of a typewriter for those of a more melodious nature.

Teachers Link Between Cultures

Teaching methods used in educational work with aboriginal children of Australia were described by world affairs convener, Mrs. Elsley Collard, at a meeting of Esquimalt Chapter, IODE. She pointed out that the 230 teachers serve as links between two cultures, without attempting to convert their pupils to another culture.

During the meeting it was reported that $150 was realized at a coffee party earlier this month. The chapter will send an afghan to Mount St. Mary and another to Rose Manor.

Money was voted for cod liver oil for patients attended by the VON, and for contributions to the Municipal Canadian history prize, the Municipal bursary fund and the Second War memorial fund. A member, Mrs. Elsley Collard, will make a personal donation to the latter fund as well.

DRAFT WOMEN

Iran plans to draft women aged 18 to 25 for two-year terms in educational and welfare fields, the newspaper Kayhan reported. It said girls will receive four months military and civil training.

'Dirty Joke' Humor Decreasing As Sex Discussed More Freely

"Dirty jokes are disappearing in direct proportion to today's open discussions of sex," said Dr. Frederick Mayne of the English department of the University of Victoria, when he addressed the annual dinner of the University Women's Club in Holyrood House.

Discussing wit and humor, Dr. Mayne pointed out that while they operate at different levels, both appeal to the intellectual faculties and utilize similar ingredients.

The first, he said, was an irreverance for authority in all possible forms. This "flouting of authority," usually achieved by arousing a sense of superiority, often at someone else's expense, is a process familiar even to children. This kind of humor includes slapstick, ethnic jokes and cutting sarcasm.

A joke often succeeds by trespassing beyond the borders of a taboo. Hence the decrease of dirty jokes.

He said that most humor through the ages has deliberately exploited the awareness of the body and its limitations. Dwarfs, tall, spidery giants, and fat comics such as Oliver Hardy or Falstaff all excite one's amusement. Even the master of pathos and comedy, Charlie Chaplin, did not blend these elements, but kept them distinct and mutually uncontaminated, he said.

Tragedy on the other hand appeals to our emotions rather than the intellect. One cannot imagine a Falstaffian Othello, said Dr. Mayne. The artistry of tragic heroes does not depend on physical appearance: the tragedies of Othello are those of the mind and emotions.

The speaker thought it was dubious whether or not wit and humor play an important role in social reform. The French Revolution owes its fervor not to the acerbic wit of Voltaire but to the emotional seriousness of Rousseau.

Laughter dissipates tension and with this the desire to effect reform. This however by no means diminishes the need for laughter nor the freedom to enjoy it, he concluded.

Mrs. J. E. Brown introduced the speaker and he was thanked by Mrs. K. O. Wright.

The slate of officers for the upcoming year is as follows: Mrs. J. W. McCammon, president; Mrs. R. A. Fraser, past president; Miss Margaret Lowe, first vice-president; Mrs. J. E. Browne, second vice-president; Mrs. M. Blake, corresponding secretary; Mrs. D. H. Toms, recording secretary; Mrs. J. H. Brown, treasurer; Mrs. D. M. Cox, federation representative; Mrs. A. H. Cameron, study group convener; Mrs. A. Paul, social convener, and Mrs. J. Sanderson, publicity convener.

During the evening Mrs. Olga Bowes conferred Honorary Membership in the club upon Miss Elizabeth Forbes.

Lady Bird Coiffures
WIN AGAIN!
The Annual Convention of the Hairdressers' Association of B.C., which is the highlight of the whole year, was recently held in Vancouver.
For this event an enormous amount of work and preparation goes into their educational programs and contests.
One of the most outstanding and most glamorous is the "GALA". This contest gives the stylist a chance to go wild creatively. Hairpieces, ornaments, flowers, etc., are used and the event is judged on an over-all basis—make-up, dress and hair style of the model.
Of special interest to us in Victoria, is that Lady Bird Coiffures WON TWO TROPHIES in this event. First prize went to Ralph Martino and third prize to Gabriel Szohner. Second prize for a Daytime Coiffure was also won by Ralph Martino.
Recipients of medals, being on a team representing Victoria, were John Laliotis and Audrey Smith, of Lady Bird Coiffures.
Demonstrations showing the latest hairstyles were given by Edwina, Audrey and John.

NEW CATTLE PLAGUE

LONDON (AP) — A new outbreak of hoof-and-mouth disease was confirmed today in a Welsh county near a farm where the cattle plague first erupted last October.

The case dashed hopes that the epidemic that ravaged British livestock during the winter was finally over.

INSIDE CITY HALL

Let's Hear Residents' Ideas For New Swimming Centre

By JIM HUME
Times City Hall Reporter

An interesting little debate going on at coffee breaks and other bull sessions at city hall involves the type of swimming pool Victoria should build to replace the Crystal.

Should it be a conventional pool which is basically a long hole in the ground oriented to competitive swimming? Or should it be a pool with a future look, geared primarily for family or group recreation but easily converted for competition use?

Hume

Mayor Hugh Stephen, who does his homework pretty thoroughly, favors the latter.

Ald. Percy Frampton, in charge of the committee reviewing pool sites and designs, thinks the forward look "a little far-fetched for Victoria."

Here's what the mayor is talking about: a swimming pool with wave-making machinery, surrounded by wide patios and with, at one end, a tall rock-built wall down which cascades a waterfall.

"The idea isn't new," says the mayor. "It has been stated by experts that the swimming pools being built today in North America will be obsolete in a few years. In Europe and Japan they are already building pools with the emphasis on recreation — or daily and constant use — rather than on the secondary competitive angle."

Mayor Stephen thinks such a pool — which would be a first in Canada — would not only win considerable recognition for Victoria but could also, with just an even break, be a money maker.

"Until you have been swimming in a pool with a wavemaker you don't know what fun it can be," says the mayor.

He realizes that such a pool would cost more than the barebones swimming hole, But he is sure the extra investment at this time would more than pay off in the near future.

Ald. Frampton, as stated earlier, isn't so sure.

He's all for facility with economy, a good philosophy some of the time, but not too sound when planning for the future.

The purpose of all this is to keep readers informed of council studies and to suggest that those with the ability to lift a pen scribble on a piece of paper what kind of pool they'd prefer.

A functional, relaxing, recreational facility? Or a concrete encased oblong hole marked with swimming lanes?

While we don't expect to have to hire extra mailmen to carry your suggestions, there are encouraging signs that people are interested in civic political goings on.

Readers like ex-Esquimalt councillor Art Mebs who gave a shout from the wilderness the other day to say he was still alive and would be making a bid for the Esquimalt council seat soon to be vacated by Ald. Gerry Horne.

Ald. Horne, readers may recall, is the school teacher who's heading for Africa for a couple of years.

Mayor Ray Bryant informs us, however, that Mr. Mebs might have to wait until December before once again treading the hustings.

Council could decide to call a byelection, but it could also decide to slug it through with one man missing until the routine civic elections roll around.

I can't see how they could justify that wait if Ald. Horne goes in late June, but funnier things have been done under the name of democracy.

Driving around rural Saanich and Central Saanich last Sunday it was gratifying to see that both municipalities have their back-lanes well sprinkled with sighs warning motorists that rubbish dumping could cost $100 in fines.

Any move to stop the depositing of junk along country roads has to be welcomed and blessed. But after the drive, and because I had a box of basement junk in the back of the car, I couldn't help but wonder just where I was supposed to dump it.

It was the kind of slop-over living mess the garbage collector won't take. It was overlooked in the free pick-up of junk organized by Saanich a couple of weeks ago.

Now what? Wait for another year?

It was my own fault that I didn't know where to find Hartland Road and the dump disgracing that fair neighborhood.

And I guess it was my own fault that the service station road map I had didn't show Hartland Road.

But even after accepting those self-imposed rebukes, I am left wondering if it would be possible for municipalities desirous of spreading the anti-litter gospel to take a more positive point of view.

Along with their "don't dump refuse" notices, wouldn't it be possible to attach in small print where garbage can be dumped?

I wasn't too frustrated Sunday because I had my fishing rod in the car. Without that it could have been an annoying search for an official receptacle for a box of cellar cleanings.

What did I do with the box? Drove out to Goldstream Road where, for 25 cents, I was able to toss it on a huge pile of smelly human discards. And fished Thetis and Prior lakes on the way back.

Alderman Baird Heads Island Civic Group

Victoria Alderman Robert Baird Friday was elected president of the Association of Vancouver Island Municipalities.

The election, by acclamation, came at the conclusion of a day-long meeting of the approximately 50 delegates in Saanich Municipal Hall.

Mayor Kathleen Goude of Ladysmith was elected vice-president.

Ald. Baird was vice-president of the association last year and had served as president for the last five months following defeat of president and former Port Alberni Mayor Les Hammer in municipal elections last December.

During the afternoon session of the meeting municipal representatives approved a resolution requesting the provincial government to amend the municipal act to allow councils to pay part of accident insurance premiums for council members.

ONE VOTE

They also passed by one vote a resolution calling for the provincial government to reverse its recent legislation which did away with fines imposed for certain traffic violations, and loss of revenue to municipalities.

Mayor Stephen said delegates should not inhibit the government's new and valid approach in dealing with traffic violators but should call for substitute revenue.

An amendment suggesting this was defeated by one vote, and the original motion carried 13-12.

In a final address to delegates, newly-elected president Ald. Baird spoke of his concern for the accident and death rate on Vancouver Island Highways.

He also said it behooves sister municipalities to clean up their front yards.

He said the highway was an eyesore and a mess second only to a big city slum.

Elected Chairman

Rev. Robert J. D. Morris, minister of First United Church has been elected chairman of the Victoria Presbytery, United Church of Canada.

Diabetic Children Camp at Kalamalka

Kalamalka Lake, in the Okanagan, has been selected as this year's site of the summer camp for diabetic children.

The B.C. branch of the Canadian Diabetic Association sponsor the camp for boys and girls ages 9 to 16, from Aug. 18 to 31.

The camp offers regular camping facilities, swimming, boating and water skiing, plus instruction for living with and taking care of diabetes. There will be doctors, nurses and a dietitian in attendance.

There is a nominal fee of $50 but if a family cannot afford to pay, the association will accept all applications and pay the full cost of $120 per child, after an investigation of the circumstances.

The camp is open to all diabetic children, whether or not they are members of the association.

Information and applications may be obtained from Mrs. Marion Gorby, 885 Craigflower Road, phone 384-8582.

Weddings

Cameron — Comrie

Tall candelabra and white gladioli with yellow stocks decorated First United Church as Reverend R. D. Morris officiated Saturday evening May 4 when Sandra Gail Comrie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. I. Comrie, exchanged marriage vows with Albert Edward (Ted) Cameron, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Cameron, all of Victoria.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was radiant in a floor-length gown of mat elysee styled on empire lines with small crystal droplets encircling the elbow tipping sleeves. The gown was complemented by a full train that swept gracefully from a back yoke. Her head piece a coronet of crystal and pearl droplets held a hand rolled veil of silk illusion. She carried a nosegay of white daisies and stephanotis intermingled in yellow tulle and yellow ribbon. For something old, she carried a yellow hanky that had belonged to her paternal Grandmother. Miss Phyllis Comrie, sister of the bride was maid of honor. Mrs. Carol Molnar and Mrs. Linda Spaven attended the bride. All wore floor-length empire fashioned gowns of yellow Swiss cotton brocade. Their head pieces consisted of white daisies. The little flower girl, Miss Lori Anderson, niece of the groom, was adorable in a short dress of yellow organza and white eyelet. All carried nosegays of white daisies.

Paul Blyth was best man and Messrs. Phillip Molnar and Greg Spaven ushered the guests. Mr. Glen Atkinson the soloist sang "In the Garden." The wedding reception was held at the Carlton Club where the bride's table featured a three-tiered wedding cake trimmed with yellow roses and white doves. The toast to the Bride was given by Mr. Cecil Fawcett, uncle of the bride. For their honeymoon trip to California the bride chose a jacket dress of Americana rose wool with matching pill box hat and bone accessories.

Out of town guests were Mr. and Mrs. A. Anderson, Duncan. Mr. and Mrs. John Maher, Nanaimo. Mr. and Mrs. P. Blyth, Gold River. Mr. and Mrs. C. Fawcett, Calgary. Mr. and Mrs. L. Fawcett, Chilliwack, B.C. Mr. and Mrs. A. Darchinger, Mr. and Mrs. C. Comrie, Mrs Gordon Comrie, Mrs. R. Valens, Mrs. Donald Comrie, all of Edmonton and Mr. and Mrs. George Comrie, Vancouver.

Robertson — Davies

A double ring ceremony was solemnized on April 27th, 1968, at 7 p.m. in St. Aidan's United Church, when Eileen Flora, daughter of Captain and Mrs. F. R. Davies, exchanged marriage vows with Robert Wayne, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. Robertson of Victoria, B.C. Rev. M. Henderson officiated and the organist was Mrs. Vera Barclay.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was exquisitely gowned in a floor-length dress of organza over taffeta Featuring a wedding ring neckline and dainty appliqued flowers at the Empire waist and collar. Creating back interest were soft folds falling into a train from the self fabric bow on the waist. A cluster of organza flowers held a four-tiered veil of silk illusion. The bride carried a bouquet of yellow roses and white carnations. The bridal attendants, Mrs. Bruce Korstrom, matron of honor, Misses Dianne Robertson, sister of the groom, Sue Ptak and Ann Drysdale were gowned in an aurora of colors ranging from apple green to deep purple muted by overskirts of flowered nylon sheer in shades of blue and green. The bridesmaids carried white carnations with added touches of color provided by fabric flowers made from the floral sheer. Best man was Mr. Bill Brooks and Messrs. T. (Chip) Ross, Alan Rogers and Julien Neale ushered the guests. Following a reception at the Tally-Ho Travelodge the happy couple left for a trip to Vancouver. On their return from their honeymoon Mr. and Mrs. Robertson will make their home in Victoria.

Everett — Bennett

Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Bennett, 737 Belton Avenue, are pleased to announce the marriage of their youngest daughter, Lynda Darlaine to Mr. Clifford Lewis Everett, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. Norby of 1031 Caledonia Avenue, which took place recently.

In a double-ring ceremony, the bride, given in marriage by her father, was attended by Miss Pat Miller. The groom was supported by Mr. Fred Boulton.

Kilgore — Mayne

A pretty wedding took place on Friday, May 3, 1968, at 7:30 p.m. when Sharon, twin daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Mayne, and Larry, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Art Kilgore, all of Victoria, were united in marriage at Belmont Avenue United Church with the Reverend Murray Henderson officiating.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride chose a floor-length gown of white organza with matching train attached at the shoulders, a pearl and crystal tiara held her four-tiered veil of silk illusion and she carried red roses and white carnations.

Matron of Honor for her twin sister was Mrs. Brenda Pinniger, and bridesmatron was Mrs. Sharon Creed. They wore full-length gowns of deep rose and turquoise with headpieces of miniature tiaras of pearl and crystal with short matching veils. Best man was Rodney Kilgore and usher Sandy McArthur.

A reception was held at the Club Tango. Mr. Les Harlow, uncle of the bride, proposed the toast. After a honeymoon spent in the States and on the mainland they will reside in Victoria.

Mitchell — Higgins

The wedding of Norma Eileen, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard D. Higgins, 788 Transit Road and Angus Cameron, third son of Mrs. William J. G. Mitchell, 1729 Albert Street and the late Mr. Mitchell, took place at 2 p.m. on Saturday, May 11, 1968, at St. Dunstan's Anglican Church. Archdeacon Albert E. Hendy, assisted by the Reverend Angus Cameron of Lundavra, the groom's godfather, performed the ceremony. The maid of honor was Miss Susan E. Mason and the bride's matron was Mrs. George W. Megaw. Mr. John Kelly was groomsman. The ushers were Mr. Richard J. Higgins and Mr. Evan Mitchell.

A reception followed at the Georgian Lounge, Empress Hotel where Mr. William I. N. Higgins proposed the toast to the bride, his niece. After a honeymoon in California, Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell will reside in Vancouver.

We wish to express our sincere and heartfelt thanks to our many friends, neighbors and relatives for their kindness, messages of sympathy and beautiful floral offerings in the loss of our beloved son, Ralph, grandson, brother and uncle. Special thanks to Rev. B. T. Harrison and Mr. C. Johnson of Sands Chapel of Roses and Associates.
—Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Morgan, Mrs. E. S. Cottle, Fred and Dianne Morgan and family.

We wish to extend our heartfelt thanks and appreciation for acts of kindness, messages of sympathy and beautiful floral offerings received from our many friends in our recent bereavement of my dear husband. We especially thank Rev. A. Cameron and Dr. F. Gouwo, Dr. J. L. Heffernan and Dr. E. Allen, also the nursing staff of St. Joseph's Hospital.
—Mrs. O. J. Williams and family.

9 IN MEMORIAM

GRAHAM—Janice. In ever loving memory of our dear Janny who passed away May 22, 1967.

When a lovely flower fades and is gone
The beauty and fragrance linger on and on.

Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

If you want to use the Jacoby transfer, we have a few special words of advice. First, make sure that you and your partner are in complete agreement about it. Next, use it in response to no-trump opening bids only. The third bit is that you do not use it if second hand has acted over your partner's no-trump.

Opening lead—♦ K

North's two heart bid showed at least five spades and South dutifully bid two spades in reply to the transfer.

North's second round jump to three no-trump said, "Partner, I have already shown you that I hold five spades. Now I want you to know that my hand is suitable for play at no-trump game as well as in spades."

South's decision to place the contract in spades was a good one. He only held two spades but they were very good cards and South had opened one no-trump without a stopper in diamonds.

Playing at four spades, South won the diamond opening and went right after trumps. He had to lose the ace of spades and two diamonds but the rest of the tricks were his. Three no-trump would have gone down because West would cash four diamond tricks.

It is interesting to note that without a diamond opening the North-South cards would have produced 11 tricks at either no-trump or spades and if diamonds had broken 4-3, no lead would have beaten three no-trump.

This takes nothing from South's fine decision. Bitter experience has taught us that if there is one opening lead to beat one of our unsound contracts, our opponents have a mean habit of making it.

1968 DATSUN SEDAN

The "more-for-your money car." If somebody ever tells you he drives an economy import with 96 h.p. engine that goes 100 m.p.h., has a safer, impact absorbing body, the safest suspension money can buy, a wrap-around air-flow system that keeps windows clear, that it looks great, handles like a dream and that he bought it from us for only $2,025, believe him. The new DATSUN sedan, the "more for your money car" from $1,895 at

ENJOY YOUR LEISURE OAK BAY $42,000 MARINA VIEW

Here's a delightful little home about 1,370 sq. ft. with 2-bedroom accommodation. More on the contemporary design, this home is, but just demure enough that an air of graciousness through establishment is emitted. The garden around the home is a profusion of shrubbery with very little care required and the pillar at the porch entrance is a picture with the flowering vine clematis in bloom. Through the front door from the broad covered red porch, one is greeted by the rather good-size entrance foyer from which through a Gothic type arch the generous living room can be viewed with its colonial pillared fireplace and broad mantle. Views of Oak Bay through leaded windows are interesting with ships and boats bobbing in and out of the docks. Separated dining room is gorgeous with leaded bay window, bureau nook and small china cabinet built in. The home should be seen by those who would not consider anything less than Oak Bay and who appreciate the value and demand for property in this area. ### SOUTH FAIRFIELD
1500 SQ. FT.

If you are among the minority of home buyers who prefer the quiet elegance of a bygone era to the mass produced stucco dormitories of today's contemporary thinking, look no more! I think you will like this first time on the market listing 1,500 sq. ft. of gracious living space, which will fit you like your favorite oxfords. Mellowed with age but in absolutely beautiful shape. On the main floor we have a large entrance hall with hardwood floors, leading into a 25' living room with a stone fireplace, off that is a 17x15 dining room that will take your favorite antique dining room suite; then the kitchen, ample sized for your needs. Two double-sized bedrooms and a large bathroom, complete the main floor. Upstairs is an unfinished attic with staircase which could accommodate two more double-sized bedrooms and a study. This home is located on a corner lot in the quiet South Fairfield residential district and close to the park. If this is the type of home you have dreamed of you owe it to yourself to take a look, because we know from past experience that they are few and far between and are snapped up fast.

ASKING $19,900 WITH $5,000 DOWN. IT'S CLEAR TITLE AND THE OWNER WILL CARRY THE WHOLE BALANCE ON ONE MORTGAGE—IMMEDIATE POSSESSION. TO VIEW, FRANK WHITFIELD, 386-6175 EVES. AND WEEKENDS, 385-0510.

WANTED URGENTLY

I have hundreds—no, thousands—of clients with millions of dollars looking for a 1, 2 or 3-bedroom home in a good or bad area, with or without a basement—country property preferred within the 2-mile circle, close to all services with seclusion.
Seriously, if you have a home to sell, I have no clients. Homes, like people, have very individual personalities—A desire must be created, by selling, for each single property in order to get the best price.
If you are going to sell your home, think of me. My desire is not to list your property, for I cannot serve you, nor can I make a living, by listing—only selling!
You can count on a realistic appraisal of your property, a genuine effort, and the best possible price.

Four Hurt In Traffic Accidents

Four persons were injured, none seriously, in separate traffic accidents today and late Friday.

Mrs. George Foreman, 943 Linkleas, was reported in satisfactory condition with undetermined shoulder injuries following a two-car collision early today.

Mrs. Foreman was in a car being driven north on Foul Bay Ave. by her husband. It was in collision with one driven by Agnes K. Brodie, 1883 Lulie, at the intersection of Lansdowne and Foul Bay.

Police said damage to the cars was $500.

Three motorcyclists were injured Friday night in accidents, but only one was detained in hospital overnight.

Ian Martin, 2990 Brock Myron, was admitted to Royal Jubilee Hospital after an accident at Chaucer and Elgin in Oak Bay. He suffered a severe leg cut and was in satisfactory condition today.

HIT TREE

Police said his motorcycle was being towed by a car when he somehow lost control and hit a tree.

In another accident 13-year-old Dale Bender, 229 Cadillac, received an injured shoulder when a car cut in front of him at Tillicum and Nicola, striking his bike.

The car failed to stop, police siad, and there were no witnesses. The boy was released from hospital after treatment.

Another youth was treated and released from hospital following an accident on a motorcycle in front of his home Friday.

Police said William Kellow, 16, 771 Haliburton, collided with a car driven by Darwin Garside of 4945 Lochside.

Beards Vanish In Cuba

HAVANA (AP)—Fidel's is dark and bushy. Che's was oriental-style and not much more than a wisp. But beards these days are a vanishing part of Cuba's "external revolution."

The word is not official, but the effect is the same as if it had been: Young Communists at Havana University are cracking down on long hair, tight pants and hairy chins.

Officials said there are no formal strictures on dress, but noted almost in the same breath that militia members must keep their faces clean-shaven and hair trimmed to military length. The overwhelming majority of young Cuban men are militia members.

But most remember that beards have been in and out of favor before. Only top leaders had them during the early years of the revolution. They keep them still.

Mini-skirts, for months a rewarding diversion here, are also running into some opposition from neighborhood vigilantes. There have been reports that short-skirted girls and long-haired men have been verbally and physically attacked on the streets.

The anti-beard and anti-mini moves are part of the current drive to purge capitalist and anti-government elements in Cuba. Nightclubs—places "used and abused to conquer a woman" according to the Havana University magazine—have been shut down.

PARIS IN THE SPRING PROVES ROWDY

North Viet Delegates Seek Peace

PARIS (AP) — North Vietnam's negotiating delegation has decided to move away from the demonstrations and noise of the Left Bank to a private house about five miles from the edge of the city, an authoritative source said today.

The precise location was not immediately disclosed. The move is due to take place Saturday morning.

Col. Ha Van Lau, the No. 2 man in the delegation told the management of the Hotel Lutetia Thursday the North Vietnamese are accustomed to living to themselves and not to the going and comings of a big Paris hotel.

Lau said the delegation has found a private house from which the members could reach the International Conference Centre, where the peace talks are being held, in 20 minutes.

Lau emphasized to the management, it was learned, that the delegation had no complaint about the hotel or its personnel and would still hold a big reception in its ball room next Tuesday as planned. Several hundred guests are expected to attend.

Death Notice Caused Mixup

Church singer Stanley Martin was alive and working at his job in a Victoria liquor store today.

But his wife, Muriel is still receiving condolence cards and messages of sympathy on his "decease."

Another Stanley Martin appeared in The Times obituary column this week, but no age or address was given. Hence the misunderstanding.

Mr. Martin, who lives at 2137 Central Avenue, is a regular soloist at Centennial United Church and has sung in many other churches as well as with Victoria Operatic Society and at the McPherson Playhouse.

"I hope to keep on singing for a long time to come," he said.

Suharto Irks Moslem Parties

JAKARTA (AP) — Indonesia's three influential Moslem parties have joined focess and warned President Suharto a rift is growing between him and the Moslem population.

They said in a joint statement today they should not be left out of a new cabinet Suharo is expected to announce shortly

Grits, Tories Facing Rifts In 'Peg Ridings

Special to the Times

WINNIPEG — As the struggle to round up candidates for Manitoba's 13 federal ridings nears an end, two constituencies have been left with inner-party battle scars that may continue to fester throughout the campaign.

Both the Conservatives in Winnipeg South Centre and the Liberals in St. Boniface face the task of healing party wounds that threaten to divide the faithful and throw into doubt the outcome of the election in the two constituencies.

Winnipeg South Centre has been a safe Conservative seat since 1951 when former Cabinet Minister Gordon Churchill first entered the House of Commons and the predominantly French St. Boniface has a long history of Liberal affiliation.

Although the odds on former Manitoba Premier Duff Roblin, who is carring the Conservative banner this time in South Centre, would seem to indicate a sure victory, there have been increasing signs this past week that not all of the party followers in the riding are happy with the new candidate.

OLD GUARD

A crusty old guard of Diefenbaker loyalists have long been disgruntled with the former premier and this week they received a champion in the form of John McDowell, a 73-year-old former member of the Manitoba legislature.

Mr. McDowell announced that he would run as an independent Conservative in the riding, blaming the move on Mr. Roblin's adoption of the two-nation theory of confederation and his imposition of a five per cent sales tax on Manitobans.

But while most observers feel that Mr. McDowell will not seriously jeopardize Mr. Roblin's cause, it is also conceded that running two Conservatives in the riding will do nothing to combat the Trudeau image that has picked up a number of followers in the middle to high-income constituency.

PLIGHT WORSENS

On the other side of the Red River, meanwhile, Veterans Affairs Minister Roger Teillet's plight continues to worsen. In addition to having to face a challenge for the Liberal nomination in the riding from St. Boniface Mayor Joseph Guay, the minister lost a definite advantage when the party postponed at the last minute a nomination convention scheduled for last Saturday.

The reason behind the delay in the convention, now slated for Wednesday, have never been fully explained but most Liberals in the know admit the move can only help Mayor Guay drum up more enthusiasm and support for his bid.

And instead of a closed nominating convention with obscure voting qualifications, the meeting has now been thrown open to all card-carrying members of the party in the constituency — thus raising the odds that the mayor's appeal with the rank and file may be able to overcome the minister's control of the party organization.

Silver Threads Add Bridge To Busy Round

Bridge is played every Monday and Friday afternoon at Victoria Silver Threads Service, 4 Centennial Square.

A few tickets are still available for a shopping trip to Vancouver next Thursday. Tickets are also offered for a trip to the Gulf Island Thursday, June 6.

Inquiries may be made to the centre, tel. 388-4268.

Sidney branch of Silver Threads will hold its last ceramics class of the season in the K of P Hall, 9760 Fourth Street, starting at 2 p.m. Tuesday.

Craft classes will be resumed in September.

Jacko will be played on Friday afternoon next.

Colored slides will be shown at the Saanich branch, corner of Harriet and Lurline, Tuesday at 2 p.m.

Esquimalt members are invited to a whist drive at the Saanich centre Wednesday at 2 p.m. The stamp club will meet Thursday afternoon and there will be Jacko on Friday at 2 p.m.

Two films, Paddle to the Sea and Great Plains, will be shown at the Esquimalt branch, 527 Fraser Street, Tuesday at 1:30 p.m.

Thursday at 2 p.m. a concert will be given by Margaret Bell, Nan Bower, Winnifred Boyes, H. E. Brown and Don Gray. Mr. Gray will be master of ceremonies.

BRIDGE RESULTS

Winners of the weekly game of the Allmasters Duplicate Bridge Club are: Thelma Kersey and Sadie MacPherson; Earle Dye and Harry Brawn; Laura Tingley and Dorothy McConnell; Birdie Duprau and Chris Murray; Ron and Duncan Smith; Marjorie Fortye and Pete Herold.

RESCUED MINERS CHARGED

TAIPEI (AP) — Fourteen miners trapped in a jade mine in eastern Formosa since Monday were rescued Thursday and charged with trespassing.

The men were so weakened by their 52 hours of entombment they could barely stand up. An earlier report that 23 men were trapped by the cave-in was incorrect.

Police said none of the rescued men was employed by the owner of the mine. The mine had been sealed by a court order following litigation.

ELECTION ROUNDUP

All-Out Wheat Sale Diefenbaker Plank

PRINCE ALBERT (CP) — John Diefenbaker said Friday that an effective all-out sales policy must be launched immediately to dispose of Canada's surplus wheat.

The Progressive Conservative candidate in Prince Albert constituency in the June 25 federal election said in an interview that such a program must be under "long term contracts and nations purchasing Canadian wheat must be shown that Canada will do everything it can to expand two way trade."

Mr. Diefenbaker also said the U.S. government must be told to end price-cutting of farm products throughout the world.

He said that during the last five years the Liberals at Ottawa had disregarded Prairie wheat farmers. Canada's share of the world market dropped to 27.5 per cent in 1967 from 41 per cent when he led a Conservative government a few years ago, he said. This was "an awful crash."

Deepsea ports in Manitoba and British Columbia should be improved to handle more grain, he said.

HALIFAX (CP) — Laurier Lapierre, national vice-Montreal riding in the June 25 federal election, said here Friday that if the Liberals are elected it could mean the end of Canada.

Mr. LaPierre said at a news conference that as far as the Liberals are concerned, the province of Quebec is the central issue of the election campaign.

Mr. Lapierre said at a news conference that as far as the people of Quebec has caused Premier Daniel Johnson to make his position firmer.

Mr. LaPierre, making a campaign tour, said there is a danger that Premier Johnson will call a provincial election in the fall, probably October, and "fight it on Ottawa's back."

He said Prime Minister Trudeau's harrasment of the the fall, probaby October, and "fight it on Ottawa's back." Quebec, many people may vote for Rene Levesque's separatist party and Mr. Levesquecou ld emerge with enough seats to become opposition leader.

VANCOUVER (CP) — Canada would never have a medical care plan if Ottawa waited until every province was ready to accept such a program, a British Columbia Liberal said Friday.

Ron Basford, Liberal member in the last Parliament for Vancouver Centre, said the old-age pension program started in 1927 with limited participation and the Unemployment Insurance and Hospital Insurance programs did likewise.

Speaking at the nominating convention for the Vancouver-Kingsway federal riding, Mr. Basford said medical care will bring patients a more complete medical service and doctors will not be influenced by a patient's financial situation.

Only British Columbia and Saskatchewan have announced plans to participate in the national medical care plan, starting July 1.

Delegates at the Vancouver Kingsway meeting elected Ed Bodnarchuk, a motel operator, to contest the June 25 federal election for the Liberals.

At another convention Friday night, television announcer David Sparrow won the Social Credit party nomination for the Okanagan Boundary constituency. The meeting was held at Oliver, B.C.

OTTAWA (CP) — The CBC has told its radio and television stations not to play the pop record Go Go Trudeau until after the June 25 federal election, a spokesman said here Friday.

The 15 television and 38 radio stations were advised of the decision earlier this week. The CBC affiliated stations were not told to withdraw the record, the spokesman said. "We wouldn't do this."

A French-Canadian Montreal recording group, The Sinners, made the record which pokes fun at several Canadian politicians. One side is in French, the other in English.

The CBC spokesman said the record was withdrawn because its repeated use could upset the balance the corporation tries to achieve during an election campaign.

"While the record is not political in its genesis, it could be regarded as unfair by some people," he said.

A local record store manager said sales were "going well" but if air time was limited, it might hurt sales.

VANCOUVER (CP)—New Democratic Leader T. C. Douglas Thursday visited three west-end homes to hear about housing problems and said Ottawa must assume "the major responsibility" for housing.

Residents at all three homes complained of problems in finding housing for families with young children and Mr. Douglas said this situation was "incomprehensible" and ridiculous.

"I think of all the hogwash I've heard from politicians about motherhood and the citizens of tomorrow. When you bear one of these citizens of tomorrow you hear 'get out of the apartment'."

He reiterated NDP calls for a national housing agency and a national investment board. The latter would channel major private investment "according to social priorities."

Housing would be the second priority after industrial expansion, he told reporters. Later, he told 85 persons in NDP headquarters in the Vancouver Centre riding that Ottawa must have more powers for housing.

Liberal David Groos Friday became the first candidate to file his nomination papers at the Victoria riding returning office for the June 25 general election.

Deadline for nominations is June 10, except in the far north of Canada.

EDMONTON (CP) — The Edmonton Centre Progressive Conservative Association announced Friday night that a second ballot will be cast again Wednesday night to select a candidate for the June 25 federal election.

Tom Chambers, a petroleum engineer, won the nomination Monday on the second ballot over Steve Paproski, a concrete company sales manager, after consulting engineer William Yurko was eliminated on the first.

But Mr. Chambers decided two days later not to accept the nomination because of what he called "irregularities in voting."

After the second ballot had been held, association officials announced that one of 12 ballot boxes had disappeared.

Both Mr. Paproski and Mr. Chambers agreed to abide by the result from the remaining 11 boxes.

BETWEEN 15 AND 20?

How quickly can you fill the empty circles above with the numbers 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6 so that the sum of all rows of four numbers will be equal? In case you need help, here's a clue: Sum of the four numbers in each row will be between 15 and 20.

Answer: Starting at 5, top left, and reading clockwise: 5, 2, 6, 4, 3, 4, 5. Starting at 3, reading counter-clockwise: 3, 2, 5, 7, 1, 4, 5.

TESTING YOUR WITS

How quickly can you make a complete sentence using only the following seven letters: a, e, i, o, u, y?

Collect your wits about you and the answer needed for the phrase is obvious.

No fair peeking below.

GET TO MIDDLE OF THINGS?

Suppose you were to find a small circle upon this page and were asked to find its centre.

You have a pencil and a ruler with which to work and nothing more, other than the page itself.

How could you go about finding the circle's centre with reasonable accuracy?

Answer: Tear off a corner of the sheet of paper and place it across the figure, point touching the circle. Indicate where sides of sheet meet figure. These points indicate diameter. Half-way on this line is centre.

SOUND OFF

Eliminate letters that will transform the following words into terms synonymous with human sounds: In number 1, for example, Stalk less S is talk.

1. Stalk.
2. Singe.
3. Washout.
4. Garage.
5. Grave.
6. Tyrant.
7. Callous.
8. Humid.
9. Butter.
10. Crypt.

Answers: 1, talk; 2, sing; 3, shout; 4, rage; 5, rave; 6, rant; 7, call; 8, hum; 9, utter; 10, cry.

Matthew Brady of New York City gained distinction in the U.S. Civil War in what capacity?

Answer: As the first news photographer.

SMART GALLERY

When an intrepid window-box gardener sent for some flower seeds, he selected an assortment in which no two blooms supposedly were alike. But lo and behold, when the window-box flowers bloomed, our friend thought he spotted an identical pair. Do you agree? Or are all the flowers (above) different? Stems and leaves do not count. Only the bloom itself is to be considered.

Answer: Two of the blooms are duplicates. One twin is at top centre, now see if you can find the other.

GOOD SECURITY?

The cashier of a frontiertown bank found two men waiting for him at the door one morning. "I want a loan of $3,000," said one. "My collateral is in this envelope."

The cashier looked inside. "I'm in a poker game across the street," the man explained. "There's $10,000 in the pot. The boys gave me an hour to raise a stake on my hand."

"Absurd," said the cashier. "We can't lend money on that."

The bank's president arrived at that instant. He took a look into the envelope and he told the cashier, "Son, I'd let him have the money."

What was in the envelope?

Answer: A royal flush.

CHIP-DOWN CHECKER TEST

Think you're a pretty good checker player? Championship calibre, perhaps? If so, long-time master player Millard Hopper Poses this challenge: "Less than one person in a hundred thousand can be rated as an expert. If you feel you're in this category, then prove it by solving this puzzler: White checkers, moving up the board, to move first and win in five moves."

Hopper's solution is given below, if needed—that is, if you fail as a champ.

Solution: White [illegible], Black 9-2, White 11-15, Black 2-11, White 15-8, Black 4-11, White 18-15, Black 11-18-25, White 27-31. Black is without a move.

HOW LONG A STRING?

After you have wrestled with this one, try it on friends and see if they are any quicker at solving it than you:

A string saver cut a cord into three pieces. Let's name the pieces X, Y and Z.

Y is three feet and one-fourth the length of Z.

Z is as long as X and Y together.

How long was the cord?

Time limit: Two minutes.

Solution: As X is three feet, Z must be six feet plus one-fourth of itself. Therefore, three-fourths of Z is six feet, making Z eight feet and Y five feet. Adding X Y and Z you get 16 feet as the answer

IT'S A QUESTION OF AGE

Jasper is eight times as old as his son, and he was considering taking out an insurance policy on his wife to expire in 24 years when he would be only twice as old as his son at the time. What is his age now?

Answer: He is 32, now, his son is four.

THUMBS UP?

Grasp the thumb of one hand with the other fingers of that hand. Place the fist under the armpit. Release the thumb. Now, remaining in the same position—that is to say, with fist under your armpit—attempt to grasp the thumb in the same manner again. Sounds easy, but try it. You'll find that contraction of muscles and awkwardness of position makes this a difficult task.

Campbell River Project Studied

CAMPBELL RIVER—A waterfront development incldiung another marina which could cost as much as $500,000 has been suggested for the downtown area.

A sketch plan has been provided by the municipal affairs department and council has decided to make preliminary inquiries into the scheme which would involve providing breakwaters and dredging and filling certain areas.

Aldermen have been told it is the policy of the federal government to help build public marinas. Aid amounts to 50 per cent of constructing breakwaters.

NANAIMO — North Oyster residents have collected $45 to help two people left homeless in a fire Tuesday which took the life of a woman.

The fund is to assist Harry Damant and his grand-daughter, Marlene, 15. Businessmen have offered further help and a dance is planned to boost the fund.

Mrs. Beatrice Damant died in the fire which destroyed the family's Yellow Point Road house. Mr. Damant and Marlene were taken in by a neighbor.

NORTH COWICHAN — Two North Road residents have questioned Mayor Donald Morton's claim that septic tank sludge ditches have been filled in.

Mrs. W. A. Walker said she checked and found the ditches open and so did Mrs. Don Phye.

Municipal engineer John Sansom said later the ditches were not completely filled in because sewage would have covered surrounding area.

"We filled them as much as we could and doused them with lime," he said. "Within the next week we hope to have them completely filled."

In future septic tank sludge will be dumped elsewhere, he added.

Knife Carried For Protection, Police Told

A man carrying a concealed knife was arrested at the Caledonia St. Entrance to the Jaycee fair Thursday afternoon.

Brian Davidson, 30, of 435 Michigan, pleaded guilty Friday to a charge of carrying a concealed weapon. Police said the knife was stuck under Davidson's belt, hidden by his shirt.

Davidson told police he needed the knife "for protection while going to see a man at the fair to collect money for laboring."

Magistrate Ostler remanded Davidson to May 23 for presentence report.

Resident Criticizes Operation of Weir

LAKE COWICHAAN—Installation of four control gates at their Lake Cowichan weir was a "magnanimous, hard cash gesture" by B.C. Forest Products Ltd.

Crofton Pulp and Paper Mill manager George Flater said Thursday this gesture cost the company $100,000 in order to provide smoother and better control of the flow of water from the lake into Cowichan River.

He was replying to criticism of the operation of the weir.

Mrs. Yvonne Green of Lake Cowichan complained that closure of the locks at the weir May 1 stranded thousands of salmon fry on the river banks.

She echoed periodic complaints about operation of the weir over the years by stating lack of proper weir control had left a number of riverside dwellers, including herself, without domestic water.

Mrs. Green said sudden reduction of the level of the river left her family without domestic water on three separate occasions last summer.

LACK OF WATER

Mrs. Green alleges BCFP have reneged on an undertaking to send in a backhoe to clear a sandbar and allow water to flow freely through the back eddy which is their water supply.

The company denies responsibility for the build up of the river bed, and deputy controller J. Sutherland of the provincial water rights branch Thursday invited Mrs. Green to take any further complaint to his department.

Mr. Flater admitted the company receives periodic complaints about the operation of the weir.

Lake Cowichan village council has protested that flooding has become more frequent and more devastating since the weir was installed in 1957.

But village clerk Bill Chappell said this week his council has been assured the company operates within limits laid down by the water rights branch.

Crofton mill superintendent John Frisch said the company takes an average 80 cubic feet per second of water from the river, and has a water rights licence to take up to 100 cubic feet per second.

'CAN'T HAPPEN NOW'

He said the company is presently negotiating with the water rights branch regarding further easing in the process of changing the level of the lake and river.

Mr. Flater said records proved that in years before BCFP came to the district the Cowichan River flow was sometimes down to 15 cubic feet per second.

He said: "This couldn't happen now."

Mr. Frisch said the company cannot raise or lower the level any more than half a foot per day, or quarter of a foot at any one time and this has never been varied.

FRY STRANDED

He admitted that any stranding of salmon fry is serious but said the federal fisheries department appeared to agree that, on balance, the weir operation is beneficial to the Cowichan as a fishing river.

De Gaulle Flying Home As French Strikes Grow

EMOTION showed in the faces of voyageurs John and Pat Manning when they returned from ocean wanderings today to Inner Harbor. There were cheers and applause as the couple returned from 18,000-mile voyage in their ketch Powindah. (Photos by Bill Halkett)

Wanderers Back In Ketch Powindah

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

LARGE welcome sign was posted above the Inner Harbor as John and Pat Manning sailed home from two-year voyage.

Ben Gunn had his first sight of Victoria today.

Ben, a sprightly green-feathered parrot from Panama screeched from the deck of the 30-foot ketch Powindah — and more than 200 Victorians shouted back as the two-masted, weather-beaten vessel tied up in the Inner Harbor.

It was a really heartfelt welcome for voyageurs John and Pat Manning returning from a voyage covering two years and three oceans.

"Congratulations — wonderful!" exclaimed Rear Admiral J. C. Hibberd, former Flag Officer, Pacific Coast, as he exchanged handshakes with John and his wife over the rail of the brown-sailed craft.

●

Deeply tanned, in yachting cap and blue jersey, 31-year-old John smiled and waved to the crowds lining the harbor and packing the landing stage.

The Powindah danced on the sparkling waters as customs and quarantine officials climbed aboard. John and Pat were not allowed to land until the craft was cleared — and Ben Gunn the parrot was ordered to stay on board for a medical.

"Give us a kiss!" screeched Ben, repeating a phrase he has often heard at sea.

"It's grand to be back," said John, a former Times reporter who has related the odyssey of his journey in The Times' weekend travel section over the past two years.

"Would you do it again?" John was asked.

"Not for a long time," he replied, "but I wouldn't say never."

He and his wife have travelled 18,000 miles in the Powindah.

"Will you go back to newspaper work?"

"No — just writing," John said. He plans to settle in Victoria and write a book on the voyage after a reunion with his father, Victoria businessman Fred Manning, and numerous relatives.

"The roughest spot on our trip," he said, "was in the Hawaiian Islands when we ran into a 60-knot gale, but we rode it out in style.

●

"Another worry was being run down by big ships. We used the automatic pilot when we went below decks for a meal and there was just the chance a big ship would get in our way.

"But we were lucky."

Mrs. Pat Manning, 27, formerly of Winnipeg, said they took turns at the wheel when the night winds were fierce.

Were their relationships strained by living in close quarters?

●

"No, I think it strengthened them," Mrs. Manning said.

They bought the nine-ton Powindah in Southampton from a retired army colonel, who had planned to sail round the world.

"We paid $8,000 for it," John said, "and I would say it was well worth the money."

"Have you had any sickness on board?" asked the quarantine officer.

"None at all," John replied.

She Swept All the Dust Out And Her Husband Went, Too

LONDON (AP) — John Hatch, 39, a veterinary, was granted a divorce from his wife Jean, 37.

Hatch complained:

—When he watched television he sat on the floor as she didn't like her chair cushions crumpled.

—When he undressed at night he used the bathroom as the bedroom curtains were nearly always kept open to preserve the folds.

—He was not allowed to take off his jacket in the living room "because it would cause dust."

—She insisted on washing his hair—in case he splashed soap on the bathroom floor and walls.

—He normally handed her his pay envelope unopened and she allowed him $12 a week. If he wanted more money, he had to ask her for it and give an accounting for his spending.

Hatch eventually had a nervous breakdown.

Quick Bomb Halt Pact Asked

PARIS (AP) — North Vietnam demanded today that the United States stop being "elusive" and agree "rapidly" to end all bombing and other attacks on its territory.

The United States, striking back at North Vietnamese pressure on this issue, demanded in turn to know whether the government of President Ho Chi Minh is "prepared to acknowledge the presence of North Vietnamese army personnel in South Vietnam."

U.S. Ambassador W. Averell Harriman was reported to have pressed the troop issue on North Vietnamese Ambassador Xuan Thuy in a 2,400-word statement, delivered from time to time in angry tones.

The two demands highlighted the sharp exchanges at the meeting which ran for more than four hours. Harriman and Thuy agreed to meet again next Wednesday.

The session was their third this week. They initially met last Monday.

PROPOSED BY U.S.

The three-day delay before the next session was Harriman's proposal, a North Vietnamese spokesman said. This set off speculation that Harriman would use the interval — longest yet of the sessions — to fly home for consultations, but U.S. sources said the speculation was not correct. They offered no explanation for the delay, however.

In today's session, Thuy focussed his 5,000-word statement on the bombing issue, reminding Harriman that the purpose of the talks at this stage is, from Hanoi's point of view, to arrange to end the bombing and all other attacks on the North.

"In order that these official conversations conclude with results," he said, "the American side must rapidly give a positive response on this subject; it must not be elusive much longer."

North Vietnam has denied any of its troops are operating in the South. Thuy made such a statement earlier this week. Harriman, in effect, demanded a retraction and admission of their presence.

ASKED RESTRAINT

"You have said a great deal about bombing cessation," Harriman told Thuy. "The president of the United States has said that the present limited bombing could come to an early end if our restraint is matched by restraint on the other side.

"And so, I would like to ask you again a question which you have not yet answered: What restraint will you take to contribute to peace in Vietnam?"

The Harriman and Thuy statements were released by their offices, and their spokesmen gave correspondents their respective accounts of how the meeting had gone.

Harriman said that when he had earlier put the question of North Vietnamese troops in

Three-Way TV Debate Proposed

OTTAWA (CP) — New Democratic Party officials called today for an election campaign television debate featuring Prime Minister Trudeau, Conservative Leader Stanfield and their own leader, T. C. Douglas.

In a telegram to Liberal and Conservative election campaign officials, the NDP suggested the three parties get together as soon as possible in a "joint approach" to the CBC and CTV networks to try to arrange such a debate.

Copies of the telegram, which noted the breakdown in talks Friday aimed at arranging a Trudeau-Stanfield debate on CTV, were sent to CBC President George Davidson and Murray Chercover, a CTV president.

The breakdown of the talks on the proposed CTV debate emphasizes the desirability of a three-party approach to CBC and CTV, the telegram said.

The telegram was addressed to Senator John Nicol and Manpower Minister Marchand, co-chairmen of the Liberal cam-

Big Crowds Greet PM In Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau was followed by huge crowds that pushed and buffeted him today when he officially launched his campaign for the June 25 federal election.

In a 2½-hour whirlwind tour of three Toronto-area ridings, the prime minister spoke to an estimated 2,000 persons at a north-end shopping plaza and campaigned on main streets in two other areas.

Everywhere he was met by large crowds. The always-smiling Liberal leader shook hundreds of hands and got almost as many hugs and kisses from frantic teeny-boppers.

The highlight came at Crang Plaza, his first stop, where the crowd pressed against Mr. Trudeau in such numbers that he was stopped dead in his tracks for several minutes.

He had to be lifted bodily from the throng onto a small platform, his hair and clothes dishevelled.

In all of his stops, his short speech could barely be heard above the noise of the crowd.

It couldn't hev happened t' a nicer Powindah.

PARIS — President Charles de Gaulle cut short a state visit to Romania today to fly home to a country facing near-paralysis as wildcat strikes spread into public services.

De Gaulle had not been scheduled to return to Paris until Sunday night from his Romanian visit, but French sources accompanying the president said he will fly home tonight to be in close touch with the situation.

Strikers occupied more than 100 factories as students and workers defied the government in the greatest social upheaval in France since the end of the Second World War. Red flags flew from some of the factories.

Agitation seemed at a peak in southwestern France and around Paris.

Information Minister George Gorse, in a surprise television broadcast today, said that "steps will be taken so that citizens will suffer the least possible from this attempt at pressure on the government." But he gave no details on what the government planned to do to stem the unrest.

The state railway management said early today that traffic was stopped on most suburban lines around the capital. Subway and bus traffic in Paris appeared to be deminishing.

USE ARMY TRUCKS

The government hastily put a fleet of army trucks into action between the capital and the main suburbs.

Although labor union federations have refrained from issuing a general strike order, workers went on strike spontaneously throughout the country.

Hardly an hour went by without word of a new factory being occupied by striking workers.

Premier Georges Pompidou called an urgent meeting with ministers of the interior, defence and transportation, along with top police officials.

The post office checking system stopped paying out money in Marseille because of a shortage of funds and residents were reported withdrawing money from the state savings bank. Unusual activity in food stores indicated some housewives were laying in extra supplies.

Orly airport near here was expected to be almost idle. The state-run airline, Air France, cancelled all flights.

The unrest was spreading in the postal and telecommunications services. Workers in Paris mail-sorting centres walked out Friday night and reports came today from Le Havre and Rouen that all postal workers were on strike there. Similar news was expected later from other centres.

There were about 300,000 men out Friday and managers and executives were held captive in many factories.

OBJECT TO HEADLINE

As some workers walked off their jobs, others took indirect action. The independent newspaper Le Figaro announced that only part of its circulation was run off the presses because pressmen objected to a headline.

Secretary-General Georges Seguy of the powerful, Communist-backed trade union federa-

Thieu Names New S. Viet Premier

SAIGON (AP) — President Nguyen Thieu announced appointment today of Tran Van Huong, 64, as South Vietnam's new premier.

Thieu made the announcement in a prepared nationwide radio and television address nine hours after he accepted the resignation of Premier Nguyen Van Loc at an emergency cabinet meeting.

The announcement put a quick end to the threat of a long government crisis which could have undermined the position of the U.S. delegation in the Paris peace talks. But it did not necessarily heal the widening split between Thieu and his strong-willed vice president, Air Vice-Marshal Nguyen Cao Ky.

Loc is a close associate of Ky, who is opposed to the American effort to end the war by negotiation and compromise. Thieu's attitude has been more flexible.

In his resignation statement, Loc declared that South Vietnam faces "grave danger" from the Paris talks.

For the last three days, Ky's friends have passed the word that Huong, a former premier, is unacceptable to the vice-president.

Informants said Ky suspects

The By-Ways of a Peninsula Called Saanich ....

... as seen by nature lover Freeman King

Back and forth we drive between Victoria and Swartz Bay, murmuring sentiments of appreciation—but it's like cutting the heads off flowers and putting the stems in a vase.

They're pretty enough . . . but we don't see the best parts.

That's the way it is with most people. They have an acquaintance with the Saanich Peninsula. But just get them off the beaten track and it's a torrid love affair.

There's the come-hither look of a shady farmhouse, the whisper of a temptress in each quiet stream, quiet ponds that turn the sky upside down, valleys where perky deer hide and pheasants strut.

There are quiet roads where the western meadow lark can still be heard because traffic is so scant; where bells tinkle on cows. And sheep with a know-it-all look watch horses rolling in the grass.

There are marshes where migrating ducks chat quietly with domestic waterfowl and myriad insects whine and drone and flutter, sometimes unwarily, to the immense satisfaction of the trout that fishermen have long since forgotten—or secretly preserved.

Native trees and shrubs have made room for Garry oaks and maples introduced from far off places; white elms from Ontario are there, a gift to us from some long-dead pioneer, like the Lombardy poplars or the hawthornes and Maytrees brought around the Horn from England.

There are mouth-watering rows of loganberries and strawberries and grapes set out to capture the sun while their grower is in some other field, tilling the black soil to add another perfume today, another food crop tomorrow.

The wanderer watches the shadow of a cloud moving swift across the field, a vision lost among the rooftops in a city.

When does the city dweller pause to watch an apple tree move from blossom to fruit or a holly berry turn from green to red, or a hive of bees collecting his morning honey while tending the generation of an orchard?

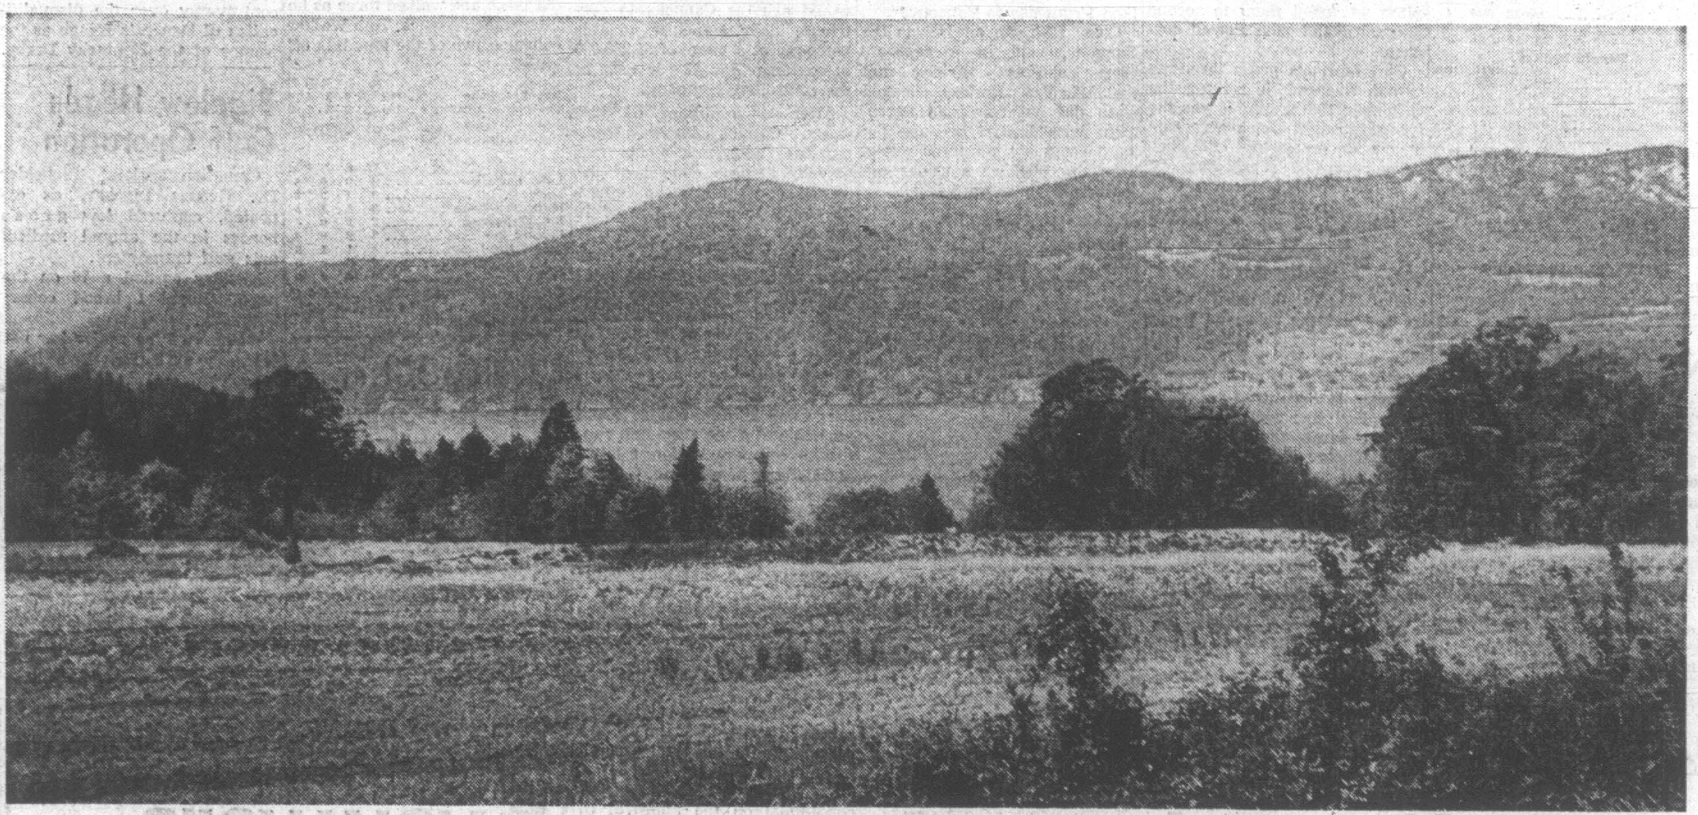
Where else but on Saanich Peninsula can so many weathered churches, some with worn gravestones marking the past, be enjoyed by the solitary stroller?

Where else can you glimpse the sea, in one direction tossing its white manes, in another, stretching, docile as a tabby to the long mud flats where herons stalk on their toothpick legs.

Was there ever a place with more restful parks in such abundance? The swans of Beaver and Elk Lakes are icing on the cake, like the wildflowers of Bear Hill, the playgrounds of Centennial, the green chinned giants of John Dean.

Climb down the rugged walls to the rocky beaches of Saanich Peninsula to watch the fishermen putt by, dreamlike, almost hoping no hefty spring accepts their challenge. Count the varieties of shell fish, seaweeds glistening on the tideline where tiny wavelets gossip about happenings on distant shores.

Can any other spot in God's green world offer so much and yet be so accessible to the city dweller? And can any other beauty so often be ignored?



Hills of the Malahat look back at peaceful peninsula fields.

....Wend Their Way to a 100-Year Anniversary

Saanichton, the heart of the Saanich Peninsula, is the site of another favorite Peninsula attraction—the Saanichton Fair. Few Victorians realize it was actually founded 100 years ago. The story is here told by Brock Clayards, a 17-year-old Grade II student at Claremont Senior Secondary School. It appears as he wrote it in a school assignment which impressed his teachers and led to its submission for publication here.

By Brock Clayards

On the morning of the first Saturday of October, 1868, a sturdy Indian war canoe was moving to the rhythm of four paddles manned by men of the Tsartlip reservation. The 10 passengers, George Thomas, J. T. McIlmoyle, P. Imery, T. Brown, Henry Simpson, Duncan Lidgate, Thomas Michell, George Butler, William Turgoose and William Thomson were not on a war party, nor were they fishing. They were going to a fair.

The year before this, the residents of Maple Bay had held a very successful fair. The delegation from Saanich were on their way to see what the people of Maple Bay had accomplished.

On their arrival, they were royally welcomed and wined and dined by the community. After observing the goings on, they returned.

●

En route, in a somewhat more mellow mood, they came upon the idea to hold their own fair. That day in the war canoe, the North and South Saanich Agricultural Society was formed. Mr. Butler was named secretary, and Mrs. Brown was the first president. In addition, each of the 10 men contributed five dollars as prize money, quite a sum for those days.

In two weeks the first fair was ready. It was to be held in Mr. Brown's farm, just beyond the present Experimental Farm, near what is now McTavish Road.

The early fairs were a joyful occasion for all the family. Mother and daughter worked for weeks in advance in their domestic and kitchen preparations. Father and son were out in the fields harvesting their best grain and selecting their prize vegetables.

On fair day, usually a Saturday or Sunday after the harvest, all the families from around the peninsula would gather on the fairgrounds and the fun would begin.

●

There would be a table set aside for the exhibition of grains and vegetables. Another bench would feature women's work such as tubs of butter, pies, bread and embroidery and needlework. Always, in the middle of the barn or hall, there stood a large keg of beer for judging and sampling. In addition, each wagon carried an ample supply of cider and beer cooled under a wet canvas cover.

As the years passed, the fair changed location. After two years in Mr. Brown's barn, it moves to a spot near Bannockburn, the Thomson residence. After a short stay of two years, in 1872 it was shifted to its present location in Saanichton, on the East Road.

●

The character of the fair changed as well. In 1892, horse racing was introduced. By 1896, as much as $25 prize money was being offered for each race. Racing ceased in 1913 and about 1939 the first saddle classes were introduced. From this developed the Saanichton horse shows of today, an ever popular event at the fair.

In the early fifties, the carnival atmosphere began to appear. Under the sponsorship of the Kinsmen, rides and refreshments were offered. The proceeds went to the next year's fair and also to charity. These arrangements are still ample chance for everyone to have fun.

The fair changed from a small Class C exhibition to a middle sized Class B exhibition through an increase in prize moneys after the coming of community service groups such as the Rotary and Kinsmen clubs. The first fair offered $50 in prize money; today's fair offers more than $10,000.

●

This year's fair, as the promoter would say, "Promises to be better than ever." The theme will be progress over the past hundred years. A blacksmith's shop, the making of butter and old farm machinery in actual operation are just a few of the attractions.

Come next Labor Day week-end. Bring your family. Step into the past to contrast our modern farming methods and agriculture, and also enjoy the present for a few hours.

This week's clash of Catholic opinion over the fate of St. Louis College is by no means unique. The same arguments, the same discussions, are taking place in various North American cities, and the theme is essentially the same:

Can the separate schools be saved?

A state of financial crisis harries the Catholic school program. The reasons for it are familiar enough to educators everywhere. In part, it is brought about by the same population explosion that over-crowds our public schools.

Add land and building costs that steadily increase, and the burden threatens to become heavier than even the most devoted and willing diocese can sustain.

Elsewhere, as in Victoria, we find Catholic churchmen of Bishop Remi De Roo's extremely high calibre who face the situation perceptively and calmly—and at the other pole, traditionalists who turn from the reality in something approaching anguish.

And who can blame them? St. Louis College has served the Catholic community for well over a hundred years. It's an institution, and the prospect of closure is understandably dismaying.

Yet here is Bishop De Roo, speaking in terms that cannot be misunderstood:

"The problem is not 'Could we raise enough to save St. Louis.' The problem is, are we going to rally fast enough to save the rest of the schools?"

★

Inevitably, in the search for a solution, the matter of government refusal to grant state aid to separate schools is raised.

The provincial government was castigated in the course of the Thursday night meeting at which Bishop De Roo spoke so bluntly.

Similarly, when the school crisis was emphasized by Msgr. James C. Donohue, director of education for the U.S. Catholic Conference, his critics urged the need of government grants.

One proposal, according to The National Catholic Reporter for May 15, was that education grants similar to those made to GIs be given to parents of children in non-public elementary and secondary schools.

I think it unlikely that any American government will offer such aid. In Canada, Ontario with its large French Canadian population, has approved separate school grants, but British Columbia has made no move to follow suit.

Nor do I think B.C. is likely to. Non-Catholic opposition would be strong and instant; and in any case, a government that determinedly scrimps its public schools is unlikely to bestow largesse on educational side-issues.

★

There are liberal Catholics who would not be too sorry should the parish schools go under.

I have listened to more than one who holds this view. They felt that the quality of the education meted out to their children was uneven (a complaint I have also heard from parents of public school students) and that religious exercise intruded unduly on time badly needed for curricula that demand increasingly more of the child.

One father, himself separate-school educated, expressed himself as against segregation on religious grounds or any other. If he had it to do again, he told me, his children would attend public school on taxes.

Certainly by present indications, a heavy majority of Victoria Catholics do not take kindly to the thought that their schools are dying from lack of financial nourishment.

Nevertheless, that's the picture as their shrewd and able bishop sees it . . . and as it is revealing itself elsewhere.

This decade has seen significant changes on all Catholic fronts, not merely in the field of education. The local problem is part of a far larger one, which is not going to be solved in the narrow context of any single community.

With this in mind, I suggest to my valued Catholic friends that they do not take their bishop's words lightly.

Admiral Greets New Aircraft At Comox Base

Neptunes Depart, Argus Take Over

By AL WHITE
Times Staff Reporter

CFB COMOX—A single Argus aircraft streaked over the hangar areas as Rear-Admiral J. A. Charles pulled a cord to remove a flag from the side of another Argus on the ground.

As the flag dropped from the fuselage it revealed the crest of the Argus on the nose of the plane. The airforce's 407 Squadron had said hello to it and goodbye to the Neptune.

Flown since 1955 as the west coast's anti-submarine detection plane, the Neptunes were retired Friday in favor of the larger and farther-reaching CC 106 Argus.

Base personnel and hundreds of guests gathered before a dais flanked by two of the aircraft and backed by a Neptune to witness the final ceremony.

As Rear Admiral Charles, commander of maritime forces Pacific, stepped to the dais the first of four Argus flew past.

Wearing full ceremonial uniform with medals and sword, the rear-admiral said goodbye to the Neptune and congratulated the men of 407 Squadron for keeping them operating so well.

He said all forces are "dedicated to the protection of our territorial integrity.

"We want to be a sovereign nation . . . to make sure we as Canadians have control of our country. The Argus aircraft permits us to survey the area for which we are responsible."

After unveiling the plaque, the official party entered a hangar where the rear-admiral cut a ceremonial cake.

As he did so the Neptune pilots paid a sentimental farewell to their planes in a series of flypasts, putting them through steep climbs and tight turns over the hangars.

Alternately the Argus crews flew over, putting on a minor airshow with some of them just barely moving through the air on only two of the planes' four propellors.

BAND PRESENT

The CFB Esquimalt band, flown up for the occasion, played throughout the ceremony.

The larger Argus, which has a patrol duration of more than 24 hours aloft, was transferred to Comox from the base at Greenwood, Nova Scotia.

The plane will provide the maritime command with wider surveillance, reconnaissance and intelligence gathering operations not possible with the medium range Neptune.

With a wing span of 142 feet and length of 128 feet (compared with wings of 101 feet and length of 91 feet for the Neptune) the submarine hunter can travel more than 750 miles from base for a patrol and return with enough fuel for a 500 mile diversion.

She carries the most up-to-date detection and attack equipment and spacious facilities for a crew of 10 or 11.

The patrol area covered by the maritime command spreads about 300,000 square miles out over the Pacific. By staggering flights of the aircraft, a continuous patrol over any area can be maintained almost indefinitely.

TAKING FAREWELL flight over airfield at CFB Comox are last of four Neptune anti-submarine warfare planes, to be disposed of as surplus after flying from base since 1955. Hundreds of airforce personnel and guests stood on runway to pay last respects to Neptunes and greet replacing CC106 Argus aircraft from east coast. Larger, newer Argus is shown on runway under flypast. (DND Photo)

Labor Chiefs 'Reject' Mediation Post Offer

At least two union leaders in British Columbia have turned down offers to sit on the province's new labor mediation commission.

B.C. Federation of Labor secretary Ray Haines declined to identify the two persons except to say that the information came directly from them.

He was expanding in an interview on remarks earlier this week in a Vancouver speech to the Industrial Relations Management Association.

He told the association "a number of prominent people have been approached by the department of labor but have turned down offers to sit on the mediation commission."

Mr. Haynes said in the interview that he knows of a third union leader who turned down an offer, but this information was second hand.

NO NAMES

"I don't know who they have approached outside labor," he added.

The Minister of Labor, Leslie Peterson, was not in his office for comment this morning.

Labor Minister Peterson claimed this week in interviews that a number of trade unionists have applied for board appointments, more than could possibly be accepted.

In his speech, Mr. Haynes said the government is having difficulty in "getting any prominent person" to be chairman of the commission because the Bill 33 legislation which sets it up includes compulsory arbitration features.

"No respected labor leaders can possibly accept a position on this commission under the present circumstances," he said.

The cabinet proclaimed part of Bill 33 on April 26 clearing the way for establishing the commission. No one has been appointed to date.

Under Section 18 of the legislation, not yet proclaimed, the cabinet can refer a dispute to the commission and order that the commission's decision be binding. Strikes and lockouts can also be ordered ended in 24 hours with fines for failure to obey.

COMMITTEE NAMED

Wide Search Begins For Uvic President

An 18-member committee has begun an international search for the next president of the University of Victoria.

The quest is for a successor to Dr. Malcolm Taylor who resigned as the first Uvic president in February.

Dean Robert Wallace becomes acting president July 1.

The 18-member committee draws its membership from all sections of the university and was established earlier this year by the board of governors to advise on the selection of a new president.

Chancellor R. B. Wilson, chairman of the board and the committee, said earlier its job to determine the best prospects and prepare a short list of those who prove most outstanding through their scholarship and ability to lead.

MEMBERS LISTED

Membership of the committee, announced today is: Richard B. Wilson (chairman), Willard Ireland and Lloyd McKenzie from the board of governors; R. I. Cheffins and Dr. Roy Watson, senate representatives; Dr. James Hendrickson and Dr. Richard Powers, faculty association representatives; Donald S. Thomson, alumni association representative; Dr. J. P. Vinay, Dr. Cary Goulson and Dr. Alan Gowans, representing the faculties of arts and science, education and fine arts; Deans Wallace, Jeffels, Scargill and Tyler and Peter Garvie, director of the school of fine arts; Deryk Thompson and Raymond Vickery, undergraduate and graduate student representatives.

The committee, which will meet again in early June, has invited nominations for the positions from various groups and is compiling a list of prospective candidates.

Dr. Taylor has said he will return to Uvic after a year's leave of absence as a political science professor specializing in public administration.

Man Fined $350, Placed On Bond

A man found sleeping in a car in a Sooke Road ditch early Sunday was fined $350 Friday and placed on a $250 one-year good behavior bond.

Anaquod pleaded guilty to both charges.

DAY, WEEK FOR ALL IN CABINET CALENDAR

The provincial cabinet is continuing its proclamation-happy ways.

As have the other weeks in May, next week will present British Columbians with two official observance weeks.

May 19 to 25 has been declared "Better Hearing Week" in B.C. by Health Minister Ralph Loffmark as a gesture towards the 1,200 deaf persons and their associations in the province.

In addition, the cabinet has proclaimed May 20 to 25 as "Cerebral Palsy Week" to direct attention to the problems of the 1,653 persons afflicted with this illness in the province.

Besides observing both official weeks, British Columbians also have been asked by the cabinet—through a solemn proclamation—to add a special thought midweek for the problems of certain female sales agents.

It named Wednesday, May 22, as "Insurance Women's Day in British Columbia."

The missing people live in Saanich, and although the municipality has a larger population than Victoria city, few "outsiders" know or hear anything about Saanich.

Mayor Hugh Curtis wants something done about it.

He has asked the Saanich Chamber of Commerce to look into ways of improving and extending the municipal image.

"There is no doubt that Saanich is not as well-known as the largest and a very important part of Greater Victoria, as is Burnaby in the same position as a part of Greater Vancouver," the mayor said.

"If Saanich was located on its own, up-Island, or in the interior of the province, its population of over 60,000 would classify it as a major market. The geographical fact of our being a municipality adjacent to Victoria city tends to blend us into the Victoria landscape," Mayor Curtis explained.

Floor Men Seek Vote

A strike vote will be taken shortly by about 35 resilient floorlayers at 10 companies in the Victoria area.

The union will ask the labor department to supervise the vote in anticipation of employers requesting this, said John Schibli, business agent here for the United Brotherhood of Carpenters.

He said the employers latest offer was to extend the existing contract for one year which he said, is behind the rest of the province.

LT. HARLEY B. KIERAN of Victoria has ttaken command of the recommissioned minesweeper HMCS Miramichi. The ship was brought back into the Pacific Maritime Command fleet May 16 as a training vessel. Lt. Kieran joined the navy as an officer cadet in Victoria in 1954. He most recently served as operations officer on the destroyer-escort HMCS Ottawa at Halifax.

He Hates Smoking, She Wins $10,000

The wife of one of Canada's foremost crusaders against smoking drew a $10,000 prize coupon from a cigarette package this week.

Mrs. Eric Martin, wife of the former provincial health minister, said she picked up the lucky package of cigarettes during her regular weekly shopping outing Thursday morning.

She said she was "stunned" when she first saw the coupon.

"How would you feel?" she asked.

Her husband said he was dismayed.

"The implication of this thing struck like a thunderbolt," Mr. Martin said. He is the honorary national president of the Non-Smokers Association and previously smoked for 30 years "to the detriment of my health."

Mr. Martin, who has been after his wife to quit smoking for years, said he always referred to cigarettes as "no touch 'ems" — "but then she goes and wins all this money."

He aid he expects the provincial government to declare a non-smokers day later this month to encourage people not to smoke, but he did not know if it would discourage people from pulling coupons out of packages.

Mrs. Martin looks on the prize as a good omen because the Martin family has been plagued by illness, she explained.

"Maybe this is a change of luck."

Sun Fun Weekend For All

This is our weekend!

Big bands and beautiful girls!

A dazzling parade, fireworks, horse shows, bike "scrambles," baton twirling and dancing!

That's just part of the recipe for marking the holiday with the name the city shares.

And it's all going to happen under sunny skies, with just enough breeze to fan you and temperatures flirting with 75. That's what the weather man promises but he does hedge a little with talk of a few clouds Sunday afternoon and evening.

SOUND OF MUSIC

It's all to the sound of music too with 27 American bands adding lots of glitter to Monday's big parade.

Tens of thousands of watchers will make a corridor of the parade route down Douglas Street, from the Mayfair shopping plaza to Humboldt. The parade gets under way at 10 a.m.

There will be concerts aplenty through Sunday and Monday too, including Victoria's new carillon.

Herman Bergink intends sounding the right note when he opens with "Something to Sing About" from the tower carillon Sunday at 3 p.m.

BELLS TO RING

There will be a second 45-minute carillon concert Monday at 7:30 p.m. at Belleville and Government Streets.

Carol MacKinnon, Miss Canada, arrives in Victoria this afternoon to take part in the crowning of Miss Victoria Sunday afternoon. The winner will be selected at the Jaycee Fair tonight.

A two-day regatta and sports festival at Brentwood got under way today featuring war canoe races and Indian dances.

For those heading out of town, picnicing, boating or camping, the provincial forest service warns forest fire hazard ratings are climbing. With the fire season only three weeks old, B.C. has already experienced 203 fires, 104 of them in the past seven days.

Fire

SINKING 'SAVES' BOAT

A boat owner deliberately sank his 30-foot yacht off Sidney today to avoid complete destruction by fire.

The owner, identified by Sidney RCMP as Robert Keen of Brentwood, apparently scuttled the two-masted sailing vessel in hopes of later salvaging the hull.

BLAST FEARED

Police also said there was a danger of the fire reaching the gas tanks and the boat blowing up.

Mr. Keen was accompanied by his two sons whose names were not available at press time. All three were taken aboard a fishing vessel which had the yacht under tow at the time.

The fire was reported to police just before 9 a.m. today and the boat sunk about 20 minutes later.

IN 40 FEET

The boat lies now in Shoal Harbour in about 40 feet of water. Four feet of one mast can be seen and about six inches of the other, observers report.

The fire was reported to be in the stern of the vessel and watchers on shore saw thick black smoke and a cabin partially burned.

Five Outstanding Pupils To Benefit From Mistake

By DON VIPOND

It all began with a crushing mistake about a year ago.

But from the mistake blossomed one of those social incidents which will provide a ray of sunlight in local history books.

At the centre were 40 Indian youngsters, the Kuper Island fife and drum band. Remember, it was Canada's year and all the world was headed for Expo. The Kuper band was going too — "the trip of a lifetime" it was being called.

And then came the grim word there had been a mistake. It was thought $10,000 was available. It wasn't. No Expo.

That big empty feeling disappointment brings is something everybody understands but maybe kids better than most.

Because it was the youngsters who refused to take it right from the start. At S. J. Willis junior secondary school in Victoria they came alive.

ALL-OUT EFFORT

Pupils organized concerts, held wrestling matches, collected coat hangers, sold candy, pocket books, watermelons. They marched ahead of the Kuper band in last year's Victoria Day parade. Their banner urged support for that "Trip of a Lifetime."

The fife and drum band itself went to work hard. So did other youngsters in schools up and down the Island.

Then the warmth of the idea began to reach out and the money began to roll in. A stubborn trickle turned into an enthusiastic flood.

When it was all over the Kuper band had its "trip of a lifetime," a lot of people felt very good about the whole business.

And there was about $5,800 left over.

About $800 of this has been turned over to the Kuper band for such things as more instruments, equipment and uniforms.

TRUST FUND

The remaining $5,000 is in a trust fund and each year the interest it earns will provide medals and modest cash prizes for five outstanding Indian students on the lower Island.

Deadline for submitting candidates, all from Grade 7, was Wednesday. Victor Janzen, superintendent of Indian schools on Vancouver Island, said in Nanaimo today he will be forwarding recommendations to the trustees next week.

"We're taking everything into consideration — sports ability, leadership, special interests such as art, poetry, handicrafts or music."

And Mr. Janzen paid tribute to the pupils at S. J. Willis.

"They really kept the drive going."

The fund's trustees will announce the winners in the near future. Awards will likely be made at school closing exercises.

NO MARCH

Ironically, there will be no Kuper fife and drum band in the big parade Monday.

"We lost our director, Brian Dufour, and a lot of the senior pupils last year," said school principal Father John Massel today.

It will be hard replacing the music director, he said, and likely a year or two before the Indian band marches again.

Something that has lasted though — big memories for a lot of kids almost a year ago. And all those that made it possible deserve a happy memory too.
